A Euery frend sayth: I wyll be frendly vnto hym also. But there is some frend, which is only a frend in name. Remaineth there not heuines vnto deth, whē a companyon & frende is turned to an enemye? O most wicked presumption: From whens arte thou spronge vp, to couer the earth with falshoode Eccl. 6.b and disceyte? There is some companion whiche in prosperitie reioyceth with his frende: but in the tyme of trouble, he taketh parte agaynst hym. There is som companion that mourneth with his frend for the belly sake, but when trouble commeth, he taketh hold of the shield. Forget not thy frēd in thy mynde, and thynke vppon hym in thy riches. Seke no councell at thy kynsmen, and hyde thy councell frome Eccl. 8.c and. 9.c suche as beare thee no good wyl. Euery counceller bryngeth foorthe hys councell. Neuertheless, ther is some that counsaileth, but for his owen profite. Beware of the counceller, and be aduised afore whereto thou wylte vse hym, for he wyll councell for himself. Lest he cast the lot vpon thee, and say vnto thee: Thy way and purpose is good, and afterward he stand agaynst thee, and loke what shall becomme of thee. Aske no councel at hym, that suspecteth thee for an ennemie, and hyde thy councell frome suche as hate thee. Aske no councell at a woman concerB nyng the thyngs that she longeth for: nor at a fearefull and faynt harted body, in matters of warre: or at a marchaunt how deare he wyll cheape thy wares toward his: or at a byer, of selling: Or at an enuious man, of thankesgeuyng: Or at the vnmercyful, of louyng kyndnes: Or (at an vnhoneste man, of honestie.) Or at the slouthful of worckyng: Or at an hyrelyng whiche hath no house, or profyt or welth. (An yde bodye wold not gladly here speake of much labour. Take no such folkes to councell, but be diligente to seke councell at a vertuous man that feareth God, suche one as thou knowest to be a keeper of the commaundementes, whiche hath a mynde after thyne owne mynde, and is sorye for thee when thou stombleste. And holde thy councell faste in thyne hearte: for C there is no man more faithful to kepe it, then thou thy selfe. For a mans mynde is sometyme more disposed to tell out, then euen watchemenne that syt aboue in an hie place loking about theym. And aboue all thys, praye the Hyest, that he wylle leade thy way in faithfulnes and truth. Before all thy workes aske councel fyrst: and or euer thou doest any thynge, be well aduised. There bee foure thynges that declare a chaunged hert, wherout there springeth cupll and good, deathe and lyfe, and a maisterfull tonge that bableth muche. Some man is apt & well instruct in many thynges, and yet very vnprofitable vnto hym self. Some man there is, that can geue wyse and prudent councell, and yet is he hated, and cōtinueth a begger: for that grace is not geuen hym of God to be accepted. An other is robbed of all wysedome, yet is hee wise vnto hym selfe, and the fruite of vnderstandynge is commendable in his mouthe. A wyse manne maketh hys people wyse, and D the fruites of his wysedom fayle not. A wyse man shalbe plentuously blessed of God: and all they that see hym, shall speake good of hym. The lyfe of manne standeth in the numbre of the days, but the dayes of Israell are innumerable. A wise man shall obtayn faithfulnes and credence amonge hys people, and hys name shall bee perpetuall. Honor

HOnoure the Phisition: honoure him because of necessitie. God hath created him (for of the hiest commeth medicine) and he shall receaue giftes of the kyng. The wisedome of the Phisicion bryngeth him to great worshyp, and in the sight of the greate men of thys worlde, he shall be honorably taken. The Lorde hath created medicines of the earth, and he that is wyse, wyll not abhorre it. Was not the bitter water made swete with a tree that men might learne to knowe the vertue therof. The Lorde hath geuen men wisdome and vnderstandyng, that he myght be honoured in his wonderous workes. With such doeth he heale men, and taketh awaye their paynes: Of such doeth the Apotecarye make a confection, yet can no man perfourme all hys workes. For of the Lord cōmeth prosperous welth

¶ The .xxxix. Chapter.

HE that applyeth hys mynde to vnderstand the law of GOD dothe diligentely seeke oute the wysedome of them of the old tyme, & exercyseth hymselfe in the Prophets. He kepeth the sayinges of famous mẽ and pleaseth to the vnderstandyng of darke sentences of wysedome. He seketh out the mysterie of secrete sayinges, and exercyseth hym self therin cõtinually. He doothe seruice amonge great menne, and appeareth before the prince. He goth into a straunge countrey, and tranayleth thorow it: looke what good or euyll is among men, he proueth it and seketh it out. He purposeth in his heart, to resort early vnto the Lord that made hym, & to praye before the hiest God. He openeth his mouth in prayer, and prayeth for hys sinnes. When the great Lorde wyl, he shalbe filled with the spyrete of vnder-

For in due season, they are all pleasant and good, and therefore prayse the Lorde with whole hert and mouth, and geue thankes vnto hys name.

¶ The. xl. Chapter.

A Great trauayle is created for all men, and an heuy yoke vpon al men childzen, from the day that they go out of theyr mothers wombe, tyll they bee buryed in (the earthe) the mother of all thynges. Namely, their thoughtes and imaginations, feare of the hert, councel, meditations, longing and desyre, the day of deathe: from the hyest that sytteth vpon the glorious seate, vnto the lowest and moste simple vpon the earth from hym that is gorgiously arayde, and weareth a crown, vntyl hym that is but homely and symplye cloathed. There is nothyng but wrathe, zeale, carefulnes, vnquietnes, and feare of death, rigorous anger, and strife. And in the nyght, when one shoulde reste and slepe vpon his bed, the slepe changeth hys vnderstandyng and knowledge. A lyttle or nothyng is his reste in the sleape, as welle as in the day of laboure. Hee feareth, and is disquieted in the dyspon of hys hart, as one that renneth out of a battayle: and in the time of health he awaketh and marueleth that the feare was nothinge. Suche thynges happen vnto al flesh, both man and beast: but seuenfold to the vngodly. Moreouer, death, bludshedding, stryfe and swearde, oppression, hunger, destruction and punyshment: • these thynges ar al created Ge.29.c agaynste the vngodlye, and for their sakes came the flonde also. • All that Gen.7.d is of the earth shall turne to earthe agayne, and all waters ebbe agayn into the sea. All bribes and vnryghteoulnes shalbe put away, but faithfulnes and truth shal endure for euer. The substaunce and goodes of the vngodly shalbe dried vp and sinke away as a water flud, and they shal make a sounde lyke a greate thonder in the rayne. Like as the ryghteous reioyseth when hee openeth his hande, so ¶ shal the transgressours be faint, whe their goodes vanishe and consume away. • The childzen of the vngodlye shal not obtayne many branches, and Ecc.41b the vnclean rootes vpon the hyghe rockes shalbe rooted oute before the grasse by the water side, and vpon the ryuer bankes. Frendlynes, and liberalitye in the increase and blessing of God, is lyke a Paradyse and garden of pleasure: such mercy also and kind- Phil.4.b nes endureth for euer. To labour and to be content with that a man hath, is a swete pleasaunt lyfe: and that is to find a treasure aboue all treasures. To beget childzen and to repayre the citie, maketh a perpetual name: but an honest woman is more worthe, then them both. Wyne and minstrelsy reioyce the herte, but the loue of wysedome is aboue theym both. Pypynge and harping make a swete noise, but a frendly tonge goeth beyonde theim both. Thyne eye desyreth fauour and bewty, but a grene seede time, rather ¶ then they both. A frend and companõ come together at opportunitie, but aboue them both is a wyfe that agreeth with her husband. One brother helpeth another in the tyme of trouble, but almes shal deliuer more then them both. Gold and siluer fasten the feete, fete, but a good councell is more pleasaunt then they both. Temporal substaunce and strength lift vp the mind: but the feare of the Lorde more then they both. The feate of the Lord wanteth nothing, and nedeth no help. The feare of the Lorde is a pleasaunt garden of blessyng, and nothyng so bewtyfull as it is. My sonne, lede not a beggers lyfe, for better it were to dye then to begge. Who so loketh to another mans table, taketh no thought for his owne lyuing howe to vphold his life, for he fedeth him selfe with other mennes meate. But a wyse and well nurtoured man wyll beware thereof. Beggynge is sweete in the mouth of the vnshamefast, but in his bely there burneth a fyre.

A O Death, how bitter is the remembraunce of thee, to a man that seketh reste and comforte in his substaunce and ryches, vnto the man that hath nothynge to vexe hym, and that hath prosperitie in al things, yea, vnto hym that yet is able to receaue meate? O death, howe acceptable and good is thy iudgemente vnto the nedefull, & vnto him whose strength fayleth, and that is nowe in hys last age, and that in all thinges is full of care and fearefulnes: vnto him also that is in dyspayre, and hath no hope nor pacience? Be not thou afrayed of death: remember them that haue bene bene before thee: and that come after the: this is the iudgement of the Lord Gen. 8.d ouer all fleshe. And whye wouldest thou be agaynste thys pleasure of the hyest? whether it be ten, an hundred, or a thousande yeres, death asketh not B howe long one hath lyued. The children of the vngodly are abhominable children, and so are they that kepe com Eccl. 40c pany with the vngodly. The enheritaunce of vngodlye chyldren shall come to naughte, and their posteritye shall haue perpetuall shame and confusion. The children complayne of an vngodly father, and why? for his sake they are rebuked and despysed. Wo be vnto you (O ye vngodly) which haue forsaken the lawe of the hyest God: if ye be borne, ye shalbe borne to cursynge, yf ye dye, the curse shalbe your portion. All that is of the earth, shall Eccl. 11 b turne to earth agayn: so go the vngodlye also out of the curse into destruction. The sorowe of menne is their bodye: but the name of the vngodlye shall be put oute, for it is nothynge Eccl. 22 a worth. Labour to gette thee a good name, for that shall continue surer by thee, then a thousande great treasures of golde. A good life hath a number of days, but a good name endureth euer. C My chyldren, kepe wisdome in peace: for wyse dome that is hyd, and a treasure that is not sene, what profyt is is in the both? A man that hideth his foolyshnes, is better then a man that hydeth hys wisdome. Therfore be ye turned at my woordes: for it is not good, inall thynges and alway to be ashamed. True fayth must proue and measure it. Be ashamed of whordom, before father and mother: be ashamed of lesyng, before the prince and men of auctoritie: Of sinne, before the iudge and ruler. Of offence, before the congregation and people: Of vnryghteousnes, before a companyon and frende: Of theft, before thy neyghbours. As for the trueth of God and hys couenaũt, be not ashamed therof. Be ashamed to lye wyth thyne elbowes vpon the bread: Be ashamed to loke vppon harlottes: Be ashamed to turne away thy face from thy frende. Be ashamed to take and not to geue: Be ashamed also to loke vpõ another mans wyfe, and to make manye tryfyng woordes with her mayden, or to stãd by her bedside. Be ashamed to vp braid thy frend: whẽ thou geuest any thing, cast him not in ỹ teeth withal.

Gen.9.d *Looke vppon the rayne bowe, and prayse him that made it: very bewtyful is it in hys shyne. Hee compasseth the heauen about with his clerenesse and glory, the hands of the hyest haue bended it. Through hys commaundemente he maketh the snowe to fall, and the thonder of hys iudgement to smyte hastely. Through his commaūdement the treasures are opened, and the cloudes flye as the foules. In his power hath he strengthened the cloudes, and broken the haile stones. The mountaynes melt at the syght of him the winde bloweth according to hys wyl. The sounde of his thonder beateth the earth, and so doeth the storme of the North: the whirle winde also lyghteth downe as a feathered foule, casteth oute and spreadeth the snowe abroade: and as the grashoppers that destroye al, so falleth it downe. The eye maruelyeth at the bewtye of the whytenesse thereof, and the hearte is afrayde at the raine of it. ¶ The xlvii. Chapter

AFterward in the time of king Dauid, there rose vp a Prophet called Nathan: For like as the fat is taken away from the offering, so was Dauyd chosen oute of the children of Israel. He tooke hys pastyme with the lions, as with kid-des, and wyth beares lyke as wyth lambes. * Slewe hee not a giaunte when he was yet but yong, and toke awaye the rebuke from hys people: what tyme as he toke the stone in his hande, and smote downe proud Goliath wyth the slinge? For he called vp-on the hiest Lorde, which gaue hym strength in hys ryghte hande, so that he ouerthrewe the myghty gyaunt in the dat tail, that he myght lette vp the horne of hys people agayne. * Thus brought he hym to worshyp aboue all prynces, and made him to haue a good reporte in the prayse of the Lord, that he shoulde weare a crowne of glorye.
* For he destroyed the enemyes on e-uery syde, rooted out the Philistines hys aduersaryes, and brake their horn in sunder, like as it is broken yet this day. In al hys workes he praysed the hiest and holiest, and ascrybed the honour vnto him. With hys whole hert dyd he prayse the Lord and loued hym that made hym. * Hee set syngers also before the aulter, and in their tune hee made sweete songes. Hee ordeyned to kepe the holy daies worshipfully, and that the solemne feastes thorough the whole yeare should be honorably hol den, wyth prayesynge the name of the Lorde, and wyth syngynge betymes in the morninge in the Sanctuarye.
* The Lorde toke awaye his synnes, and exalted hys horne for euer. Hee gaue hym the couenant of the kynge-dome, and the throne of worshyp in Israel. * After him there rose vp the wyse sonne called Salomon, and for hys sake he drone the enemies awaye peace in hys tyme (for God gaue him instruct in hys youth, and fulled with wysedome and vnderstandynge, as it were a water floud. He couered & filled the whole lande with similitudes and wise prudent sentēces. His name went abrode in ỹ Iles, because of his peace he was beloued. All lands merualled at his songes, prouerbes, similitudes, and at his peace, & at the name of the Lord God, whiche is called the God of Israel. He gathered gold as tynne, and he had made as much siluer as lead. He was maued in inordinate loue toward women, and was ouercome in affection. He stayned hys honour and worshyp, yea hys posteritie defiled he also, in bringyng the wrath of the Lord vpon his children, and sorowe after his ioy: so that his kingdome was deuided, and Ephraim became an vnfaithful and an vnconstant kyngdome. Nuertheless God forsoke not his mercy, neither was he vterly destroyed because of his workes, that he should leaue him no posterity. As for the seede that came vpon hym, which he loued, he brought it not vterly to naughte, but gaue yet a remnant vnto Jacob, & a roote vnto Dauid out of him. Thus rested Salomō with his fathers, and out of his seede he left behynd hym a very foolishnes of the people, and suche one as hadde no vnderstanding: euē Roboā, whiche turned awaye the people thorowe his counsell: and Jeroboam, the sonne of Nabat, whyche caused Israell to synne, & shewed Ephraim the way of vngodlynes: In so muche that theyr synnes and myssededes had the vpper hande so sore, that at the last they were driuen out of the lande for the same. Yea, he sought out and brought vpon all wyckednes, tyll the vengeaunce came vpon theym.

He was taken vp in the storme of fyre, in a charet of horses of ỹ lord. He was ordined in the reprouings in tyme, to pacifie the wrath of the lord, to turne the herts of the fathers vnto the children, and to set vp the tribes of Jacob agayne. And as the braunches of the Olyue tree, so stode all the sunnes of Aaron in their glory, & the oblatiōs of ỳ lord in their handes before al the congregation of Israell. And that he might sufficiently perfourme hys seruyce vpon the aulter, and garnishe the offeryng of the hiest God, he stretched oute hys hand, and toke of the drinke-offeryng, and powred in the wyne: so he powred vpon the botome of the aul ter a good smel vnto the hyest prince. Then began the soonnes of Aaron to synge, and to blowe with trompettes, and to make a great noise, for a remem braunce and prayse vnto the Lorde. Then were the people afrayd, and fell downe to the earthe vpon their faces, to worshyp the Lorde their God, and to geue thankes to the almighty God. Then went he downe and stretched oute hys handes ouer the whole multitude of the people of Israel, that they shoulde geue prayse and thankes out of their lyppes vnto the Lord, and to reioyce in hys name. He began yet once also to pray, that he myght opēly shew the thanksgeuyng before ỳ hyest namely thus: O geue prayse & thanks (ye all) vnto the Lorde oure GOD, which hath euer done noble and great thynges: whiche hath increased oure dayes from our mothers wombe, and dealt with vs accordyng to his mercy: that he will geue vs the ioyfulnes of hearte, and peace for oure tyme in Is-

Thou endurest for euer, should we then vtterly perysshe? O Lord almyghty, thou God of Israell: Heare nowe the prayer * of the dead Israelites and of their chyldren whiche haue synned beefore thee, and not hearkened vnto the voyce of the Lord theyr God, for the whiche cause these plagues hang now vpon vs: O Lorde, remembre not the wickednesse of our forefathers, but thynke vppon thy power & name now at this tyme: for thou art the Lord our God, & thee (O Lord) wil we praise. * For thou hast put thy feare in our hertes, to the intent that we should call vppon thy name, and praise thee in our Captiuitie: and that wee myght turne frome the wickednes of our forfathers, that synned before thee. Beholde, we are yet this day in our captiuitie, wher as thou hast scattred vs to bee an abhomination, curse, and synne: * lyke as it happened vnto our fathers also, because of all theyr wickednes and departynge from thee. O Israell heare the commaundements of lyfe, ponder them wel with thyne eares, that thou mayste learne wisedome. But howe happeneth it Israel, that thou arte in thyne enemies land? thou art waxen old in a strange countrey, and defyled with the dead. Why arte thou become lyke them, that go down to their graues? Euen because thou hast * forsaken the welle of wysedome. ioye dyd I nourysshe theym, but now must I leaue them with weppyng and synnes of my chyldren am desolate of euery man. For why? they departed from the lawe of God: they wold not know his rightcousnes, nor walke in the way of hys comaundementes: and as for the pathes of the truth and god lynesse, they hadde no luste to goe in them. O ye dwellers aboute Syon: come, and let vs call to remembraunce the Captiuitie, that the euerlastynge God hath brought vppon my sonnes and my daughters. He hath brought a people vpon them from farre, an vncurteous people, and of a strange language: whiche neither regard the old, nor pitie the yong. These haue caried away the deere beloued of my widowes, leauyng me alone, bothe desolate and childlesse. But alas, what can I help you? Now he that hath brought these plagues vppon you, deliuer you also from the hands of your enemies.

Go your waye (O my children) goe your way: for I am desolate and forsaken. I haue put of the clothynge of peace, and put vppon me the sack cloth of prayer, and for my tyme I wil call vppon the moste Hyest. Bee of good cheare, O my children, crye vnto the Lorde, and he shall deliuer you frome the power of ꝑ princes, your enmies.

For

For verely, I haue euer a good hope of your prosperous health: yea, a very gladnes is come vpon me from the holye one, because of the mercye that ye shall haue of oure euerlastyng Sauioure. With mournynge and weppynge did I let you go fro me, but with ioye and perpetuall gladnes, shall the Lord bryng you agayne vnto me. Lyke as the neyghbours of Sion sawe youre captiuitye from God: Euen so shall they also see shortely youre healthe in God, whiche shall come on you with great honoure and euerlastyng worshyp. O my children, * suffer pacientlye the wrathe that shall come vppon you. For the enemye hath persecuted thee, but shortely thou shalt see his destruction, and shalt treade vppon hys necke. My derlings haue gone rough hard wayes, for they are led awaye as a flocke that is scatered abrode wyth the enemyes. But be of good conforte (O my chyldren) and crye vnto the Lorde: For he that led you away, hath you yet in remembraunce: and lyke as ye haue bene mynded to swarue from your God, * so shal ye now endeuour your selues ten tymes more, to turne agayn & to seke him. For he that hath brought these plages vpon you, shall bryng you euerlastyng ioye agayn to your health. Take a good herte vnto thee, O Jerusalē: for he which gaue the ỳ name, exhorteth ỳ so to do * The wycked doers that nowe put thee to trouble, shall perish: and such as haue reioyced at thy fall, shalbe punished. The citys whom thy children serue, and that haue caryed away thy sōnes, shall be correcte. For lyke as they be nowe glad of thy decaye (and reioyse at thy fall) so shall they mourne in their owne destruction. The ioye of their multitude shall be taken away, and their cheare shall be turned to sorowe. For a fyre shall fall vpon them from the euerlasting God long to endure: and it shalbe inhabited of deuils for a great season.

¶ The. b. Chapter.

O Jerusalem, loke about the toward the East, and behold the ioy that commeth vnto the frō God. For lo, thy sonnes (whom thou hast forsaken, and that were scatred abrode (com gathered together, from ỳ east and west reioysyng in the worde of the holye one, vnto the honoure of God. Put of thy mournynge clothes (O Jerusalem) and thy sorowe, and deck thee with the worshyp and honoure that commeth vnto thee from God, with euerlastynge glorye. God shal put the garment of righteousnes vpon thee, and set a crowne of euerlastyng worshyp vpon thyne heade: for vpon the will God declare his brightnesse, that is vnder the heauen. Yea, an euerlastyng name shalbe geuen the of God, with peace of righteousnes, and the honoure of Gods feare. Aryse, O Jerusalem, stand vpō hye: loke about thee toward the easte, and beholde thy children gathered from the East, vnto the weste, whiche reioyce in the holye word, hauyng God in remembrance. They departed from the one fote, and were led away of their enemyes: but nowe shall the Lorde bryng them caryed with honoure, as chyldren of the kyngdome. For God is purposed to bryng downe all stout mountaynes, yea, and all hye rockes, to fyll the valleys, and so to make theym euen with the ground: that Israell may be diligent to ryue vnto the honour of God. The woddes and all pleasaunt trees shall ouershadow Israell, at the commaundemente of God. For hyther shall God bryng Israell with toyfull mirth, and in the light of his maiesty: with the mercy and righteousnes, that commeth of him selfe.

and after that will I bring you away peaceably from thence. Nowe shal ye see in Babilon, goddes of golde, of syluer, of wood and of stone, borne vpon mens shoulders, to cast out a fear vnto the heathen. But looke that ye do not as the other: be not yee afrayde, and let not the feare of them ouercome you. Therfore, whan ye see B the multitude of people worshipping them behinde and before, saye yee in Deu. 6. c your hertes: O Lord, * it is thou that oughtest onely to be worshypped.
Myne aungel also shalbe with you, and I my selfe will care for your soules. As for the tymber of those gods, the carpenter hath polished them. Ye, guited bee they and layed ouer with syluer, yet are they but vayne thinges and can not speake. Lyke as a wench that loueth peramors is trimly deckt, euen so are these made and hanged with gold. Crownes of gold vereiye haue their goddes vpon their heades: so the priestes them selues take gold and siluer from them: and putte it to their owne vses, yea, they geue of the same vnto harlottes, and trym their whoores withal: againe, they take it from the whores, and decke their god-
Ier. 10a des therewith. * Yet canne not these goddes deliuer them selues from rust and mothes. When they haue couered them with clothinge of purple, they wype their faces for the duste of the temple, wherof there is much among them. One hath a scepter in his hand as though he wer iudge of the countrye: yet can he not slea such as offend him. Another hath a sword or an axe in hys hande, for al that is hee neyther able to defend him selfe from battayle, nor from murtherers. By thys yee
C may vnderstand, that they be no goddes: therfore see that ye neyther worshyp them, nor feare them. For lyke as a vessel that a manne vseth, is nothing worth when it is broken, euen so is it with their goddes. Whā they be set vp in the temple, their eyes bee full of duste throughe the feete of those that come in. And lyke as the doores are shut in round about vppon hym that hath offended the kyng. Or as it were a deade bodye kepte beside the graue: Euen so the priestes keepe the doores with barres and lockes, leaste their goddes bee spoiled with robbers. They set vp candels before the (yea verely and that manye) whereof they can not see one, but euen as blockes, so stande they in the temple. It is sayd, that the serpentes and woormes, which com of the earth, gnawe out their heartes, eatinge them and their clothes also, and yet they feele it not. Their faces are blacke thorough the smoke that is in the temple. The D oules, swalowes, and birdes flye vpon them, yea and the cattes runne ouer their heades. By this ye may bee sure that they are not goddes, therefore feare them not. The golde that they haue, is to make them bewtiful: for al that, except some body dyghte of their rust they wil geue no shine: and whan they were caste into a fourme, they felte it not. They are boughte for money, and haue no breath of lyke Sap. 4 swythin them. * They must be borne vpon mennes shoulders, as those that haue no fete: wherby they declare vnto men, that they be nothing worth. Confounded be they then that wor-
Ps. 11 shyppe them, for yf they fall to the grounde, they canne not ryse vppe agayne of them selues. Yea though one helpe them vp, and set them ryghte, yet ar they not able to stand alone, but must haue proppes to set vnder them lyke dead men. As for the thynge that is offered vnto them, their Priests sell it, and abuse it, yea, the priests wyues take therof: but vnto the sick & poore, they geue nothynge of it, the women with chyld and the menstruous lye handes of their offrynges. By this ye may be sure, that they are no goddes, therfore be not ye afrayd of the. From whens commeth it then, that they be called gods? The women sytte before the gods of syluer, gold, and woodde, and the priestes syt in their temples, hauyng open cloathes, whose heades and beardes are shauen, and haue nothynge vppon their heades, roaryng

and cryinge vpon their gods, as men E do at the feast when one is dead. The priestes also take away the garmētes of the ymages, and decke their wyues and chyldren withall. Whether it be good or euyll that anye man do vnto them, they are not able to recompence it: they can neyther set vp a kynge nor put him downe. In lyke maner they may neyther geue ryches, nor reward Eccl. 5.a euyll. ✱ Though a man make a bowe vnto them and kepe it not, they wyll not require it. They can saue no man from death, neither deliuer the weake frō the myghty. They can not restore a blynde man to hys syghte, nor helpe anye man at his nede. They can shew no mercy to the widdow, nor do good to the fatherles. Their gods of wod, stone, golde, and syluer, are but euen as other stones, that be hewen of the mountayn. They that worshipp them, shalbe confounded. Howe sholde they then be taken for goddes? Yea, howe dare men call them gods? And though the Chaldees worshypped them not, hearynge that they were but domme, and coulde not speake: Yet they them selues offer vnto Bell, and woulde fayne haue him to speake: as who say, they coulde fele, that maye not moue.
But when these men come to vnderstandyng, they shall forsake them, for F their gods haue no feling. A great sort of wemen gyrde with coardes, syt in the stretes, and burne Olyue beryes.
Nowe if one of them be conueyed awaye, and lye with anye such as come by: she casteth her neyghboures in the teeth, because she was not so worthe-lye reputed, nor her coarde broken.
Whatsoeuer is done for them, it is but in bayne and losse. Howe may it then be thought or said, that they are gods?
Carpenters and goldesmythes make them, neither be they any other thing but euen what the workeman wyll make of them. Yea, the goldesmythes them selues that make them, are of no longe continuaunce. Howe sholde then the thinges that are made of thē, be goddes? Mayne therefore are the thynges (yea, verye shame is it) that they leaue behind them for their posterity. For as sone as there commeth any warre or plague vpon them, then the priestes ymagine, where they may hyde them selues with them. Howe can men thinke thē, that they be gods, which nether may defend themselues from warre, nor delyuer theym frome myssfortune? For seyng they be but of wood, of stone, of syluer and of golde: all people and kynges shall knowe hereafter, that they be but vaine thin-ges: yea, it shalbe openly declared, that they be no goddes: but euen the wor-kes of mennes handes, and that God hath nothing to do with them. (It is manyfest then that they are no gods, but the workes of mens handes, and no worke of God in theym.) They can set no kyng in the lande, nor geue rayne vnto menne. They can geue no sentence of a matter, neyther defende the lande from wronge. For they are not able to do so much as a crow, that flyeth betwyxte heauen and earthe.
When there happeneth a fire into the G house of those goddes of woode, and syluer, and of golde, the priestes wyll escape and saue theym selues, but the goddes burne as the balkes therein.
They can not withstand any kyng or battell: howe maye it then be thought or graunted, that they be gods? More ouer, these goddes of wodde, of stone, of golde, and syluer, may neyther defend themselues from theues nor robbers: yea, the very wycked are stronger then they. These strype them out of their apparell, that they be clothed withall, these take their golde and siluer from them, and so get them away: yet can they not helpe theym selues.
Therfore it is muche better for a man to be a kynge, and so to shewe his power: or els a profytable vessell in a house: wherin he that occupyeth it, might haue pleasure: yea, or to be a doze in a house, to kepe such thynges safe as be therin, then to such a dayn God. The Sunne, the moone, and all the starres seynge they geue their shyne & lyght, are obedient, and do men good. When the lyghtenyng glistreth, all is cleare

The wind bloweth in euery contry: and whan God commaundeth the cloudes to go round about the whole worlde, they doo as they are bydden, when the fyre is sent downe frō aboue, and commaunded, it burneth by hylles and woodds. But as for those goddes, they are not lyke one of these thinges, neyther in beawty, neyther strength. Wherfore men shoulde not thinke nor saye that they be goddes, seing they can neyther geue sentence in iudgement, nor do men good. ¶ For so much now as ye are sure that they be no goddes, then feare thē not. For they can neyther speake euil nor good for kinges. They can shewe no tokens in heauen, for the Heathen, neyther shine as the sonne, nor geue lyght as the Moone: yea, the vnreasonable beastes are better then they, for they can get them vnder the roofe, and do them selues good. So can ye be certifyed by no manner of meanes, that they be god des: therfore feare theym not. For lyke as a skarcrowe in a garden of herbs kepeth nothing, euen so are their goddes of woodde, of syluer and gold: and lyke as a whyte thorne in an orchard, that euery birde syt teth vpon: yea lyke as a dead body that is cast in the darke. Euen so is it with those goddes of woodde, syluer, and gold. By the purple & scarlet whiche they haue vpon them, and sone fadeth away, ye may vnderstande, that they bee no goddes: yea, they theym selues shalbe consumed at the laste, whyche shalbe a greate confusion of the land. Blessed is the godlye man, that hath no ymages, and worshypeth none, for he shalbe far from reproffe.

AND they walked in the middest of the flame, prayeng God and magnifying the Lord. Asarias stode by, and prayd on this maner. Euen in the middest of the fyre opened hee hys mouth, and sayde: Blessed be thou O Lord God of our fathers) right worthye to bee prayed and honoured is that name of thyne for euermore: for thou art ryghteous in al the thynges that thou haste done to vs: Yea, faithful are all thy workes, thy waies are ryghte, and al thy iudgements true. In al the thynges that thou haste brought vpon vs, and vpon the holye Citie of oure fathers (euen Jerusalem) thou haste executed true iudgemente: yea accordyng to ryghte and equity haste thou brought al these thinges vpon vs because of our sins. For we hy: we haue offended, and done wickedly, departinge from thee: • In all thynges haue wee trespassed, and not obeyed thy commaundements, nor kept them, neyther done as thou haste bydden vs, that we myghte prospere. • Wherfore, al that thou haste brought vpon vs, and euerye thinge that thou haste done to vs, thou haste done theym in true iudgement: As in deliuerynge vs into the handes of oure ennemies, among vngodly and wicked abhominations, and to an vnryghteous king yea, ye most frowarde vpon earth. ¶ The story of Susanna which is the thirteenth Chapter of Daniel, after the Latin.

There dwelt amanne in Babilon called Joachim, that tooke a wyfe, whose name was Susanna, the daughter of Helkya, a very fayre woman and suche one as feared God. Her father and her mother also were godlye people, and taught their daughter accordyng to the law of Moyses. Now Joachim (her husband) was a greate ryche manne, and had a fayre orchard ioyning vnto hys house. And to hym resorted the Iewes cōmenly, because he was a man of reputation amonge them. The same yere wer there made two Iudges, such as the Lorde speaketh of: All the wyckednes of Babylon, commeth from the elders, that is from the iudges, which seeme to rule the people. These came ofte to Joachims houſe, and all ſuche as had any thyng to doo in the law, came thither vnto theym. Nowe when the people came agayne at after noone, Suſanna wente into her huſbandes orcharde to walke. The elders ſeeyng thys, that ſhe went in dayly, and walked: they bourned for luſt to her, yea they were almoſte out of their wittes, and caſte downe their eies, that they ſhould not ſee heauen, nor remembre, that God is a righteous Iudge. For they were bothe wounded with the loue of her, neither durſte one ſhewe another his greſe. And for ſhame, they durſte not tell her their inordinate luſt, that they would fayn haue had to do with her. Yet they layde wayte for her earneſtly from day to daye, that they myghte (at the leaſt) haue a ſyght of her. And the one ſayde to the other: Vp, let vs go home, for it is diner time. So they went their way from her. When they returned agayne, they came together, enquirynge oute the matter betwixte themſelues: yea, the one told the other of his wycked luſt. Then appoynted they a tyme, when they myghte take Suſanna alone. It hapned alſo, that they ſpyed oute a conueniente tyme, when ſhe went foorthe to walke (as her maner was) and no bodye with her, but two maydens, and thoughte to waſhe her ſelfe in the gardein, for it was an hotte ſeaſon: And ther was not one perſone there, except the two elders, that had de hydde them ſelues to behold her. So ſhe ſayd to her maidens, Go fet me oyle & ſope, and ſhut the orchard dooze, that I maye waſhe me. And they dyd as ſhe bad them, & ſhut the orchard dooze, and went out themſelues at a backe dooze, to fet the thyng that ſhe had commaunded: but Suſanna knewe not, that the elders lay there hid within. Nowe when the maidens wer gone forthe, the two elders gat thē vp, & ran vpō her, ſaying: Nowe the orchard doozes are ſhutte, that no man can ſe vs: we haue a luſt vnto thee, therefore conſent vnto vs, & lye with vs. If thou wylt not, we ſhall bryng a teſtimonial agaynſt the, that there was a younge felowe with thee, and that thou haſt ſent away thy maidens from thee for the ſame cauſe. Suſanna ſighed, & ſaide: Alas, I am in trouble on euery ſyde: Though I folow your mynd, it will be my deth, & if I conſent not vnto you, I can not eſcape your handes. Well, it is better for me, to fall into your hande without the dede dooyng, then to ſynne in the ſyght of the Lorde: and with that ſhe cryed out with a lowde voice: the elders alſo cried out againſt her. Thē ranne there one to the orcharde dooze, and ſmote it open. Nowe when the ſeruantes of the houſe heard the crye in the orcharde, they ruſhed in at the back dooze, to ſe what the matter was. So when the elders tolde theym, the ſeruantes were greatly aſhamed, for why? there was neuer ſuche a report made of Suſanna. On the morowe after, came the people to Ioachim her huſband, and the two elders came alſo, full of miſchenous imagination againſt Suſanna, to bryng her vnto deathe, and ſpake thus before the people: Sende for Suſanna, the daughter of Helcias, Ioachims wife. And immediately they ſent for her. So ſhe came with her father and mother, her children, and all her kynrede. Nowe Suſanna was a tender perſone, and meruailous fayre of face. Therefore the wycked men cōmanded to take of the clothes from her face (for ſhe was couered) that at the leaſte they myght be ſo ſatiſfied in her beauty. Thē her frendes, yea & all they that knew her, beganne to wepe. Theſe two elders ſtode vp in the myddeſt of the people, and layd their handes vpon the head of Suſanna, which wept, & loked vp toward heuen, for her hert had a ſure truſt in the Lord. And the elders ſaid: As we were walking in the orchard alone, this woman cam in with her two maydēs, whom ſhe ſent away from her, & ſparred the orchard dozes. With that, a yōg felow (which ther was hid) cam vnto her, and lay with her. As for vs, we ſtoode in a corner of the orcharde: And when we ſaw this wickednelle, we ran to her, and perceiued, that they had medled together. But we could not hold hym, for he was stronger thē we: Thus he opened the doore, & gat him away. Now when we had taken this woman, we asked her, what yong felow this was, but she wold not tell vs. This is ỳ matter, and we be witnesse of the same. The cōmon sort beleued theim, as those that were the elders and iudges of the people, and so they condemned her to death. Sulanna cried oute wyth a loude voice, and Hebr. 4. c sayd: O euerlasting God, • thou sercher of secretes, thou that knowest al thynges afore they come to passe: thou wotest, that they haue borne false witnes against me: and beholde, I muste

C dye, where as I neuer dyd any suche things, as these men haue maliciously inuented agaynste me. And the Lorde heard her voyce. For whē she was led forth to death, the Lord rayled vp ỳ spirite of a yong child, whose name was Daniell, whyche cryed with a loude voyce: • I am clean from this blood. Then all the people turned theim towarde hym, & said: What meane these wordes, that thou hast spoken? Daniel stode in the middest of them, and said: Are ye suche fooles, O ye childzen of Israel, ỳ ye can not discern nor know the truth? Ye haue here condemned a daughter of Israel vnto deth, & know not ỳ truth. Wherfore, Go sit on iudgmēt againe, for they haue spoken false witnes against her. Wherfore the people turned again in all ỳ hast. And the elders (that is, the principall heades) said vnto him: Come, sit downe here amōg vs, & shew vs this matter, seyng God hath geuē thee as great honor as an elder. And Daniel said vnto them: • Put these two asyde, one from another, and then shal I heare thē. When they were put a sunder one from another, he called one of them, & saide vnto him: O thou old cankred carle, ỳ hast vsed thy wickednesse so long: thyn vngracious dedes which thou hast done afore, are now come to light. For thou hast geuen false iudgements, thou hast oppressed the innocent, & letten the guilty go free, where as yet ỳ Lord saith: • The innocent and rightous se thou slea not. Well than, if thou hast seene her, Tell me vnder what tree sawest thou them talking together? He answered: Under a Mulbery tree. And Daniel said: Very wel, now thou liest euen vpon thyne head. Lo the messanger of the Lord hath receaued the sentence of him, to cut thee in two. Then put he him aside, & called for the other, and sayde vnto hym: O thou seede of Canaan, but not of Juda: Fairnesse hath discerned thee, and lust hath subuerted thyne heart. Thus dealt ye afore with the daughters of Israel, and they (for feare) consented vnto you: but the daughter of Juda would not abyde your wickednesse. Now tel me than vnder what tree dydst thou take them, speakyng together? He answered: Under a pomgranate tree. Then sayd Daniell vnto hym: Very well, nowe thou lyest also euen vpon thyne head. The messanger of the Lord standeth waytyng with the sword, to cut the in two, and to slea you both. With that, all the whole multitude gaue a great shoute, and praised God, • which alway delyuered them that putt their truste in hym. And they came vppon the two Elders, (whome Daniell hadde conuicte wyth theyr owne mouthe: that they hadde geuen false wytnesse:) and dealt with them, euen lykewyse as they wouldе haue doone wyth theyr neyghbours: yea, they dyd • accordynge to the lawe of Moyses, and put theim to deathe. Thus the innocent bloodde was saued the same day. Then Helchiah and hys wyfe prayed G O D for theyr daughter Sulanna, wyth Joachim her husbande, and all the kynredde, that there was no dishonestie founde in her. From that daye forthe was Daniell hadde in great reputation in the syghte of the people. (And Kyng Astyages was layde wyth hys fathers, and Cyrus of Persia reygned in hys steade.)

DAniel did eate at the kinges table, and was hadde in reuerence aboue all hys frendes. Ther was at Babilō an image called Bel, and there were spent vpō hym euery day .xii. cakes .xl. shepe, & fiue gret pots of wine. Him dyd the king worshyp him selfe, and went dayly to honoure him: but Daniel worshypped his owne God. And the kyng sayde vnto hym: Whye doest not thou worshyp Bel? He answered and sayde: Because I maye not worshyppe thinges that bee made wyth handes, but the liuinge God, whiche made heauen and earthe, and hath power vpon all flesh. The kyng sayd vnto him: thinkest thou not that Bel is a lyuing God? Dost seest thou not howe much he eateth & drinketh euery day? Daniel smiled, and sayde: O kinge, dysceaue not thy selfe, for this is but made of claye within, & of mettal wythout, neither eateth hee any thing. Thē the king was wroth, and called for hys priestes, and sayde vnto them: If ye tel me not whoe is thys, that eateth vp these expenses, ye shal dye: but yf ye can certifye mee that Bel eateth them, then Danyell shal dye, for he hath spoken blasphemy agaynst Bel. And Daniel sayd vnto the king: let it so be, according as thou haste salde: The priestes of Bel were lxx. besyde their wyues and chyldren. And the king went wyth Daniel into the temple of Bel. So Bels priestes sayd: Lo, we wil go oute, and set thou the meat there (O king) and poure in the wine: then shut the doze faste, and seale it wyth thyne owne signette: and to morowe when thou commest in, yf thou findest not that Bel hath eaten vp all, we wyll suffer death: or els Daniel, that hath lied vpon vs. The priestes thought theym selues sure ynough, for vnder the aultar they had a priuye entraunce, and there wente they in euer, and dyd eate vp what there was. So whan they were gone forth, the kinge set meates before Bel. Howe Daniel had commaunded hys seruauntes to dryngе ashes, and these he sifted throughoute al the temple, that the king might see. Then went they out, and sparred the doze, sealing it wyth the kinges signette, and so departed. In the nighte came the priestes wyth their wyues and chyldren (as they were wonte to do) and eate and dronke vp al. In the morning betymes at the breake of the day, the kyng arose, and Daniel with hym. And the king sayde: Daniell, are the seales whole yet? He answered: Yea (O king) they be whole. Howe as soone as he had opened the doze, the king loked vpon the aultare, and cryed wyth a loude voyce: Greate art thou O Bel, and with thee is no disceat. Then laughed Daniel, and held the kyng that he should not go in, and sayde: Behold the pauemente, marcke well, whose fotesteppes are these? The kynge sayde: I se the footesteppes of men, wemen and chyldre: therfore the king was angry, and toke the priestes wyth their wyues and chyldren, and they shewed him the priuye doores, where they came in, and dydde eate vp suche thynges, as were vpon the aulter. For the whiche cause the kynge slewe them. and delyuered Bel into Daniels power, which destroyed him and hys temple. And in that same place ther was a great dragon, whiche they of Babilon woorshypped. And the king sayd vnto Daniel: Saiest thou that thys is but a god of metall also? lo, hee liueth, he eateth and dronketh: so that thou canneste not saye, that he is no lyuyng God, therfore worshyppe him. Daniel sayd vnto the kinge: I wyll worshyppe the Lorde my God, for hee is the true lyuynge God. Geue me leaue, (O kynge) and I shal destroye this

Dragon without swearde or staffe. The kynge sayde: I geue thee leaue. Then Daniel toke pitch fat and hearye wol, and dyd seeth them together, and made lompes therof: thys he put in the Dragons mouth, & so the Dragon burst in sonder: and Daniel sayd: lo there is he whom ye worshypped.

C When they of Babilon herd that, they toke great indignacion, and gathered them together agaynst the kyng, sayinge: The kyng is become a Jew and he hath destroyed Bell, he hath slayne the Dragon, and put the Priestes to death. So they came to the kyng, and sayde: let vs haue Daniell, or els we will destroy the & thyne house. Now when the kyng sawe that they rushed in so sore vpon hym, and that necessitie constrayned hym, + he delyuered Daniell vnto them: which caste him into the lyons denne, where he was syxe dayes. In the denne there were seuen lyons, and they had geuen them euery daye two bodyes & two shepe, which then were not geuen them, to the intent that they might deuoure Daniel.

F There was in Jewry a Prophet called Habacuc, whiche had made potage, and broken bread in a depe platter, and was goyng into the field, for to bring it to the reapers. But the Aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto Habacuc: go cary the meate that thou haste into Babylon, vnto Daniell, which is in the lyons denne. And Habacuc sayde: Lorde, I neuer sawe Babylon: and as for the denne, I know it not. Then the Aungell of the Lorde toke him by the toy, and bare him by the heare of the head, and (thorow a mighty wynd) set him in Babylon vpon the denne. And Habacuc cryed, sayinge: O Daniell + thou seruaunt of God, haue, take the breakfast, that God hath sent the. And Daniell sayd: O God, hast thou thought vpon me? well, thou neuer fayleste the that lone thee. So Daniell arose, and dyd eate: and the Aungell of the Lorde set Habacuc in hys owne place agayne immediately.

G Upon the seuenth daye the kyng wēt to bewepe Daniel: and when he came to the den, he loked in: and behold, Daniel sat in the myddest of the Lyons. Then cryed the kynge with a loude voyce, sayinge: Great art thou, O Lorde God of Daniell, and he drewe him out of the lyons denne. + As for those that were the cause of hys destruction, he dyd caste them into the denne, and they were deuoured in a momēt before his face. After this, wrote the kyng vnto all people, kynredes and tongues, that dweite in all countreys, sayinge: peace be multiplyed with you. My commaundement is in all the dominion of my realme: that men feare and stand in awe of Daniels God, + for he is the lyuyng God, which endureth euer: his kyngdome abydeth vncorrupt, and hys power is euerlastyng. It is he that can deliuer and saue: he doeth wonders and marueilous workes in heuen and in earth, for he hath saued Daniel from the power of the Lyons.

The prayer of Manasses king of Juda, when he was holden captiue in Babylon.

O Lorde Almyghtye, God of our fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, & of the righteous seede of them which haste made heauen and earth, with al the ornament therof, which haste ordeined the sea by the word of thy commaundement, which haste shut vp the depe, and haste sealed it for thy fearfull and laudable name, whiche all menne feare and tremble before the face of thy vertue, and for the anger of thy threatnyng, the which is importable to sinners. But the mercy of thy promes is great and vnsearcheable: for thou art the Lorde God moste hygh, aboue al the earth, longsuffring, and exceading mercyfull, and repentaunte for the malyce malyce of men. Thou Lorde after thy goodnes hast promised repentaunce of the remissiō of synnes: and thou that art the God of the righteous, hast not put repentaunce of the righteous Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, vnto them that haue synned agaynste thee: But because I haue synned aboue the number of the sandes of the sea, and that mine iniquities are multiplied, I am humbled with many bandes of yron, and there is in mee no breathynge, I haue prouoked thyne anger, and haue done euyll before thee, in committyng abhominacions, and multiplying offences. And nowe I bowe the knees of my herte, requiryng goodnes of the O Lord. I haue synned, Lord I haue synned, and knowe myne iniquitye. I desyre thee by prayer, O Lord forgeue me: forgene me and destroye me not with mine iniquityes, neyther do thou alwayes remember myne euyls to punyshe them, but saue me (whiche am vnworthy) after thy great mercy: and I will prayse thee euerlastyngly, all the dayes of my life: for all the vertue of heauen prayseth thee, and vnto thee belongeth glorie world without ende. Amen.

The fyrste Chapter.

After that Alexander the sonne of Philippe, kynge of Macedonia wente forth of the lande of Cethim, and slewe Darius kynge of the Persians and Medes: It happened, that he toke greate warres in hande, wanne berye manye stronge Cyties, and slewe many kynges of the earth: goynge thorowe to the endes of the worlde, and gettynge manye spoyles of the people: In so muche, that the worlde stoode in greate awe of hym, *and therefore was he proude in hys herte. Nowe when he had gathered a mighty strong hoost, and subdued the landes and people with their princes so that they became tributaryes vnto hym: he fell sicke. And when he perceaued that he must nedes dye, he called for hys noble estates (whiche had bene broght vp with him of childzen) *and parted hys kyngedome amonge them, whyle he was yet alyue. So Alexander reygned. xii. yeare, and then dyed. After hys deathe fell the kyngdome vnto hys princes, and they obtayned it euery one in his rowme, and caused theym selues to bee crowned as kynges: and so dyd their childzen after them many yeres, and much wickednes increased in the worlde. Out of these came the vngracious rote, noble Antiochus the sonne of Antiochus the king (*which had bene a pledge at Rome) & he reygned in the. Cxxxvii. yeare of the empyre of the Grekes.

In those dayes went there out of Israel wicked men, which moued much people with their councell, sayinge: *Let vs go and make a couenant with the Heathen, that are round about vs: *for sence we departed from them, we haue had muche sorowe. So thys deuyse pleased them well, and certayne of the people toke vpon theym lycence to do after the ordinaunce of the Heathen. Then set they vp an open scole (at Jerusalem) of the lawes of the Heathen, and were nomore circumcised: but forsoke the holy Testamente, and ioyned them selues to the Heathē, *and were cleane sold to do myschefe.

So when Antiochus beganne to be mighty in hys kingdom, he wente about to obtayne the land of Egypt also, that he myghte haue the dominion of two realmes. *Upon thys entred he into Egypte with a strong hoofte, with charettes, Elephantes, horsmen and a great number of shippes, and beganne to warre agaynst Ptolomy the kyng of Egypte. But Ptolomy was afrayde of hym, and fled: and many of hys people were wounded to deathe.

Thus Antiochus wan many stroge cy C ties, & toke away great good out of the 2mat. 5.c lande of Egipt. ✱ And after that Anti-ochus had smytten Egypt, he turned agayne in the .C.xliii. yere, and went towarde Israell, and came vp to Jerusalem with a myghtye people, and entred proudely into the Sanctuary, and toke awaye the golden aulter, the candlestycke and all the ornamentes therof, the table of the shewbread, the pouryng vessell, the chargers, the golden spones, the vaile, the crown, & the golden apparel of the temple, & brake downe all. He toke also the syluer and golde, the precious Jewelles, and the secrete treasures that he founde. And when he had taken awaye altogether, he caused a great murther of men, & so fulfylled hys malicious pryde, he departed into hys owne lande. Thus D there arose great heaupnes and myserye in all the lande of Israell. The prynces and the elders of the people mourned, the ponge men and the may-dens were defiled, and the fayre bewty of wemen was chaunged: the bride grome & the bryde toke them to mour-nynge: the lande and those that dwelt therein, was moued: for all the house 1mat. 5.a of Jacob was broughte to confusion.
✱ After two yeres the kynge sent hys cheke treasure vnto the cytyes of Iu-da, whiche came to Jerusalem wyth a greate multitude of people, speaking peaceable wordes vnto theym, but all was dysceate: for when they had geuen him credence, he fell sodenly vpon 1mat. 7.b the cyty, & smote it sore, and destroyed much people in Israell. ✱ And when he had spoyled the citye, he set fyre on it, castyng downe houses and walles on euerye syde. The wemen and their chyldren toke they captyue, and led away their catell. Then buylded they the cytye of Dauid with a greate and thicke wal, and with mighty towres and made it a strong holde for theym.
Besyde all thys they set wicked people and vngodly men to kepe it, stored it with weapons and vitayles: gathe red the goodes of Jerusalē, and layed them vp there: thus became it a the-uylshe castell. And thys was done to laye wayte for the people that wente into the Sanctuary, and for the cruel destruction of Israel. Thus they shed innocent bloode on euerye syde of the sanctuarye, and defiled it. In so much that the cytesēs were fayne to depart, and the citye became habitacion of straungers, being desolate of her owne sede, for her owne natiues were fayne Tob. 2.a to leaue her. ✱ Her Sanctuarye was Jmos. 8b cleane wasted, her holye dayes were turned into mourning, her sabbothes were had in derision, and her honoure brought to naught. Loke howe great her glory was afore, so great was her E confusion, and her ioye turned into so-2mat. 6.a rowe. ✱ Antiochus also the kyng sent out a commission vnto all hys kynge-dome, that all the people shoulde be one. Then they lefte euerye man hys law, and all the Hethen agreed to the commaundement of king Antiochus.
Yea, many of the Israelites consented therunto, offerynge vnto Idoles, and defilyng the Sabboth. So the kynge Antiochus sent his messaūgers with his commission vnto Jerusalem, and to all the cityes of Juda: that they should folowe the lawes of the Heathen, and forbad ether burnt offeryng, meateofferyng or peaceofferynge to be made in the temple of God, and that there shold no Sabboth nor hye feast day be kept: but commaunded, that the Sanctuary and the holy people of Is rael should be defiled. He cōmaunded also, that there should be set vp other aulters, temples and Idoles: to offer vp swynes flesh, and other vncleane beastes: that men shoulde leaue their chyldren vncircumcised, to defile their soules with all maner of vnclennesse and abhominacions: that they myght so forget the law, and chaunge all the holy ordinaunces of GOD: and that whosoeuer wolde not do accordynge to the commaundemente of kyng An-tiochus, shoulde suffer death. In lyke maner commaunded he throwout all his realme, and set rulers ouer the peo ple, for to compell theym to do these thynges, commaundinge the cyties of

Juda

Juda to doo sacrifyce vnto Idolles. Then went the people vnto the heathen by heapes, forsoke the lawe of the Lorde, and commytted muche euyll in the lande: yea, and chaced oute the secrete Israelites, which had hyd them selues in corners and preuye places. The.xv. day of the moneth Casleu, in the.C.xlv. yere, set kynge Antiochus an abhominable Idoll of desolacion vpon the alter of God, and they buylded alters throughout all the cities of Juda on euery syde, before the doores of the houses, and in the stretes: wher Jer.36.c they brent incense, and dyd sacrifyce. And as for the bokes of the lawe of God, they brente them in the fire, and rente theym in peces. Whatsoeuer he was that had a boke of the Testamēt of the Lorde found by hym, yea, whosoeuer endeuoured hymselfe to keepe the lawe of the Lord, the kynges commaundemente was, that they shoulde put hym to deathe. And thorowe hys auctoritie they executed these thinges G euery moneth, vpon the people of Is- 2mat.9 b rael that were founde in the cityes. The fyue and twenty day of the moneth what time as they dyd sacrifyce vppon the aulter (whiche stode in the steade of the aulter of the Lorde) accordynge to the commaundemente of kyng Antiochus, they putte certayne wemen to deathe, whiche had caused their chyldren to be circumcised: Not only that, but they hanged vp the children by the neckes thorowout al their houses, and slewe the circumcysed of them. Yet were ther many of the people of Israell, whiche determined in them selues, that they wolde not eate vncleane thynges: but chose rather to suffer deathe, then to be defyled with vncleane meates. So because they wolde not breake the blessed lawe of God, they were cruellye slayne. And this great tirānny increased very sore vpon the people of Israell.

IN those dayes there dyd stand vp one Mathathias the sōne of Simeon the Priest (out of the kynred of Joaris) from Jerusalem, and dwelt vpon the mount of Modin, and had fiue sonnes: John called Goddis: Simeon called Thasi: Judas otherwyse called Machabeus: Eleazar other wise called Abaron, & Jonathas, whose surname was Apphus. These sawe the euyll that was done among the people of Juda and Jerusalem. And Mathathias sayd: wo is me, alas that euer I was borne: to se this misery of my people, and the pitcous destruction of the holy citye: and thus to syt so styll, it beyng delyuered into the 1mat.2.b handes of the enemyes. Her Sanctuary is come into the power of strangers: her temple is, as it were a man that hathe loste hys good name: Her precious ornamentes are caryed away captyue. Her olde men are slayne in the stretes, and her yong men are fallen thorow the sword of the enemies. What people is it, that hath not some possession in her kyngdome? Or who hath not gotten some of her spoyles? All her glorye is taken awaye. She was a free woman, and now she is become an handemayden. Beholde our Sanctuary, our bewtye and honoure is wasted awaye, and defyled by the Gentyles. What helpeth it vs then to lyue? And Mathathias rent his clothes, he and his sonnes, and put sackclothe vpon them, and mourned very B sore. Then came the menne thyther which were sent of kyng Antiochus, to compell suche as were fled into the citye of Modin, for to do sacrifyce and to bourne incense vnto Idols, and to forsake the lawe of God. So many of the people of Israell consented & enclined vnto theym, but Mathathias and his sonnes remayned stedfaste. Then spake the commyssyoners of kynge Antiochus, and sayde vnto Mathathias: Thou arte a noble man, of hye reputacion and greate in thys Citye, hauynge fayre chyldren and brethren. Come thou therfore fyrste, and fulfyll the kynges commaundement, lyke as all the Hethen haue done, yea, and the men of Juda, and suche as remayne at Jerusalem: so shalte thou and thy childzen be in the kinges fauour, and enriched wyth golde, siluer and great rewards. Mathathias answered and spake wyth a loude voyce: Thoughe al nations obey the king Antiochus, and fal away euery man from keping of ꝑ law of their fathers: though they consente to hys commaundementes, yet wyl I and my sonnes and my bzethzen, not fal from the lawe of our fa-Acts. 5.b thers, God forbydde we shoulde, that swer not good for vs. that we should forsake the lawe and ordinaunces of God, and to agre vnto the commaundement of king Antiochus. Therfore we will do no suche sacrifyce, neyther Pro. 4.c. breake the statutes of oure lawe, ne to go another way. And when he hadde spoken these wordes, there came one of the Jewes, whiche openlye in the syght of al, dyd sacrifyce vnto the I-C dols vppon the aulter in the Citye of Modin, accordyng to the kinges commaundement. whē Mathathias saw this, it greued him at the hert, so that hys raynes shooke wythall, and hys wzathe kindled for verye zeale of the lawe. Wyth that, he start vp, and kylled the Jewe beside the aulter: Yea, and slewe the kynges commissioner, that compelled him to do sacrifice, and destroyed the aulter at the same time:

Nu. 25.b such a zeale hadde he vnto the lawe of God. like as Phinches did vnto Zā-bzi the sonne of Salomi. And Mathathyas cryed wyth a loude voyce thorough the citie, saying: Whoso euer is feruent in the law, & will kepe the co-2 mac. 5.c uenant, let him folowe mee. So hee and hys sonnes fled in the mountaynes, and lefte al that euer they had in the citye. Many other godlye men also departed into the wildernes wyth their childzen, their wyues and their cattel, and remayned there: for the ty-
D ranny increased sore vpon thē. Nowe when the kinges seruauntes, and the host, which was at Jerusalem in the citye of Dauid, hearde that certayne men had broken the kinges commaundement, and were gone their waye to the wildernes into secrete places, and that there were many departed after them: they folowed vpon thē, to fyght agaynst theym in the Sabboth daye, and sayde: Wil ye yet rebel? Gette you hence, and do the commaundement of kinge Antiochus and yee shal liue. Iosu. 1.c.
They answered: We wil not go forth neyther wil we do the kinges commaundement, to defyle the Sabbothe day. Then beganne they to fyghte agaynst theym, neuertheleſſe they gaue them none other answere, nether cast they one stone at them, nor made fasse their preuy places, but sayd: we wyll dye al in oure innocencye, heauen and earth shal testify wyth vs that ye put vs to deathe wzongfully. Thus they fought agaynst theim vpon the Sabboth, and slewe both men and cattell, their wyues and their childzen, to the number of a thousande people. When Mathathias and hys frendes hearde thys, they mourned for theym ryghte sore, and saide one to another: If so be that we al dooe as our bzethzen haue done, and fyght not for oure liues and for the lawes agaynste the heathen: then shal they the sooner rote vs oute of the earth. So they concluded amōg them selues at the same tyme, saying: what soeuer hee bee that commeth to make battaile with vs vpon the Sabboth day, we will fyght against hym, E and not dye al, as oure bzethzen that were murthered so haynously. Upon this cam the Synagoge of the Jewes vnto them strong men of Israell, all such as were feruent in the law. And al they that were fled for persecution came to helpe theym, and to stande by them. In so much that they gathered an hoste of men: and slue the wycked doers in their gelousye: and the vngodlye menne in their wzath. Some of the wycked fledde vnto the Heathen, and escaped. Thus Mathathyas and hys frendes wente aboute, and destroyed the aulters, and cyzcumcysed the chyldzenne, that hadde not yet receiued cyzcumcision: as manye as they founde wythin the costes of Israell: and folowed myghtelye vppon the chyldzenne of pryde,

and this act prospered in their hands: In so much, that they kept the law against the power of the Gentiles and the kynges, and gaue not ouer theyr dominion vnto wicked doers. After this, when tyme drewe on fast, that F Mathathias should dye, he said vnto his sonnes: Nowe is pryde and persecution increased, now is the time of destruction and wrathfull displesure, wherfore (O my sonnes) be feruent in the law, and leopard your lyues for the Testament of the fathers: & cal to remembrance what actes our fathers dyd in theyr tyme, so shall ye receaue great honour & an euerlastyng name.

The. iii. Chapter.

A Jos. ca. 8 9, lib. 12. Anti.

THen stode vp Judas Machabeus in his fathers steade, and all hys brethren healped hym: and so dydde all they that helde with his father, & fought with cherefulnes for Israell. So Judas gate his people great honour: He put on a brestplate as a Gyant, and arayed hymself with hys harnesse, and defended the hoste with his swearde. In hys acts hee was lyke a Lyon, and as a Lyons whealpe roaryng at hys praye. * He Ps. 101. was an ennemye to the wycked, and hunted theym oute: * and brent vppe 2. Mac. 8. those that vexed hys people. So that hys ennemies fledde for feare of hym, and all the workers of vngodlyneslie were put to trouble: suche lucke and prosperitie was in hys hande. Thys grieued dyuers Kynges: but Jacob was greately reioyced thorough hys Actes, and he gatte hym selfe a greate name for euer. He went thorough the Cities of Juda, destroyenge the vngodly out of theym, tournynge awaye the wrathe frome Israell, and receauynge suche as were oppressed: And the fame of hym went vnto the vttermoste parte of the earthe. Then Appollonius (a prynce of Syria) gathered a myghtye greate hooste of the Heathen, and oute of Samaria, to fight fyght agaynst Israell. Whiche when Judas perceyued, he wente forthe to mete him, fought with him, slewe him, and a great multitude with him, the remnant fled, & he toke their substance. Judas also toke Appollonius owne swearde, and fought with it all his lyfe long. Now when Seron (an other prince of Syria) heard say, that Judas had gathered vnto him the cōgregation and church of the faithfull, he sayd: I wyll get me a name and a praise thoroughout the realme: For I wyll go fyght with Judas, and them that are with hym, as many as haue despised the kynges commandement. So he made him redy, and there went with hym a great myghtie host of the vngodly, to stand by hym, and to be auenged of the children of Israel. And when they came nye vnto Bethoron, Judas went forth against them with a small companye. And whenne hys people sawe suche a great hoste before them, they sayde vnto Judas: Howe are we able (beyng so fewe) to fyghte agaynst so greate a multitude, and so 1.re.14.c strong, seeynge we bee so weary, and haue fasted all this daye? * But Judas sayde: It is a smalle matter for manye to be ouercomme wyth fewe:

2.Pa.25 yea, there is no difference to the God of heauen, to delyuer by a great multitude, or by a small company: * for the victorie of the battell standeth not in the multitude of the hoost, but the C strength commeth from heauen. Behold, they comme agaynste vs with a presumptuous and proude multitude, to destroye vs, oure wyues, and oure children, and to robbe vs. But wee wyll fyght for our lyues, and for oure lawes, and the Lord hymselfe shall destroy them before our face: therfore be not ye afrayde of them. As soone as he had spoken these woordes, he lept sodeynly vpon theim. Thus was Seron smitten, and his host put to flight, and Judas folowed vppon theim beyond Bethoron vnto the playn field: where there were slayne eighte hundreth men of theim, & the residue fled into the land of the Philistins. Then all the heathen on euery syde were afrayde for Judas and hys brethern: so that the rumour of him came vnto the D kynges eares: for all the Gentyles coulde telle of the warres of Judas. So when king Antiochus herd these tydinges, he was angry in his mynd: wherefore, he sent forthe, and gathered an hooste of hys wholle Realme, verye stronge Armyes: And opened hys treasourye, and gaue his hooste a yeares wages in hande, commaundynge theym to bee readye at all tymes. Neuerthelesse, when he sawe that there was not moneye ynoughe in hys treasouryes, and that thorow the dyscorde and persecution, whyche he made in the lande (to putte downe the lawes that hadde bene of olde tymes, hys customes and Tributes of the lande were mynyshed: He feared that he was not hable for to beare the costes and charges any longer, nor to haue suche gyftes, to geue so lyberallye as hee dydde afore, more then the kynges that were before him. Wherfore, hee was heauye in hys mynde, 1.Mac.6 and thoughte * to goe into Perside, for to take Tributes of the Land, and soo to gather muche money. Soo hee lefte Lysias (a noble man of the kynges bloudde) to ouersee the kynges busynesses, frome the water of Euphrates, vnto the borders of Egypt: and to keepe well hys sonne Antiochus, till he cam̄e again. Moreouer, G he gaue hym halfe of his hooste, and Elephantes, commytted vnto hym euerye thynge of hys mynde, concernynge those whyche dweite in Juda and Jerusalem: that hee should sende oute an armye agaynste theym, to destroye, and to roote oute the power of Israelle, and the remnaunte of Jerusalem: to putte oute theyr memorye all from that place, to set strangers for to inhabyte all theyr quarters, and to parte theyr lande amonge them: Thus the kynge tooke

1mat.8.d wente thorowe the hye countreyes. And Lisias chose vnto him Ptolomy the sone of Dozimmus, Nicanor and Gorgias mighty men, and the kinges frendes. These he sent with .xl. thousand fotemen, and .vii. thousand horsemen, for to go into the lande of Juda, and to destroy it, as the king cõmaunded. So they went forth withal their power, and camme to Emaus into a playne fielde. When the marchauntes heard the rumoure of them, they and their seruauntes toke very much syluer and golde, for to bye the chyldren of Israel to be their bondmen: There came vnto theym also yet moo men of warre on euery syde, out of Siria and from the Palestines. Now when Judas and hys brethren sawe that trouble increased, and that the hoste drewe nye vnto their borders, considerynge the kynges woordes whiche he commaũded vnto the people: namely, that they should vterly wast and destroye them. They sayde one to another: Let vs redresse the decay of our people, let vs fyghte for oure folke, and for oure Sanctuary. Then the congregacion were sone ready gathered to fighte, to 1mat.1.d praye, and to make supplicacion vnto God for mercy and grace. As for Jerusalem it laye voyde, and was as it had bene a wildernes. There wente no man in, nor out at it, and the sanctuarye was troden downe. The aleauntes kept the castell, there was the habitacion of the Heathen. The mirth of Jacob was taken awaye, the pype and the harpe was gone from among them. The Israelites gathered them together, and came to Malpha before 1Re.7.b Jerusalem: for in Malpha was the place where they prayed before tyme in Israell. So they fasted that daye and put sackeclothes vpon them, caste asshes vpon theyr heades, rente their clothes, and layde forth the bookes of the law (wherout the hethen sought the lykenesse of their ymages) and brought the prestes ornamentes, the Num.6b firstlynges and the tithes. They sette there also the abstayners (which had fulfylled theyr dayes) before God, and cryed with a loud voyce toward heauen, saying: What shall we do with these? and whither shal we cary them G away? For thy Sanctuary is troden downe and defyled, thy Prestes are come to heauynesse and dyshonoure: and behold, the Heithen ar come together for to destroy vs. Thou knowest what thinges they ymagin against vs. Howe may we stand before them, except thou (O God) bee oure helpe? They blewe oute the trompette also with a loude voyce. Then Judas ordeyned captaynes ouer the people: ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fifty, and ouer ten. But as for such as buylded them houses, maryed wiues, planted theym vyneyardes, and those that were fearefull: he commaunded them euery man to go home agayne, accordyng to the lawe. So the hoste remoued, and pitched vpon the southsyde of Emmaus. And Judas sayde: Arme youre selues, be stronge (O my chyldren) make you readye agaynst to morowe in the mornyng, that ye maye fight with these people, whiche are agreed together to destroye vs and our sanctuary. Better is it for vs to dye in battell, then to see our people & our sanctuarye in suche a myserable case. Neuertheles, as thy will is in heauen, so be it.

Mat.6.b Luk.11.a

The.iiij. Chapter.

THen toke Gorgias fyue thousand mẽ of fote, and a thousand of the best horsemen, and remoued by nyghte, to come nye where the Jewes hoste laye, and soo to slaye them sodaynely. Nowe the men that kepte the castell, were the conueyers of theim. Then arose Judas to smyte the chyefe and pryncypall of the kynges Hooste at Emmaus, for the armye was not yet come together. In the meane season came Gorgias by nyghte into Judas tentes: and when he founde no manne there, hee sought theym in the mountaynes, and thought they had bene fled awaye because of hym. But when it was day,

Judas

Judas shewed him selfe in the fyelde wyth thre thousand men only, which had neyther harnesse nor swerdes to theyr myndes. But on the other syde, they sawe ꝑ the hethen were myghty and wel harnessed, and theyr horsmen about them, and al these well experte in feates of warre. Then sayde Judas to the men that were wyth hym: Feare not ye the multitude of theym, bee not afrayde of their violente runninge: remember howe oure fathers Exo. 14.f were delyuered in the red sea, when Pharao folowed vppon them wyth a greate hoste. Euen so lette vs also crye nowe towarde heauen: and the Lorde shal haue mercy vpon vs, and remember the couenaunt of our fathers, yea, and destroye thys hoste before our face
B thys daye: And al the Heathen shall knowe that it is God hym selfe, which delyuereth and saueth Israel. Then the heathen lyfte vppe their eyes: and when they sawe that they wer commyng agaynste them, they went oute of their tentes into the battaile: and they that were wyth Judas, blewe 2mac.7.d vp the trompettes. ✱ So they buckled together, and the heathen were discōfited and fled ouer the playne fyelde: but the hinmost of them wer slain, for they folowed vpon thē vnto Assaremoth, and into the feldes of Idumea towarde Azot and Jamnia: so that there were slaine of them vpon a thre thousand men. So Judas turned agayne wyth hys hoste, and sayde vnto the people: Bee not greedye of the spoiles, we haue yet a battel to fight: for Gorgias and hys hoste are here by vs in the mountaynes, but stande yee faste agaynst our enemyes, and ouercome them, then maye ye safelye take the spoyles. As Judas was speking C these wordes, beholde there appeared one parte of them vpon the mounte. But whan Gorgias sawe that they of hys partye wer fled, and the tentes brente vppe (for by the smoke, they myght vnderstand what was done) they perceauing thys, wer berye sore afrayd: and when they sawe also that Judas and hys hoste were in the feld ready to strike battaile, they fled euerychone into the land of the Heathen. So Judas tourned agayne to spoile the tentes, where they gat much gold and siluer precious stones, purple and great riches. Thus they went home, and song a psalme of thankesgeuing, and praysed God in heauen: ✱ for he is Psa. 107 gracious, and hys mercy endureth for euer. And so Israel had a great victorye in that day. Nowe al the heathen that escaped, came and tolde Lisiase-uerye thynge as it happened. Wherefore Lisias was sore afraide, and greued in hys mynd, because Israell had not gotten suche myschefortune as hee woulde they shoulde, neyther as the king commaunded. The nexte yeare folowing, gathered Lisias thre score thousand chosen men of fote, and fiue thousand horsemen, to fight agaynste them. So they came into Iewry, and D pytched their tentes at Beehoron, where Judas came agaynste theym wyth ten thousande men. And when he sawe so great and myghty an hoste he made hys prayer and sayd: Blessed be thou (O Sauioure of Israell) hoste of the heathen into the hande of Jonathas (the sonne of Saule) and of hys weapon bearer. Put this hoste nowe into the hande of thy people of Israell, and lette them be confounded in their multitude and horse menne. Make theym afrayde, and dyscomforte the boldenes of their strengthe, that they may be moued through their destruction. Caste theym downe thorough ꝑ swerd of thy louers, thē shall al they ꝑ knowe thy name, prayse the with thankesgeuing. So they stroke the battaile, and there were slayne of Lysias hoste fyue thousande men. Thē Lysias seyng the discomfityng of hys mē, and the manlynes of the Iewes, how they were ready eyther to liue or to dye lyke men. He went vnto Antiochye to choose out men of warre: that when they were gathered together, they myght come agayn into Iewry.

Then

Then layd Judas and hys brethren: Behold, our ennemyes are discomfyted: let vs now go vp, to clense and to repayre the Sanctuary. • Upon thys all the hoste gathered them together, and wēt vp into mount Sion. Now when they sawe the Sanctuary layd wast, the alter defyled, the dores brent vp, the shrubbes growyng in the courtes, like as in a wood, or vpon mountaynes, yea, and that the prieستes Celis were broken downe: They rent their clothes, made greate lamentacion, cast ashes vppon their heades, fell downe flat to the ground, made a great noyse with the trompets, and cryed toward heauen. Then Judas appoynted certayn men to fight against those which were in the castell tyll they had clensed the Sanctuarye. So he chose Prieستes that were vndefiled, such as had pleasure in the lawe of God: and they clensed the Sanctuary, and bare out the defyled stones into an vnclean place. And for so much as the auiter of burntofferynges was vnhalowed, he toke aduisement, what he myghte do withall: so he thought it was beste to destroy it (lest it shoulde happen to do them anye shame) for the heathen had defyled it, and therefore they brake it downe. As for the stoones, they layed theym vp vpon the mountayne vp the house in a conuenient place: tyll there came a prophet, to shewe, what shold be done with theym. • So they toke whole stones accordyng to the lawe, and buylded a newe auiter, such one as was before, and made vp the Sanctuary within and without, and halowed the house and the courtes. They made newe ornamentes, and brought the candlestycke, the auiter of incense, and the table into the temple. The incense layed they vppon the auiter, and lyghted the lampes which were vppon the candlestycke, that they myght burne in the temple. They sette the shewebreade vpon the table, and hanged vp the vayle, and set vp the temple, as it was afore. • And vppon the xxv. daye of the .ix. moneth, whiche is called the moneth of Casleu, in the C.xlviii. yeare, they rose betymes in the mornynge for to doo sacrifyce (accordynge to the lawe) vpon the newe burnt offeryng auiter that they hadde made: after the time and seasō that the Heathen had defiled it. The same day was it set vp agayne, wyth songes, pypes, harpes and cymbales. And all the people fell vpon their faces, worshyppyng and thankynge the God of heauen, whiche had geuen theym the victorye. • So they kept the dedicacion of the auiter .viii. dayes, offerynge burnt sacrifyces and thankofferynges with gladnes. They deckt the temple also with crownes & shyldes of gold, and halowed the portes and celles and hanged dores vpon them. Thus there was very greate gladnes amonge the people, because the blasphemye of the Heathen was put awaye. So Judas and hys brethren with the whole congregacion of Israell, ordeyned, • that the tyme of the dedicacion of the auiter should be kept in hys season from yere to yere, by the space of .viii. dayes, from the .xxv. day of the moneth Casleu, with mirthe and gladnes. And at the same tyme buylded they vppe the mounte Sion, wyth hye walles and strong towres round about: leaste the Gentyles shoulde come and treade it downe, as they dyd afore. Therfore Judas set men of warre in it, to kepe it: and made it stronge, for to defende Bethsura: that the people might haue a refuge agaynst the Edomites.

IT happened also, that when the Heathen round about herd, howe that the auiter and the Sanctuary were set vp in their olde estate: it displeased them very sore, wherfore they thought to destroye the generacion of Jacob that was amonge them: In so muche that they beganne to slaye and to persecute certayne of the people. • Then Judas foughte agaynst the chyldren of Esau in Idumea, and agaynst those whiche were at Arabachane (for they dwelt round about the Iſraelites) Wher he ſlewe and ſpoyled a greate multitude of theym. Yee thought alſo vpon the malice and vnfaythfulnes of the chyldren of Bean, howe they were a ſnare and ſtop vnto the people, and howe they layed wayt for them in the hye waye: wherfore he ſhut theym vp in two towers, & came vnto them, deſtroyed theym vtterlye and brente vp their towers, with all that were in them. Afterward went he agaynſte the chyldren of Ammon, wherof he found a mighty power and a great multitude of people, with Timothy theyr captayne. So he ſtroue manye battayles with them, whyche were deſtroied before him. And when he had ſlayne theym, he wanne Gazer the Citye, with the townes belongyng thereto, and ſo tourned agayne into Iewrye. The Heathen alſo in Galaad gathered theym together, agaynſte the Iſraelites, that were in their quarters, to ſlaye them: but they fled to the caſtell of Datheman, and ſente letters vnto Judas and his brethren, ſayinge: The Heathen are gathered agaynſte vs on euerye ſyde, to deſtroy vs, and nowe they make them redy for to come, & lay ſege to ỹ caſtel, whervnto we are fled, and Timothe is the captayne of their hooſte: come therfore, and delyuer vs oute of their handes: for there is a great multitude of vs ſlayne already. Yea and our brethren that were at Tubin are ſlayne and deſtroyed (well nye a thouſande men) and their wyues, their chyldren and their goodes haue the enemyes led away captiue. Whyle theſe letters were yet a reading, beholde, ther came other meſſaungers from Galile, with rente clothes: whiche tolde euen the ſame tydynges, and ſayde, that they of Ptolomays, of Tyrus and of Sidon were gathered agaynſt them, and that all Galilee was filled with enemyes to deſtroy Iſrael. 1.mac 8 c When Judas and the people hearde thys, they gathered together (a greate congregacion) to deuyſe, what they myght do for their brethren, that were in trouble and beſieged of their enemyes. And Judas ſayde vnto Simon his brother: chooſe thee out certayn men, & go deliuer thy brethren in Galilee: As for me and my brother Jonathas, we will go into Galaadithim. So he lefte Joſephus the ſonne of Zachary, and Azarias to be captaines of the people, & to kepe the remnant of the hoſt in Jury, commaunded them, ſaying: Take the ouerſight of this people, and ſe that ye make no warre againſt ỹ heathen, vntil the time that we come agayn. And vnto Simon he gaue iii. thouſand men for to go into Galile, but Judas hym ſelf had eyghte thouſande in Galaadithim. C Then went Simon into Galile, and ſtroke dyuers battayls with ỹ Hethen: whom he diſcomfited, & folowed vpon them vnto the port of Ptolomais. And there were ſlayne of the Heathen almoſte .iii. thouſande men. So he toke the ſpoyles of them, and caried away the Iſraelites, that were in Galilee and Arbatis, with theyr wiues, their chyldren and al that they had, and brought them into Iewrye with greate gladneſſe. Judas Machabeus alſo and hys brother Jonathas went ouer Jordan, and trauayled .iii. dayes iourney in the wylderne: Wher the Nebuthees met them, and receaued them louyngly, and told them euerye thyng that had happened vnto their brethren in Galaadithim and how that many of them were beſieged in Barala, Boſor, Alimis, Caſphor, Mageth and Carnaim (all theſe are ſtrong walled and Mighty great cityes) and that they were kept in other cityes of Galaad alſo: and to morowe they are appoynted to bryng their hooſte vnto theſe cytyes, to take them, and to wynne them in one day. So Judas and hys hooſte turned in all the haſte in the wyldernes toward Boſor, and wanne the cytye, ſlewe all the males with the ſwearde, toke all their goodes, and ſet fyre vpon the cytye. And in the nyght they toke their iourney from thence, and came to the caſtell: And betymes in the morynyng when they loked vppe, beholde, there was an innumerable people bearyng ladders and other instrumentes of warre, to take the castell and to ouercome them. When Judas sawe that the battayle began, and that the noyse thereof went vp and range into the heauen, and that there was so greate a crye in the cytye: He sayde vnto hys hoste: fyghte thys daye for your brethren. And so came behinde their enemyes in three companyes, and blewe vp the trompettes, and cryed in their prayer to God. But as soone as Timothes hoost perceaued that Machabeus was there, they fled from hym, and the other slewe theym downe ryghte sore: so that there were kylled of theym the same daye, almoste eyght thousande men. Then departed Judas vnto Maspha, laied siege vnto it, and wanne it, slewe all the males in it, spoyled it, and set fyre vpon it. Frō thence went hee and toke Casbon, Mageth, Bosor, and the other cytyes in Galaad. After this gathered Timothy another hoost, which pytched their tentes before Raphon beyonde the water. Judas also sent to spye the hooste, and they brought hym worde agayne, sayinge: All the heathen that be rounde about vs, are gathered vnto hym, and the hoaste is verye great: Yea they haue hyred the Arabians to helpe theym, and haue pytched theyr tentes beyond the water, and are ready to com and fyght against thee. So Judas went out to mete them. And Timothy sayde vnto the captaynes of the hoaste: when Judas and hys hooste come nye the ryuer: if he go ouer fyrst, we shal not be able to withstande him: for whye? he will be to stronge for vs. But yf he dare not comme ouer, soo that he e pytche hys tente beyonde the water: then will we go ouer, for we shall be stronge ynough agaynst hym. Nowe as soone as Judas came to the ryuer, he appoynted certayne scrybes of the people, and commaunded them, sayinge: see that ye leaue none behynde vppon this syde of the ryuer, but lette euerye man come to the battell. So he went fyrste ouer vnto them and hys people after him. And all the heathen were dyscomfited before him, and let theyr weapons fal, and ranne into the temple that was at Carnaim. Which cytie Judas wanne, and brent the temple with al that were in it: So Carnaim was subdued, and myghte not withstand Judas. Then Judas gathered al the Israelytes that were in Galaadythim, from the least vnto the mooste, with their wyues and theyr childzen (a verye greate hoste) for to come into the lande of Israel. * So they cam vnto Ephraim, which was a myghtye, great and stronge Citye, and laye in their way. For they could not go by it, nether of the ryght hand, nor of the lefte, but must go throughe it. Neuertheless, they that were in the citie, woulde not let them go thorough, but walled vp the portes with stones. And Judas sente vnto theym with peaceable woordes, saying: Let vs passe through your lande, that wee may go into our owne country: there shall no body do you harme, we will but only go through on fote. But they woulde not let them in. Wherfore Judas commaunded a proclamation to be made throughout the hoste, that euerye man should kepe his order: and so they did their best lyke valeant mē. And Judas besyeged the citye al that day and al that nighte, and so wan it: where they slew as many as wer males, & destroid the city, and spoiled it, and went through al the city ouer thē that wer slain. Then went they ouer Jordane into the plaine felde before Bethsā. And Judas helped those for ward ỳ came behind, & gaue the peple good exhortation al the way through til they wer come into the land of Juda. Thus they went vp vnto ỳ moūt Sion, where they offred with mirth & thankesgeuing: because there wer none of thē slain, but cam home again peceably. Now what time as Judas and Jonathas wer in the land of Galaad, & Simon their brother in Galile before Ptolomais. Thē Josephus the son of Zachary, and Asarias ỳ captaynes, hearynge of the actes that

Then came Gorgias and hys menne oute of the citie, to fight againſt them: Joſephus alſo and Aſarias wer chaſed vnto the borders of Jewrye, and there were ſlaine that daye of the people of Iſrael. xi. But the menne that were wyth Judas, were greatly commended in the ſyght of all Iſrael and all heathen, whereſoeuer their name was heard vpon, and the people came vnto them, byddinge thē welcome. After thys wente Judas forth wyth hys brethren, and foughte agaynſte the childzen of Eſau, in the lande that lyeth towarde the South, where he wanne the city of Hebzon, and the townes that lye beſide it: and as for the walles and towres rounde about it, he brent them vp. Then remoued hee to go into the lande of the Philiſtines, and went through Samaria. At the ſame time were there many prieſtes ſlayne in the battayle, which wilfully and wythout aduiſement went out for to fyght to get thē honor. And whē Judas cam to Azot

NOw when king Antiochus trauayled through the hyghe countreis, he herde that Elimas in Perſia was a noble and plenteous Citye in ſiluer and golde, and that there was in it a very ryche temple: where as were clothes, cote armoures, and ſhieldes of golde, whyche Alexander the ſon of Philyp kinge of Macedonia (that raygned fyrſte in Greke land) hadde lefte behind hym. Wherfore he went aboute to take the citye and to ſpoyle it, but he was not able: for the citezins were warned of it, and foughte wyth him. And ſo hee fled and departed wyth great heauynes, and came agayne into Babylon. Moreouer there camme one whyche broughte hym tydinges in Perſide, land of Juda, were dryuen awaye, and howe that Liſias wente forth fyrſte wyth a great power, and was dryuen awaye of the Jewes: howe that they had won the victory, and gotten gret goodes out of the hoſts that periſhed, howe they had brokendowne the ab- 1 mac. 1. f homination, * which he ſet vp vppon the altare at Jeruſalem, and fenced the Sanctuary wyth hye walles, like B as it was afore, yea; and Bethſura hys Citye alſo. So it chaunced, that when the king had hearde theſe wordes, he was afraid and greued verye ſore. Wherfore he laied him downe vpon hys bed, and fel ſicke for verye ſorowe: and al becauſe it had not happened as he had deuyſed. And there continued he longe, for hys griefe was euer more and more, ſo that he ſawe he muſt nedes dye. Therfore he ſent for hys frendes, and ſayde vnto them, the ſlepe is gone fro mine eies, for the very ſorowe and vexation of hearte that I haue. For when I conſider in my mynd the great aduerſitye that I am come vnto, and the floods of heauines which I am come in, where as afore tyme I was ſo mery, and ſo greatlye lett vp (by reaſon of my power.) Agayne, conſideringe the euyll that I haue done at Jeruſalem, from whēce I toke al the riches of gold and ſiluer that were in it, and ſent to fetch away the inhabitours of Jewrye without any reaſon why: I knowe that theſe troubles are com vpon me for ỹ ſame cauſe. And beholde, I muſte die wyth gret ſorow in a ſtrange land. Thē called he for one Philippe a frend of his, whom he made ruler of hys realme, & hys

gaue hym the crowne, his roabe, and hys ringe: that hee shoulde take hys soonne Antiochus vnto him, and bryngе him vppe till hee mighte reygne hym selfe. * So the Kynge Antiochus died there, in the hundred foztye and nyne yeare. When Lisias knewe that the Kinge was deade, hee ordeined Antiochus hys soonne, * whome hee hadde brought vppe, to reygne in his fathers steade, and called him Eupatoz. Nowe they that were in the castell at Jerusalem kept in the Jewes rounde aboute the Sanctuarye, and soughte euer still to dooe theym harme foz the strengthenings of the Heathen. Wherefoze Judas thoughte to destroye theym, and called al the people together, that they might laye sege vnto theym. So they camme together in the hundred and fifty yere, and beseged thē, layng forth their ordinance & instrumentes of war. Then certaine of them ẏ wer beseged, went forth, vnto whō some vngodly men of Israel toined thē selues also, & wēt vnto the king, saying: How long wil it be, oz thou punish, & auenge oure brethren? Wee haue euer ben minded to do thy father seruice, to walke in his statutes, and to obey his cōmaundementes: Therfoze our people fel from vs, and whersoeuer they found any of vs, they slewe thē: (and spoiled our inheritance) and thei haue not only medled with vs, but with al our countreys: and behold this day are they besieging the castel at Jerusalem, * and haue made vp the stronge holde in Bethsura: And yf thou doest not preuente them ryghtē soone, they will do moze then these, & thou shalte not be able to ouercome them. When ẏ kyng herd this, he was very angry, & called al hys frendes the captaines of hys footemen, and of al hys horsemen together. He hired mē of war also out of other realmes and oute of the Iles of ẏ sea, which cam vnto him. And the number of hys hoste was an hundred thousand foote men, and xx. thousande horsemen, and twoe and thyrty Elephantes well exercysed to battayle.

* These came through Idumea vnto Bethsura, and beseged it a longe season, and made dyuerse instrumentes of warre agaynste it. But the Jewes camme oute, and brente theym, and foughte lyke menne. Then departed Judas from the castell at Jerusalem, and remoued the hooste towardes Bethzacharan ouer againste the kynges armye. So the Kynge arose before the daye, and broughte the power of hys hooste into the waye to Bethzacaran, where the hoostes made theym readye to the battayle, blowynge the trompettes. And to prouoke the Elephauntes to fyghte, they shewed theym the sappe of redde grapes and molberyes. And dyuyded the Elephauntes amonge the hoost, so that by euerye Elephante, there stoode a thousande menne well harnessed, and helmettes of steele vppon theyr heades: Yea vnto euerye one of the Elephantes also, were ordeyned fyue hundred horsemenne of the beste, whyche wayted of the Elephante, goynge where so euer hee wente, and departed not from hym. Euerye Elephante was couered wyth a stronge tower of woodde, where vppon were twoe and thyrtye valeauut menne, wyth weapons to fyghte, and wythin was a manne of Inde to rule the beaste. As for the remnaunte of the horsemenne, hee sette theym vppon bothe the sydes in twoe partes wyth trompettes, to prouoke the hoste, and to steere vppe suche as were slowe in the armye. And when the Sunne shone vppon their shieldes of golde, and steele, the mountaynes glystered agayne at theym, and were as bryghte as the creslettes of fyre. The Kynges hooste also was deuyded, one parte vppon the hye mountaynes, the other lowe benethe: so they wente on takynge good heede, and keeppynge theyr order. And all they that dwelte in the lande, were afrayed at the noise of their hooste, when the multitude wente foorthe, and when the weaponnes smote together, for the hooste was both greate and myghtye. Judas alſo and hys hoſte entred into the battell, and ſlewe .vi C. men of the kynges armye. Nowe when Eleaſar the ſonne of Saura dyd ſee one of the Elephantes decked with the kynges badge, and was a more goodlye beaſte then the other: he thought the kynge ſhoulde be vpon him, and ieopard him ſelfe to delyuer hys people, and to get him a perpetuall name. Wherefore he ranne with a corage vnto the Elephante in the myddeſt of the hooſte, ſmytynge them downe of bothe the ſydes, and ſlewe many about hym. So wente he to the Elephantes fete, and gat hym vnder hym, and ſlewe hym: then fell the Elephante downe vpon him, and there he dyed. Judas alſo and his men ſeyng the power of the kyng and the mighty violence of hys hooſte, departed from them. And the kynges armye wente vp againſt them toward Jeruſalem, and pytched their tents in Jewry beſyde mount Sion. Moreouer, the kyng toke truce with

2.mac.11 when they came oute of the citie (be-
and. 15.d cauſe they had no vitayles within,

Where he made all maner ordeynaunce, handebowes, fyry dartes, rackettes to caſte ſtones, ſcorpions to ſhoote arowes, and ſlinges. The Jewes alſo made ordeynaunce againſte theirs, and fought a long ſeaſon. But in the city there were no vitayles, for it was the ſeuenth yere of the warres and thoſe Heathen that remayned in Jewry, had eaten vp all their ſtoare. And in the Sanctuarye were fewe men left, for the hunger came ſo vpon them, that they were ſcatered abroade euery man to his owne place. So whē 2.mac.6b Liſias heard that Philippe (* whom Antiochus the kynge whyle he was yet lyuyng, had ordeyned to bryng vp Antiochus his ſonne, that he myghte be kynge) was come againe oute of Perſia and Media wyth the kynges hooſte, and thoughte to obtayne the kyngdome. He gat hym to the kynge G in all the haſte, and to the captayns of the hoſte, and ſayd: we decreaſe dayly, and our vitayles are but ſmal: Againe the place that we laye ſiege vnto, is verye ſtronge, and it were our part to ſee for the realme. Let vs agree with theſe men, and take truce with them, and wyth all their people, and grant them to lyue after their lawe: as they dyd afore. For they be greued, and do all theſe thynges againſt vs, becauſe we haue deſpiſed their lawe. So the kyng and the prynces were contente, and ſent vnto them to make peace, and they receaued it. Nowe when the kynge and the prynces had made an othe vnto them, they came oute of the caſtel, and the kyng went vp to mount Sion. But when he ſawe that the place was well fenſed, he brake the othe that he had made, and commaunded to deſtroye the wall round about. Then departed he in all the haſte, and returned vnto Antioche, where he found Philip hauing dominion of the citie. So he foughte againſt him, and toke the citie againe into his handes.

In the .Cli. yere came Demetrius A the ſonne of Seleucus frome the citye of Rome with a ſmall compayne of men, vnto a cytye of the ſea coaſt, and there he bare rule. And it chaunced, that when he came to Antioche the citie of his progenitours, his hooſte toke Antiochus and Liſias to bringe them vnto hym. But when it was tolde him, he ſayde: let me not ſee their faces: So the hoſte put them to death. Now when Demetrius was ſet vpon the trone of hys kyngdome, there came vnto him wycked and vngodly men of Iſraell: whoſe captayne was Alcimus, that wolde haue bene made hye prieſte. Theſe men accuſed the people of Iſraell vnto the kynge, ſayinge: Judas and his brethren haue ſlayne thy frendes, and dryuen vs out of our owne land. Wherefore, ſend nowe ſome man (to whom thou geueſt credence) that he maye go and ſee all the

Bachides a frende of his, which was a man of greate power in the realme (beyond the great water) and fayth-full vnto the kyng: and sent him to see the destruction that Judas had done.
And as for the wycked Alcimus, he made him hie priest, and commaunded hym to be auenged of the chyldren of Israell. So they rode vp, and came with a greate hooste into the lande of Juda, sendyng messangers to Judas and his brethren, and speakynge vnto them with peaceable wordes: but vn-

And first the Assideans required peace of them, saying: Alcimus the priest is them into a great pyt. Then committed he the land vnto Alcimus, and left men of warre with him to helpe him, the kyng. And thus Alcimus defended hys hye prycsthoode, and all suche as vexed Israel, resorted vnto hym: In lytes: He went forth round about all the borders of Iewrye, and punyshed those vnfaithfull rennagates, so that Beſydes that it was tolde hym of their battayles, and noble actes which they dyd in Galacia, how they had conque red them, and brought theym vnder trybute and what great thinges they had done in Spaine: howe that with their wyſdome and ſober behauoure they had won the mynes of ſyluer and golde that are there, and obtayned all the land, with other places farre from them: howe they had diſcomfited and ſlayne downe the kynges that came vpon them, from the vttermaſte parte of the earthe, and howe other people gaue them trybute euery yere. Howe they had ſlayne and ouercome Philip and Perſes kynges of Cethim, and other mo (in battayle) whiche hadde brought theyr ordynaunce agaynſte theym: howe they diſcomfyted greate Antiochus kyng of Aſia (that would nedes fyghte wyth theym) haupnge an hundred and twentye Elephantes wyth horſemenne, charettes, and a ledde awaye theyr wynes and chylderne captyue, spoyled theym, tooke possession of theyr lande, destroyed theyr stronge holdes, and subdewed them to be theyr bondemen, vnto this daye. ¶ Moreouer, howe that as for other kyngedomes and Iles whyche sometyme withstode theym, they destroyed theim, and brought theim vnder their dominion. But helped euer theyr owne frendes, and those that were confederate with them, and conquered kingdoms both farre and nye, and that whosoeuer hearde of theyr renowne, was afrayde of theym: for whome they woulde helpe to theyr kingdomes, those raigned: and whom it lyked not theym to raygne, they put hym downe. And howe they were come to greate preemynence, hauyng no kynge amonge theym, neyther any man clothed in purple, to be magnified there thorowe, but had ordeyned theym selues a Parliamente, wherin there satte three hundred and twentye Senatoures dayly vppon the counsayle, to dyspatche euer the busynes of the people, and to keepe good order. And howe that euery yere they choose a Mayre, to haue the gouernaunce of all their lande, to whome D euerye man was obediente, and there was neyther euyl wyll nor dissention among them. Then Judas chose Eupolemus the sonne of Jacob, and Jason the sonne of Eleazar, and sente theym vnto Rome for to make frendshyppe and a bonde of loue wyth theym, that they myghte take frome theym the bondage of the Grekes, for the Jewes sawe that the Greekes woulde subdue the kyngdome of Israell. So they wente vnto Rome (a verye greate iourneye) and came into the Parleamente, and sayde: Judas Machabeus wyth hys brethren and the people of the Jewes hathe sente vs vnto you, to make a bond of frendshyppe and peace wyth you, and ye to note vs as youre louers and frendes. And the matter pleased the Romains right well, wherefore it was written by of the which the Romaynes made a wrytynge in Tables of brasse, and sente it to Jerusalem: that they myghte haue by theym a memoriall of the same peace and bonde of frendeshyppe after thys manner: God saue the Romaynes, and the people of the Jewes both by sea and by lande, and kepe the swearde and ennemye from them for euermore. If there comme eyther anye warre vppon the Romaines for any of their frendes throughoute all their dompynyon, the people of the Jewes shall healpe theym (as the tyme requyreth) and that wyth all their heartes. Also they shall neyther gene nor sende vnto theyr ennemyes victualles, weapones, money, nor shyppes: but fulfyll thys charge at the Romaynes pleasure, and take nothynge from theym therefore. Agayne, yf the people of the Jewes happen eyther to haue warre, the Romaynes shall stande by theym wyth a good wyll, accordinge as the tyme wyl suffer. Neyther shal they gene vnto the Jewes enemyes, victualles weapons, money nor shyppes. Thus are the Romaines contente to do, and E shall fulfyll their charge wythoute anye dysceyte. Accordynge to these articles, the Romaynes made the bonde wyth the Jewes. Nowe after these articles (sayde they) yf anye of the partyes wyll putte to theym, or take anye thynge from theym: they shall doo it wyth the consente of bothe: and whatsoeuer they adde vnto theym, or take from theym, it shall stande faste. And as touching the euil that Demetrius hath done vnto the Jewes, we haue written vnto hym, sayinge: Wherefore layest thou thy heauy yoke vppon the Jewes our frendes and louers? Yf they make any complaint of the agayn vnto vs, we shall defende theym, and fyghte wyth thee, by sea and by lande.

A 1.mac.7.f IN the meane ſeaſon when Demetrius herde that • Nicanor and hys hooſte was ſlayne in the fyelde, hee proceaded further to ſende Bachides and Alcymus agayne into Jewrye, and thoſe that wer in the right wing of hys hooſte with theym. So they wente forthe by the waye that leadeth vnto Galgala, and pytched their tentes before Meſaloth, whiche is in Arbelis, and wanne the Citie, and ſlewe muche people. In the fyrſte Moneth of the hundred fyftye and two yeare, they brought their hooſte to Jeruſalem, and roſe vp, and cam to Berea, with twenty thouſande fote men, and two thouſande horſemenne. Nowe Judas had pytched hys tente at Layſa, with three thouſande choſen menne. And when they ſawe the multitude of the other armye that it was ſo great, they were ſore afrayde, and manye conueyed theym ſelues oute of the hooſte. In ſo muche that there abode no mo of theym but eight hundred menne. When Judas ſawe that his hooſte fayled hym, and that he muſte needes fyghte: it brake hys hearte, that he had no tyme to gather theym together: wherefore the manne was in extreame trouble. Neuertheleſſe, he ſayde vnto theim that remayned with hym. Up, let vs go againſt oure ennemyes, peraduenture wee ſhalbe able to fyght with them. But they woulde haue ſtopped hym, ſayinge: wee ſhall not bee able, therefore lette vs nowe ſaue oure lyues, and tourne agayne to oure brethren, and then will we fyghte againſt theym, B for we are here but fewe. And Judas ſayde: God forbydde that we ſhoulde flee from theym. Wherefore, yf oure tyme be come, let vs dye manfully for our brethren, and let vs not ſtayn our honor. Then the hoſt remoued out of the tentes and ſtode againſte theym. The horſemenne are deuyded in two partes: the ſlynge caſters and archers wente before the hooſte, and all the myghtye menne were formoſt in the fyeld. Bachides hys ſelfe was in the ryght wynge of the battayle, and the hoſte drewe nie in twoe partes, and blewe the trompettes. They of Judas ſyde blewe the trompettes alſo, and the earth ſhoke at the noiſe of the hooſtes, and they ſtrooke a felde from the morowe tyll nighte. And when Judas ſaw that Bachides hoſte was ſtrogeſt of the right ſide, he toke with hym all the hardye menne, and brake the ryghte wynge of their order, and folowed vpon theym vnto the mount Azot. Nowe when they whych wer of the lefte wynge, ſawe that the ryghte ſyde was diſconfite, they perſecuted Judas and theym that were with hym. Then was there a ſore battayle, for manye were ſlaine and wounded of bothe the partyes. Judas alſo hym ſelfe was killed, and the remnaunte fledde. So Jonathas and Simon tooke Judas their brother, and buryed him in hys fathers ſepulchre in the Cytye of Modyn. And all the people of Iſraell made greate lamentation for hym, and mourned longe, ſayinge: Alas, that thys worthye ſhoulde be ſlayne, whyche delyuered the people of Iſraell. As for other thynges pertayninge to the battayles of Judas, the noble actes that he didde and of hys worthyneſſe: they are not wrytten, for they were beryemanye. • And after the deathe of Judas, wycked menne came vp in all the coaſtes of Iſraell, and there aroſe all ſuche as worke vngodlyneſſe. In thoſe dayes was there a great dearth in the lande, and al the countrye gaue ouer theymſelues, and theirs, vnto Bachides. So Bachides choſe wicked menne, and made theym Lordes in the lande. Theſe ſoughte oute, and made ſearche for Judas frendes, and brought them vnto Bachides which auenged hym ſelfe vppon theim with greate diſpyte. And there camme ſo greate trouble in Iſraell, as was not ſence the tyme that no prophete was ſene there. Then came al Judas frendes together, and ſaid vnto Jonathas For ſo muche as thy brother Judas is deade, there is none lyke hym to go forth against our ennemies against Bachides, and such as are aduersaries vnto our people. wherfore, this day we chose thee for hym, to bee oure Prince and Captayne, to order oure battayle. And Jonathas tooke the gouernance vpon hym at the same tyme, and ruled in steede of hys brother Judas. whenne Bachides gat knowledge thereof, he soughte for to slea him. But Jonathas and Simon his brother, perceaupnge that, fledde into the wilderneſſe of Thecua with all theyr companye, and pitched theyr tentes by the water poole of Aſphar. whyche whenne Bachides vnderstoode, he camme ouer Jordane wyth all hys hooſte vppon the Sabbothe daye. Nowe hadde Jonathas sente hys brother John (a Captayne of the people) to praye hys frendes, the. D Nabuthites, that they woulde lende theym theyr ordynaunce, for they had muche. Soo the chylderne of Jambri camme out of Madaba, and tooke John and all that he hadde, and went their way withall. Then came word vnto Jonathas and Symon his brother, that the chylderne of Jambri, made a great maryage, and broughte the bryde from Madaba wyth greate pompe: For she was daughter to one of the nobleſte prynces of Canaan. Wherefore, they remembred the blood of John theyr brother, and went vp, and hydde theym selues, vnder the shadowe of the mountayne. So they lyfte vppe theyr eyes, and loked, and beholde, there was muche a doo, and greatte repayre: for the bridegroome camme forthe, and hys frendes, and hys brethren, mette them wyth tympanyes, instrumentes of muſyke, and many weapons. Thenne Jonathas, and they that were wyth hym, roaſe out of theyr lurkynge places agaynſt them, and ſlewe many of theym. As for the remnant, they fledde into the mountaynes, and they tooke all theyr substance. Thus the maryage was turned to mournyng, and the noyſe of theyr melodye, into lamentation. And soo whenne they hadde auenged the bloode of theyr brother, they tourned agayne vnto Jordane. Bachides herynge thys, came vnto the very border of Jordane wyth a greate power vppon the Sabboth daye. And Jonathas sayde to hys companye: Lette vs gette vppe, and fyght agaynſt our ennemies: For it standethe not wyth vs to daye, as in tyme paſte: Behold, oure ennempes are in oure waye, the water of Jordane vppon the one syde of vs, with bankes, fennes, and woddes of the other syde, so that there is noo place for vs to departe vnto. * Wherefore, crye nowe vnto Heauen, that ye may be deliuered from the power of youre ennempes. Soo they strooke the battayle. And Jonathas stretched oute hys handes, to smyte Bachydes, but he fledde backwarde. Then Jonathas, and they that were wyth hym, leapte into Jordane, and swymmed ouer Jordane vnto hym, and there were slayne of Bacchydes syde that daye a thousande men. Therfore Bachydes wyth hys hoſte tourned agayne to Jeruſalem, and buylte vppe the Caſtelles and strong holdes that were in Jewry, Jericho, Emaus, Bethoron, Bethell, Thamnata, Phara, and Topo, wyth hyghe walles, wyth portes, and wyth lockes, and sette menne to keepe theym, that they myght vſe theyr malyce vpon Iſrael. He walled vp the Citye Bethſura, Gazarah, and the caſtell of Jeruſalē alſo, & prouyded them with men and vytayles. Hee tooke also the chiefeſt mens sonnes in the countrey for pledges, and putte theym in the Caſtell at Jeruſalem to be kepte. Afterwarde, In the hundred fyftye and three yeare in the seconde moneth, Alcimus commaunded, that the walles of the innermoſte Sanctuary should bee deſtroyed, and the buyldynges of the Prophetes alſoo. And whenne hee beganne to deſtroye theym, the thynges, that hee wente aboute, were hyndered: For he was smytten wyth a palſeye, and hys mouthe shut, so that he couide no more speake, nor noꝛ commaunde anye of hys houſe: concernynge hys buſyneſſe. Thus dyed Alcimus in greate myſerye, at the ſame tyme. And whenne Bachides ſawe that Alcimus was deade, hee tourned agayne to the Kynge, and ſo the lande was in reſt two yeres. Thenne all the vngodlye menne helde a counſayle, ſayenge: Beholde, Jonathas, and hys companye are at eaſe, and dwell wythout care. Wherfoꝛe, lette vs bꝛyng Bachides hither, and hee ſhall take theym all in one nyghte. Soo they wente and gaue Bachydes thys counſaylle, whyche aroſe to comme wyth a greate hoſte, and ſente Letters pꝛyuylye to hys adherentes, whyche were in Jewry, to take Jonathas, and thoſe that were wyth hym, but they myghte not, foꝛ the other had gotten knoweledge of theyꝛ deuyce. And Jonathas tooke fyftye menne of the countreye (whyche were the ryngleaders of theym, and ſlewe theym. Thenne Jonathas and Symon wyth theyꝛ companye departed vnto the Cytie Bethbeſſen, whyche lyethe in the wyldernelſe, and repayꝛed the decaye thereof, and made it ſtronge. Whenne Bachydes knewe thys, hee gathered all hys Hooſte, and ſente woꝛde to theym that were of Jewrye. Thenne camme hee, and layde ſyege to Bethbeſſen, and foughte agaynſte it a longe ſeaſon, and made Inſtrumentes of warre. Nowe Jonathas lefte hys bꝛother Symon in the Cutie, and wente fooꝛthe hym ſelfe into the Countreye, and camme wyth a certayne noumbꝛe, and ſlewe Odares, and hys bꝛetherne, and the chylderne of Phaſeron in theyꝛ Tentes: ſo that he beganne to bee ſtrong, and to increaſe in power. As foꝛ Simon, and hys companye, they wente oute of the Cytie, and bꝛente vppe the Inſtrumentes of warre, and foughte agaynſte Bachydes, and diſcomfyted hym. And Bacchydes was ſoꝛe vexed, becauſe hys counſayle and trauayle was in vayne. Wherefoꝛe hee was wꝛoathe at the wycked menne (that gaue hym counſayle to comme into theyꝛ lande) and ſlewe manye of theym. Thenne purpoſed hee wyth hys companye, to goe awaye into hys owne Countreye: Whereof, whenne Jonathas hadde knowledge, hee ſente Ambaſſadours vnto hym, foꝛ to make peace wythe hym, and that hee ſhoulde delyuer hym hys pꝛyſoners agayne. To the whyche, Bacchides conſented gladlye, and dydde accoꝛdyng to hys deſyre: yea and made an othe, that hee ſhoulde neuer doo hym harme all the dayes of hys lyfe. So he reſtoꝛed vnto hym all the pꝛyſoners that hee had taken oute of the Lande of Juda, and thenne tourned and wente hys way, into hys owne lande, neyther pꝛoceeded hee anye further to come vnto the boꝛders of Juda. Thus Iſraell hadde noo moꝛe warre. And Jonathas dweite at Machemas, and beganne there to gouerne the people, and deſtroyed the vngodlye menne out of Iſraell.

In the hundꝛed and thꝛe ſcoꝛe yeare camme Alexander, the ſoonne of noble Antiochus, and toke Ptholomais, whoſe Cytezens receaued hym, and there hee reygned. Whenne Demetrius hearde thereof, hee gathered an exceedynge greate hooſte, and wente fooꝛthe agaynſte hym to fyghte. Wherefoꝛe Demetrius ſente letters vnto Jonathas, wyth louynge woꝛdes, and pꝛayſed hym greatelye. Foꝛ he ſayde: Wee wyll fyrſte make peace wyth hym, beefoꝛe hee bynde hymſelfe wyth Alexander agaynſte vs: elles hee ſhall remember the euylle that we haue doone agaynſt hym, his bꝛother and hys people. And ſoo hee gaue Jonathas leaue to gather an hooſte, to make weapons, and to bee confederate wyth hym, and cõmanded the pledges that were in the caſtell to bee bee delyuered vnto hym. Then came Jonathas to Jerusalem, and red the letters in the audience of al the people and of theym that were in the castell. And therfore wer they sore afrayd, because they heard, that the king had geuen hym licence to gather an hoost. Thus were the pledges deliuered vnto Jonathas, wyche restored them to their elders. Jonathas also dwelt at Jerusalem, and began to buylde vp, & to repayre the citie: commaundyng the workmen to wall it, and the mounte Syon round about with free stone, to be a strong hold, and so they dyd. As for the Heathen, that were in the Castelles, whiche Bachydes had made vp, they fled: so that euery mā left the B place, and went into his own coūtrey Only at Bethsura remained certaine of the Jewes, which had forsaken the law and commandements of God, for Bethsura was their refuge. Nowe when kyng Alexander herd of the promises that Demetrius had made vnto Jonathas, and when it was tolde hym of the battailes and noble actes, whyche he and his brethren had done, and of the greate trauailes, that they had taken, he said: where shal we fynd suche a man? Well, we will make him our frend, & he confederate with him. Upō this, he wrote a letter vnto him, with these wordes: King Alexander salueth his brother Jonathas. We haue heard of thee, that thou art a valiaunt man, and mete to be our frend: wherfore, this day we ordeyn thee to be the Hye Priest of thy people, and to bee called the kynges frend. (Upon this, he sent hym a purple clothyng, and a crowne of gold) that thou mayst consyder what is for our profit, and kepe frendshyp toward vs. So in the seuenth moneth of the hundred & three score yeare vpon the solemne feast day of the tabernacles, Jonathas put the holy rayment vpon hym. Then gathered he an host, & made many wepons. Whiche when Demetrius hearde, he was meruailous sory, and sayd: Alas, what haue we don, that Alexāder hath preuented vs in gettynge ỹ frendshyp of the Jewes, for hys owne defence? Yet will I wryte louyngly vnto thē also, yea, and promyse them dignities and rewardes, that they may be of my syde. Wherupon he wrote vnto them these wordes. Kyng Demetrius sendeth gretynge vnto the people of the Jewes: Wheras ye haue kept your couenant towarde vs, and continued in our frendshyp, not enclynyng to oure enemies, we were glad, whē we herd therof. Wherfore, remayne still, and be faythfull to vs: and we shall well recompence you for the thynges that ye haue don on our party: we shal release you of many charges, and geue you rewardes. And nowe I dyscharge you and all the Jewes frome tributes, I forgeue you the customes of salt, and release you of the crowne taxes, of the third part of sede, & half of the fruites of trees which is myne owne dewty. These I leaue for you from this day D forth: so that they shall not be taken of the lande of Juda, nor of the three cytyes which are added therunto out of Samaria and Galile, from thys daye forthe for euermore. Jerusalem also with all thynges belongynge therto, shalbe holy and free, yea the tithes and tributes shall pertayne vnto it. As for the power of the castell whiche is at Jerusalem, I rempt and geue it vnto the hye priest that he may set in it such men, as he shal chose to kepe it. I freely delyuer all the Jewes that are prisoners throughout all my realme: so that euery one of them shalbe fre from paying any tribute, yea, euen of their cattell. All the solempne feastes, Sabbothes, newe moones, the dayes appoynted, the three daies before and after the feast, shalbe free for all the Jewes in my realme: so that in them no man shal haue power to do any thing or to moue any busynes agaynst anye of them in any maner of cause. There shal thirty thousand also of ỹ Jewes be wrytten vp in the kinges host, and haue their wages payed as all other men of warre of the kynges shoulde haue: and of them shalbe ordeined certaine to kepe the kinges strōg holdes:

yea, and ſome of them ſhall be ſet ouer the kynges buſyneſſe, that they maye kaythfully deale with the ſame. The Jewes alſo ſhal haue prynces of their owne, and walke in theyr owne lawes, as the kyng hath commaunded in the land of Juda. And the three cyties that are fallen vnto Jewry, from the countrey of Samaria and Galilee: ſhalbe taken as Jewry, and be vnder one: nether be ſubiect to any ſtrāge Lord, but to the hyghe Prieſt. As for Ptholomais, and the land pertayning therto, I geue it vnto the Sanctuary at Jeruſalem, for the neceſſary expences of the holye thynges. Moreouer, I wyll geue euery yeare fiftene thouſand Sicles of ſyluer out of the kynges checker (whiche pertayneth vnto me) to the worke of the Temple: yea, and looke what remayneth (whyche they that had our matters in hand in tymes paſt haue not payde) the ſame ſhall they geue vnto theym alſo. And beſydes all thys, the fyue thouſande Sicles, whiche they tooke yearely of the rentes of the Sanctuarie, ſhal belonge vnto the Prieſtes, that doo ſeruice. Item, whoſoeuer they be, that flee vnto the temple at Jeruſalem, or within the liberties therof, where as they are fallen into the kinges danger for any maner of buſynes they ſhalbe pardoned, and al the goodes that they haue in my realme, ſhall be free. For the buyldynge alſo and repayrynge of the worke of the Sanctuary, expenſes ſhall bee geuen out of the kynges Checker: Yea, and for the makynge of the walles rounde aboute Jeruſalem, for the breakynge downe of the olde, & for the ſettyng vp of the ſtrong holdes in Jewry, ſhall the coſtes and charges be geuen out of the kynges
1. Ma. 7. Checker. * But when Jonathas & the people heard theſe wordes, they gaue no credence vnto theym, nether receaued theym: for they remembred the great wyckednes that he had done vnto Iſraell, and howe ſore he hadde vexed them. Wherfore, they agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a prince that had delt frendly with theym, & ſo they ſtode by him alway. * Then gathered kyng Alexander a great hoſt, & brought his army againſt Demetrius. So the two kynges ſtroke battaile together, but Demetrius hoſte fledde, and Alexander folowed after, and fell vppon theym. A myghty ſore fielde was it, continuyng tyl the Sun went down and Demetrius was ſlayne the ſame daye. And Alexander ſente Ambaſſadours vnto Ptholomee the kynge of Egypte with theſe wordes, ſayinge: For ſo muche as I am come agayn to my realme, and am ſet in the throne of my progenitours, & haue gotten the dominion, ouercommed Demetrius, conquered the land, and ſtriken a field with hym, ſo that wee haue diſcomfyted bothe hym and hys hooſte, and ſytte in the throne of hys kyngdome. Lette vs nowe make frendſhyppe together, geue me thy daughter to wife: ſo ſhall I bee thy ſonne in lawe, and bothe geue thee rewardes, and her greate dignitie. Ptholomee the kyng gaue aunſwere, ſayinge: Happy bee the daye, wherein thou arte come agayne vnto the lande of thy Progenitoures, and ſette in the throne of theyr kyngdome. As nowe wyll I fulfyll thy wyſhyng: but mete mee at Ptholomais, that we may ſee one an other, & that I may mary my doughter vnto thee, accordyng to thy deſire. So Ptholomee went out of Egypte wyth hys doughter Cleopatra, and came vnto Ptholomais, in the. Clxii. yeare: where kyng Alexander mette hym, and he gaue Alexander his daughter Cleopatra, and maryed them at Ptolomais wt great worſhip, like as ye maner of kyngs is to be. The wrote king Alexāder vnto Jonathas, that he ſhold com & mete him. So he went honorably vnto Ptolomais, and ther he met the two kings, & gaue them great preſentes of golde and ſiluer, & founde fauour in their ſight. And there cams together againſt Jonathas certayne wicked men & vngracious perſons of Iſrael, making complaintes of hym, but the kyng regarded them not. As for Jonathas, the kyng commaunded to take of hys garmentes, & to clothe him in purple: and so they did. Then the kinge appoynted him to sytte by him, and sayde vnto hys princes: Go wyth him into the middest of the Cytye, and make a proclamation, that no man complayne agaynste hym of anye matter, and that noman trouble hym for anye maner of cause. So it happened, that when hys accusers sawe the worshyp whyche was proclaimed of him, and that hee was clothed in purple, they fled everychone. And ỹ king made much of him, wrote him among hys cheefe frendes, made him a Duke, and partaker of hys dominiõ. ✱ Thus Jonathas went agayne to Jerusalẽ, with peace and gladnes. In the .clxb. yere came Demetrius the son of Demetrius from Creta into hys fathers land: wherof when Alexander hearde tel, he was ryght sorye, and returned vnto Antioch. And Demetrius chose Apollonius, (whyche had the gouernance of Celosiria) to be hys captain. So he gathered a great host, and came vnto Jamnia, and sent word vnto Jonathas the hye priest, sayinge: Darest thou wythstand vs thy selfe alone? As for me, I am but laughed to scorn and shamed, bycause thou prouedst thy strength agaynst vs in ỹ mountains. Now therfor, if thou trustest in thyn owne strength, come downe to vs into the playne fielde, and there lette vs proue our strẽgth together: thou shalt find, that I haue bai tant men of war with me, and shalt knowe whome I am, and the other that stand by me. Whych say, that your foote is not able to stand before our face, for thy fathers haue ben twyse chased into their owen land. And now, how wilt thou be able to abyde so great an host of horsemen and fotemen in the fyeld wheras is nether rock, stone nor place to fle vnto? When Jonathas heard the wordes of Appollonius, he was moued in hys minde: wherfore he chose .x. thousand men, and went out of Jerusalẽ, and Simon hys brother met him for to helpe him: And they pitched their tẽtes at Joppa, but the city kept him forth: for Joppa was an hold of Apollonius: Then Jonathas laid siege to it, and they that were in the Cyty, for very feare let him in, and so Jonathas wanne Joppa. Apollonius hearinge of thys, toke three thousand horsemen wyth a great hoste of fote, and wente as thoughe he wouwe go to Azotus, and came immediatly into the playne feide: because he had so many horsmen and put hys truste in them. So Jonathas folowed vppon him to Azotus, and ther they stroke the battel. Now had Appollonius left a thousand horsmen behind them preuely in the tẽtes And when Jonathas knew that such wayte was layde behinde them, they wente round about the enemies host, and shot dartes at the people from the morning to the eueninge. As for Jonathas people, they kepte their order as he had commaunded them, and the enemyes horses were euer laboringe. Then brought Simon forth his host and set them against the fotemen. For the horsemen wer wery already. So he dyscomfited them, and they fledde. And they that were scatred in the feld, gat them to Azotus, and came into the Temple of Dagon their Idoll, that they myghte there saue their lyues. But Jonathas set fyre vpon Azotus and all the Cytyes rounde aboute it, and toke their goodes: ✱ and brente vp the temple of Dagon wyth al theym that were fled into it. Thus were slayn and brent wel nye .viii.M. mẽ, Soo Jonathas remoued the hooste from thence, and broughte theym to Ascalon: where the men of the Cytye came forth, and met hym wyth great worshyp. After thys went Jonathas and hys hooste agayne to Jerusalem, wyth greate substaunce of good. And when kynge Alexander hearde these thynges, he thought to do Jonathas more worshyppe, and sent hym a collar of golde, as the vse is to bee geuen vnto suche as are of the kynges nexte bloode. Hye gaue hym also the Cytye of Acaron (wyth the landes belonging therto in possession.

AND the king of Egipte gathered an hoſte (like the ſand that lieth vpon the ſea ſhore) and many ſhips: & ſente about thrōughe diſceate to obtayne the kingdome of Alexander, and to ioyne it vnto hys owne realme. Upon thys he toke hys iourney into Syrya, and was letten into the Cyties, and men came forth to mete hym: for kyng Alexander had commanded theim ſo to do, becauſe he was hys father in law. Now whē Ptolome entred into any Citie, he left men of war to kepe it, & this he did thrōughout al the cities.

2. Mac. 10. c

And when hee came to Azotus, they ſhewed hym the temple of Dagon, & Azotus that was brente by, with the other things which wer deſtroyed, & dead bodies caſte abrode, & the graues that they had made by the waye ſyde, for ſuche as were ſlaine in the fyelde. And told the king that Jonathas had done al theſe thynges, to thintente they myght get him euil will. But ✠ king ſaid not a word therto. And Jonathas met the king with gret honor at Joppa, where they ſaluted one another, and toke their reſt. So whē Jonathas had gon with the king vnto ✠ water that was called Eleutherus, he turned againe to Jeruſalem. Nowe Ptolomi had gotten the dominion of the cities vnto Seleucia vpon the ſea coaſt, ymagining wicked councels againſt Alexander, and ſente ambaſſatours vnto Demetrius ſaying: Com let vs make a bond betwixt vs, ſo ſhal I geue the my daughter that Alexander hath, and thou ſhalt reygne in thy fathers kingdome. I repente that I gaue Alexander my daughter, for he goeth about to ſley me. And thus he ſlaundred Alexander, becauſe he wold haue had hys realme. Thus he tooke his daughter from him, gaue her vnto Demetrius, and forſoke Alexander ſo ✠ his malice was opēly knowē. And Ptolomi came to Antioch, where he ſet two crownes vpon his owne head, the crowne of Egypt and of Aſia. In the mean ſeaſon was kyng Alexander in Cilicia, for they that dwelt in thoſe places, rebelled againſt him. But whē Alexander herd of this: he cam to war agaynſt hym. So kynge Ptholomye brought foorth hys hoſt, and met hym with a myghty power, and chaſed him awaye. Then fled Alexander into Arabie, ther to be defended, and king Ptolomies honoure increaſed. And Zabdiel the Arabian, ſmote of Alexanders head, and ſent it vnto Ptholome. But the third day after, dyed kyng Ptholomee himſelf: and they whom he had ſette in the ſtrong holdes, were ſlayne of thoſe that were within the Cities. ¶ And Demetrius reigned in the hundred and ſeuen and ſixtie yere. At the ſame tyme gathered Jonathas theim that were in Jewry, to lay ſiege vnto the caſtell, which was at Jeruſalem, and ſo they made many inſtrumentes of warre againſt it. Then went ther certayn vngodly perſons (whiche hated their owne people) vnto king Demetrius, and told him that Jonathas beſeged the caſtel. So when he heard it, he was angry, and immediatly cam vnto Ptholomais, & wrote vnto Jonathas, that he ſhould not lay ſiege to the caſtelle, but come and ſpeake with hym in al the haſt. Neuertheles, whē Jonathas hearde it, he commanded to beſiege it. He choſe alſo certayn of the elders and prieſtes of Iſrael, and put hymſelfe in the perill, and toke wyth hym gold, ſiluer, clothyng, and diuers preſents, and went to Ptolomais vnto the kyng, and found hym gracious. And though certaine vngodly men of hys owne people made complaynte vpon him, yet the king intreated him, like as hys predeceſſoures had done before: and promoted hym in the ſight of all his frendes, confyrmed hym in the hye prieſthode, with all the worſhyp that he had afore, and made hym hys chief frend. Jonathas alſo deſired the kynge, that he would make Jewry free, with the three head cities of Samaria, and the landes pertaynyng therto: Upon this did Jonathas promyſe hym. iii. C. talentes. the kyng consented, and gaue Jonathas wryting of the same, conteyning these wordes: kyng Demetrius sendeth gretyng vnto his brother Jonathas and to the people of the Jewes: we sende you here a copy of the letter whiche we dyd wryte vnto our elder Lasthenus, concernynge you that ye D shoulde knowe it. Kyng Demetrius sendeth gretyng vnto Lasthenus his elder. For the faythfulnes that oure frendes the people of the Jewes kepe vnto vs, and for the louynge kyndnes whiche they beare toward vs: we are determined to do them good. Wherfor we ordayne all the coastes of Jewry with three cityes, Lidda and Ramatha (which are added vnto Jewry frō Samaria) and all the landes pertaynyng therunto, to be freely separated for such as do sacrifyce in Jerusalem: both concernyng the paymentes whiche the kyng toke yearely afore tyme, and the frutes also of the earthe and trees. As for other tithes and tributes that belonged vnto vs, we discharge them therof from this tyme forth. In like maner we graunt vnto them all the customes of salt and crown taxes, whiche were brought vnto vs. And this fredome shal they haue firme and stedfast, from this time forth for euermore. Therfore see that ye make a copye of these our letters, and deliuer it vnto Jonathas: that it maye be kepte vpon the holy mount in a conuement E place. After thys, when Demetrius the kyng sawe that his lande was in reste, and that no resistance was made him: he sent awaye all his hoste, euery man to his owne place, except an armye of straungers, whom he brought from the Iles of the heathen, wherfore all hys fathers hoost had enyll 1 Mac. 12c wyll at hym. ✱ Now was there one Tryphon (that had bene of Alexanders part afore) which when he sawe that all the hoost murmured agaynste Demetrius: he went to Emalcuel the Arabian (that brought vp Antiochus the sonne of Alexander) and laye fore vpon him, to deliuer hym thys yonge Antiochus: that he myghte reygne in his fathers steade. He tolde hym also, what gret euill Demetrius had done and how his men of warre loued him not: and so remayned there a long season. And Jonathas sente vnto kynge Demetrius, to driue them out which were in the castell at Jerusalem, and in the other refuges, for they did Israell greate harme. So Demetrius sente worde vnto Jonathas, sayinge: I will not onely do these thynges for thee and thy people, but at tyme conuenyent I will do both thee and thy people great worshyppe. But nowe F thou shalte doo me a pleasure, if thou wylte send me men to helpe me: for all mine army is gone fro me. So Jonathas sent hym three thousand stronge men vnto Antioche, and they came vn to the kyng, wherfore the kyng was very glad at their cōmyng. But they that wer of the citie (euen an hundred and twenty thousande men) gathered them together, and wolde haue slayne the kynge, which fled vnto his court, and the citezens kept the stretes of the citye, and beganne to fyght. Then the kynge called for the Jewes helpe, whiche came vnto hym all together, and wente abrode thorowe the citye, and slewe the same daye an hundred thousande men: set fyre vpon the citie, gat many spoyles in that day, and delyuered the kyng. So when the citezens sawe that the Jewes had gotten their will of the citye, and themselues dysappoynted of their purpose, they made their supplicacio vnto the king, sayinge: Graunte vs peace, and let the Jewes ceasse from troublyng vs and the citye, and vpon thys they caste away their weapons. Thus thei made peace, and the Jewes gat great worshyp in the syght of the kynge, and in the sight of al that wer in his realme, and were spoken of thorowe out the kyngdom: and so they came agayn to Jerusalē, with great goodes. So the G kynge Demetrius sat in the trone of of his kyngdome, and had peace in his lande: Neuertheles, he dyssembled in all that euer he spake, and withdrewe hym selfe frome Jonathas, neyther rewarded him accordyng to the benefites whiche he had done for hym, but troubled hym verye sore. After thys came Triphon agayne with ponge Antiochus, which reygned and was crowned kyng. Then there gathered vnto him all the men of warre, whom Demetrius had put away: these foght agaynst Demetrius, whiche fled and turned his backe. So Triphon toke the Elephantes, and wan Antioche. And yong Antiochus wrote vnto Jonathas, saying: I confirme thee in thy prestlode, and make thee ruler of. iiij. countreis, that thou mayest be a frend of the kynges. Upon this he sent him golde vessels to be serued in, and gaue him leaue to drinke in golde, to be clothed in purple, and to weare a colar of golde. He made his brother Symon also captayne, from the coastes of Tirus vnto the borders of Egipt. Then Jonathas toke his iourney, and went thorowe the cityes beyond the water of Jordane, and all the men of warre of Siria gathered them vnto him for to helpe him. So he came vnto Ascalon, and they of the citye receaued him honorably, and from thence wente he vnto Gaza, but they wouldе not let him in: wherfore he layed siege vnto it, burnyng vp and spoylyng the places that were about the citie. And the citezens of Gaza submitted thē selues vnto Jonathas, whiche made peace with them, but toke of their sonnes to pledge, sente them to Jerusalem, and went thorow the countrey vnto Damascus. Now when Jonathas herd that Demetrius prynces were come into Cades (whiche is in Galilee) with a great hoost, purposyng to put Demetrius out from medlyng in the realme: he came agaynst thim, and left Simon his brother in the land: whiche came to Bethsura, and layed sege to it a long season, and discomfited thē. So they desyred to haue peace wyth him, which he granted them, & afterward put thē out frō thence, toke the citye & set men to kepe it. And Jonathas with his hoost came to the water of Genesar, and betymes in the morenyng gat them to the playne field of Asor. And beholde, the hoostes of the Heathen met them in the fielde, and layed watch for them in the mountaynes: so that when Jonathas came agaynst them: the other whiche were layed to watche) rose out of their places, and fought, and they that were of Jonathas syde, fled euerye man: and there was not one of them left, except Mathathias the son of Absalomus, and Judas the sonne of Calphi, the captayne of the host. Then Jonathas rent his clothes, layed earth vpon hys head, made his prayer, and turned agayne to them in the field: where they fought together, and he put theym to flighte. Nowe when hys owne men that were fled, sawe this: they turned agayne vnto hym, and helped him to followe vppon all their enemyes vnto their tentes at Cades. So there were slayne of the Heathen the same daye three thousande men, and Jonathas turned agayne to Jerusalem.

JOnathas seeynge that the tyme was mete for hym, chose certayne men and sent them vnto Rome for to stablyshe and to renue the frendeshyp with them. He sente letters also vnto Sparta, and to other places in like maner. So they wēt vnto Rome and entred into the councel, and sayd: Jonathas the hye Priest and the people of the Jewes sente vs vnto you, for to renue the olde frendeshype and bonde of loue: Upon thys the Romaynes gaue them fre passportes, that men should leade them home into the lande of Juda peaceably. And this is the copy of the letters that Jonathas wrote vnto the Spartians. Jonathas the hye Priest with the elders, priests, and other peple of the Jewes sende gretynge vnto the Spartians their brethren. There were letters sente longe a go vnto Onias the hye Priest, from Arius, which then reygned amonge you: that ye are oure brethren, as the wrytinge made there vpon, specifyeth. And Onias entreated the embassadour that was sent honorably rably, and receaued the letters: where in there was mencion made of the B bond of loue and frendshippe. But as for vs, we nede no suche wrytynges: for why? we haue the holy bookes of scrypture in our handes to oure comforte: Neuertheles, we hadde rather sende vnto you, for the renuynge of the brotherhode and frendeshyppe: leaste we shoulde be straunge vnto you: for it is longe sens the tyme that ye sente word vnto vs. Wherfore in the sacrifyces that we offer and other ceremonyes vpon the hye solemne dayes and other, we alway remember you with out ceassynge (lyke as reason is, and as it becommeth vs to thynke vpon our brethren) yea and are ryghte glad of youre prosperous honoure. And though we haue had greate troubles and warres, so that the kynges about vs haue foughtē agaynst vs: yet wold we not be greuous vnto you, nor to other of oure louers and frendes in these warres. For we haue had helpe from heauen, so that we are deliuered and our enemyes subdued. Wherfore we chose Numenius the sonne of Antiochus. and Antipater the sonne of Jason, and sente them vnto the Romaynes, for to renue the olde bonde of frendeshippe and loue with them. We commaunded them also to come vnto you to salute you, and to delyuer you oure letters, concernyng the renouacion of our brotherhode. And nowe ye shall do right well, to geue vs an an-C swere therunto. And this is the copy of the wrytynge, whiche Arius the kynge of Sparta sente vnto Onias. Arius kyng of the Spartians sendeth gretyng vnto Onias the hye prieste. It is foūd in writing, that the Spartians and Jewes are brethren, & come oute of the generacion of Abraham. And now for so much as this is come to our knowledge, ye shall do well, to wryte vnto vs of youre prosperitye. As for vs, we haue written our mind vnto you: Our catell and goodes are yours, and yours ours. These thinges haue we commaunded to be shewed vnto you. When Jonathas heard, that Demetrius princes were come forth to fyghte agaynste him with a greater hoste then afore, he went frō Jerusalem, and mette theym in the land of Hemath, for he gaue them not space to come into hys owne country. And he sente spyes vnto their tentes whyche came agayne and tolde hym, that they were appointed to come vpon hym in the nyght season. Wherefore when the sunne was gone down Jonathas commaunded hys men to watche all the nyghte, and to be redye with wepons for to fyghte: and set watchemenne rounde aboute the D hooste. But when the aduersaryes heard that Jonathas was readye with hys menne to the battaile, they feared, and were afrayde in their hertes, and kindled fyres in their tentes, brake vp, and gat theym awaye. Neuertheles Jonathas and hys companye knewe it not til the morynge, for they sawe the fyres bournynge. Then Jonathas folowed vpon them but hee myghte not ouertake theym, for they were gone ouer the water Eleutherus. So Jonathas departed vnto the Arabians (which were called Zabadei) slewe theym, and tooke theyr goodes. Hee proceaded further also, and cawme vnto Damascus, and went through al that countrye. But Simon hys brother tooke hys iourney, and came to Ascalon & to the next stronge holdes: departyng vnto Joppa, and wanne it. For he heard that they woulde stande of Demetrius partye: wherefore hee sette menne of warre in the Cytye, to keepe it. After thys cawme Jonathas home agayne and called the elders of the people together: and deuysed with them for to buylde vp the stronge holdes in Jewrye, and the walles of Jerusalem, to set vp an hie wal betwixt the castell, and the Cytye, for to separate it from the city, that it myghte bee alone, and that men shoulde neither bie nor sell in it. Upō this they came together for to build vp the citie, & for so much as the wal vpon the broke of the weste syde called Caphetah was fallē down they repaired it: & Simō set vp Adiadah in Sephelah, and made it strong setting yates and lockes vpon it. Now E when Tryphon purposed to reygne 1 mac. 11. in Asia, to be crowned, and to slay the kyng Antiochus: he was afraide that Jonathas would not suffer him, but fyght against him. Wherfore he went about to take Jonathas, and to kyll him. So he departed, and came vnto Bethlan. Thē went Jonathas forth agayns him to the battel wyth forty thousand chosen men, and came vnto Bethlan also. But when Tryphon sawe that Jonathas camme wyth so great an hoste to destroy him, he was afrayde, and therfore he receaued hym honorably, commended him vnto all hys frendes, and gaue him rewardes, and comaunded his men of war to be as obedient vnto him as to him selfe.

And sayde vnto Jonathas: why haste thou caused thys people to take suche trauayle, seing there is no warre betwyxte vs: Therefore send thē home agayne, and chose certayne menne to wayte vpon the, and come thou with me to Ptolomais: for I will geue it thee, wyth the other stronge holdes, menne of warre and their officers. As F for me, I must departe, this is onelye the cause of my comming. Jonathas beleued him, and did as he sayd, putting away hys hoste which wente into the lande of Juda. He kept but .iii.
M. by him, wherof he sent .ii. M. into Galile, and one .M. wente wyth him self. Now as soone as Jonathas entred into Ptolomais, the citezins sparred the gates of the citie, and toke him, and slewe all theym wyth the swearde, that came in wyth hym.
Then sent Tryphon an hoste of fotemen and horsemen into Galile and in to the great playne fyelde, to destroye al Jonathas companye. But when they knewe that Jonathas was taken, and all they slayne that wayted vpon him: they toke counsel together and came forth ready to the battel. So when they whych folowed vpon the, sawe that it was a matter of lyfe, they turned backe againe. As for the other they wente into the lande of Juda peaceably, and bewayled Jonathas, and them that were wyth him ryght sore. And Israel made greate lamentation. Then al the heathen that wer round about them, sought to destroye theim. For they sayd: now we haue they no captayne, nor anye manne to helpe them. Therfore let vs ouercome them and rote out their name from amonge menne.

al my brethren are slaine for Israels 1 mac. 6. sake, and I am lefte alone. And nowe let not me spare myne owne lyfe in any maner of trouble, for I am no better then my brethren, but will auenge my people and the Sanctuarye, oure childzen and our wynes: for al the hea then are gathered together, to destroy vs of verye malice. At these wordes the hertes of the people wer kindled to gether, so that they cried with a loude voyce, saying: Thou shalt be our captayne in steade of Judas and Jonathas thy brethren, order thou our battel, and whatsoeuer thou commaundest vs, we shal do it. So he gathered all the men of warre, making hast to fy-G nish al the walles of Jerusalē, which he made stronge round aboute. Then sente he Jonathas the son of Absalomus wyth a freshe hoste vnto Joppa, which draue them oute that were in the castel, and remayned there hym self. Tryphon also remoued from Ptolomais wyth a greate armye to come in to the land of Juda, and Jonathas with him in ward. And Simon pitched hys tentes at Addus before the playne fyelde. But when Tryphon knew

knewe that Simon stode vp in stead of his brother Jonathas, and that he wolde warre against him: he sente messaungers vnto him, saying: Wher as we haue kepte Jonathas thy brother, it is for mony that he is owyng in the kinges accompte, concernynge the busines that he had in hand. Wher fore send nowe an. C. talentes of syluer and hys two sonnes for suertye, that when he is letten forth, he shall not forsake vs: and we shall send hym agayne. Neuertheiesse Simon knew that hee dyssembled in hys woordes: yet commaunded he the mony and chil dren to be deliuered vnto hym: leaste he shoulde be the greater ennempe agaynste the people of Israel: and say, because he sent him not the mony and the children: therefore is Jonathas dead. So Simon sente him the chyldren and an hundreth talentes, but he dyssembled, and would not let Jonathas go. Afterwarde came Triphon into the land to destroye it, and went round about vp the waye that leadeth vnto Ador. But whereseuer they went, thyther went Simon and hys hoste also. Nowe they that were in the castel, sent messangers vnto Triphon, that he should make hast to com by the wildernes, and to send thē victualles. And Triphon made readye all his horsemenne, to come that same nyghte. Neuertheles it was a verye greate snowe, so that hee came not in Galaadithim. And when he drew nie Baschama, he slue Jonathas and his sonnes there, and then tourned for to go home into hys owne lande. Then sent Simon for to fette hys brothers dead coarse, and buryed it in Modyn hys fathers Citye. So al Israel bewayled hym with great lamentation and mourned for him very longe. And Simon made vppon the sepulchre of hys father and hys brethren, a buylding hye to loke vnto, of free stone behynde and before, and set vp seuen pillers one againste another (for his father, his mother, and four brethren) & set gret pillers round about & armes vpon them for a perpetuall memory, & carued ships beside the armes: that they myght be sene of men saylyng in the sea. Thys sepulchre whiche hee made at Modin, stādeth yet vnto this day. Nowe as Triphon went forth to walke with the yonge Antiochus he slewe hym trayterously, and reygned in his steade, crowned hym selfe kynge of Asia, and dyd muche euyll in the land. Simon also built vp the casteis in Jewrye, makinge thē stronge with hye towres, great walles, portes and lockes, and layed vp vitayles in the stronge holdes. And Symon chose certayne men, and sent theym to kyng Demetrius to desyre hym that he would dyscharge the lande from al bondage, for Triphon had spoyled it very sore. Whervpon Demetrius the kyng answered him, and wrote vnto hym after this maner. Demetrius the kynge sendeth gretinge vnto Simon the hye priest hys frend, with the elders and people of the Jewes. The goldē crowne and precious stone that ye sent vnto vs, haue we receued: and are readye to make a stedfaste peace with you: yea, and to wryte vnto our officers, for to release you, concernyng the thynges wherin we made you fre: and the appointment that wee make with you, shalbe fyrme and stable.

D Jose. ca. 10. li. 13.

The stronge holdes whiche yee haue builded, shalbe your owne. As for any ouersyghte or faute committed vnto this day, we forgiue it: & the crowne taxe that ye oughte vs also. And wher as was any other trybute in Jerusalem, it shal nowe bee no trybute: and loke who are mete among you to be in our courte, let thē be written vp, that there may be peace betwixt vs. Thus the yocke of the Heathen was taken from Israel in the hundred and seuētenth yere. And the people of the Jewes began to wryte in their letters. & and acts on thys maner. In the first yere of Simon the hye priest & prince of the Jewes, In those daies went Simon vnto Gaza, and besieged it round about, where he set vp ordeynance of warre. And wanne a towre which he toke. So they that gat into the towȝer leapte into the citye, which was in a great feare: In ſo much that the people of the citye rente their clothes, and clymed vp vpon the walles with their wyues and childzen, beſechyng Simō to be at one with them, F ſayinge: O reſwarde vs not after our wickednes, but be gracious vnto vs, and we ſhall doo thee ſeruyce. Then Symon foȝ very pitye would fyghte nomoȝe agaynſt them, but put theym out of the citye, and cauſed the houſes (wherin the ymages were) to be clenſed, and ſo entred the citie with Pſalmes of prayſe, geuynge thankes vnto the Lozde. So when he had caſte all abhominacions out of the citie, he ſet ſuch mē in it as kept the laȝw of God, and made the citye ſtronge, and buylded a dwellynge place foȝ hym ſelfe. Now, when they in the caſtel at Jeruſalē wer kept ſo ſtraytly, that they coulde not come foȝthe into the countrey, and myght neyther bye noȝ ſell: they were very hungry, and manye of thē famiſhed vnto death: In ſo much that they beſoughte Symon to be at one with theym, whiche he graunted them. So he put them out frō thence, and clenſed the caſtell from fylthines. And vpon the .xxiii. daye of the ſecond moneth in the .Clxxi. yere they entred into it wyth thankeſgeuyng & bzaunches of palme trees, with harpes, crowdes, ſimbals & lutes, ſinging pſalmes, and ſonges of prayſe vnto God, foȝ that the great enemie of Iſraell was ouercome. And Simon ozdeyned that the ſame day ſholde be kept euery yere in gladneſſe, and made ſtrong the hyll of the temple that was beſyde the caſtell, where he dwelt hym ſelfe wyth his company. Simon alſo perceauing that John hys ſonne was a mightye man of armes, made hym captayne of all the hoſtes, and cauſed him to dwel at Gaza.

A IN .Clxxii. yere gathered ỹ king Demetrius his hoſt, and departed vnto Media, to get hym helpe foȝ to fyghte agaynſte Triphon. Nowe when Arſaces the kyng of Perſia and Media hearde, that Demetrius was entred within hys bozders, he ſente one of his prynces, to take him alyue: and to bzynge hym vnto hym. So he went and ſlew Demetrius hoſt, toke hym ſelfe, bzoughte hym to Arſaces which kept him in warde. And all the lande of Juda was in reſte, ſo longe as Symon lyued: foȝ he ſoughte the wealth of hys people, therefoȝe were they glad to haue hym foȝ their ruler, and to do hym woȝſhyp alwaye. Symon wan the citye of Joppa alſo foȝ an hauen towne, and made it an entraunce into the Jles of the ſea. He B enlarged the bozders of hys people, and conquered them moȝe land: He gathered vp manye of their people that were pryſoners: he had the dominion of Gaza, Bethſura, and the caſtell, which he clenſed from fylthynes, and there was no man that reſiſted hym: So that euery man tilled his ground in peace, the lande of Juda, and the trees gaue their fruite and encreaſe. The elders ſat all in iudgemente, and toke their deuice foȝ the wealth of the lande: the yonge men put on woȝſhyp and harneſſe vpon them. He prouided vitailes foȝ the cities, and made goodlye ſtronge holdes of them: ſo that the fame of hys woȝſhyp was ſpoken of vnto the ende of the woȝlde. - Foȝ he Leu. 26. a made peace thoȝowe out the land, and 3. Re. 3. a Iſraell was full of mirthe and ioye. Euerye man ſat vnder hys vyne and fyggetrees, and there was no man to fraye them away. Ther was none in the lande to fighte agaynſt theym, foȝ then the kynges were ouercome. He helped thoſe that were in aduerſitye among his people, he was diligent to ſee the laȝwe kept: as foȝ ſuch as were vngodlye and wycked, he toke theym away. He ſet vp the Sanctuarye, and encreaſed the holy veſſels of the temple. When the Romaines and Spartians had gotten woȝde, that Jonathas was dead they were ryght ſoȝy. But when they hearde that Symon his bzother was made hye Prieſte in his ſteade, and how he had wonne the land, agayne with the cities init: they

Spartians sente: The Senatours and citezens of Sparta sende greting vnto Simon the great Priest, with the elders, priestes, and the other prople of the Iewes their brethren. Whē your ambassadors that were sent vnto oure people, certifyed vs of youre worshyppe, honoure and prosperous wealthe: we were glad of their commynge, and haue wrytten the errande which they spake before the councell of the people: namely, that Numenius the sonne of Antiochus, and Antipater the sonne of Iason the Iewes ambassadors are come vnto vs, for to renue the olde frendshyppe with vs.
B Upon this the people consented, that the men should be honorably intrea-ted, and that the copy of their errand should be written in the special bokes of the people, for a perpetuall memory vnto the Spartians: yea, and that we should sende a copye of the same vnto Simon the greate priest. After thys, dyd Symon sende Numenius vnto frendshyp with them: whiche when the Romaynes vnderstode, they sayd: what thankes shall we recompence agayne vnto Simon and his childrē?

For he hath stablyshed hys brethren, and ouercome the enemyes of Israel.
Wherefore they graunted hym to be free. And all thys wrote the Iewes in tables of brasse, and nayled it vnto the pyllers vppon the mounte Sion.
The copye of the wrytynge is thys.
Iuguste, The .xviii. daye of the moneth Elul in the .Clxxii. yeare in the thirde yere of Simon the hye Priest, in the great congregacion of the priestes, rulers of the people, and elders of the countrey at Asarame, were these wordes open-E lye declared. For somuch as ther was much war in our lande, therfore Symon the sonne of Mathathias (come of the childrē of Iareb) & his brethrē, put them selues in peryl, and resysted the enemies of their people: that their Sanctuary and lawe myght be main teyned, and did their people gret wor shyp: Ionathas in lyke maner, after he had gouerned hys people, and bene their hie priest, died: & lieth buried beside hys elders. After that wold they enemyes haue troden their holy thin-ges vnder fote, destroied their land, & vtterly walled their sanctuary. Thē Simon withstode them, & fought for his people, spēt much of his owne mo ney, weaponed the valeant men of his people, gaue thē wages, made strong the cities of Iuda, with Bethsura lieth vpō the borders of Iewry (wher the ordeinaunce of their enemies laye sometime) and set Iewes there for to kepe it. Hee made faste Ioppa also F which lyeth vpō the sea, & Gaza dreth vpō Azotus, (where enemies dwelt afore) & there he set Iewes to kepe it: & whatsoeuer was mete for subduing of the aduersaries, laye he therin. Now when people sawe noble actes of Simon, & what wor ship he purposed to do for thē, his god ly behauiour, & faithfulnes, which he kept vnto thē, & how he sought by all waies wealth of his people, because he did al thys, therfore they chose him to be their prince, and hie priest. And in his time they prospered wel by him so that the Heathen were taken oute of their lande: and they whyche were in the Cytye of Dauyd at Ierusalem in the castell (where they wente oute, and defyled all thynges that were aboute the Sanctuarye, and dyd great harme vnto clenclines) and Simon put men of the Iewes in it, for the defence of the land, and Cytye, and set vp the walles of Ierusalem. G And king Demetrius confirmed him in his hie priesthode, made hym hys frend, and did him greate worshyppe.
For hee hearde that the Romaynes called the Iewes their frendes, lo-uers and brethren, howe honorably they receiued Simons ambassadors:

howe the Jewes and prieſtes conſented, that he ſhould be their prince and hye Prieſt perpetually (till God rayſed vp the true prophete) and that he ſhould be their captaine to care for the Sanctuary, and to ſet officers vppon the workes therof, ouer the land: ouer the weapons, ouer the houſes of defence to make prouiſion for the holye thynges, and to be obeyed of euerye man, and all the writynges of the lande to be made in hys name, that he ſholde be clothed in purple and golde, and that it ſholde be lawfull for none of the people nor prieſtes to breke any of theſe thynges, to withſtande hys wordes, nor to call anye congregacion in the land without him: that he ſhold be clothed in purple, and weare a collar of golde: And if there were anye whiche diſobeyed or brake this ordinaunce, that he ſhoulde be puniſhed.

So all the people conſented to alowe Simon, and to do accordyng to theſe wordes: Simon alſo him ſelfe toke it vpon him, and was content to be the hye Prieſt, the captayne and prynce of the Jewes and prieſtes, and to gouerne them all. And they commaunded to make this writynge in tables of braſſe, and faſten it vnto the cõpaſſe of the Sanctuarye in an open place: and laye vp a coppe of the ſame in the treaſury, that Simon and his poſteritye might haue it.

MOreouer kynge Antiochus the ſõne of Demetrius ſent letters from the Iles of the ſea, vnto Simon the hye prieſte and prynce of the Jewes, and to all the people, conteining theſe wordes: Antiochus the kynge ſendeth gretynge vnto Simon the hye prieſt and to the people of the Jewes. For ſo much, as certayne wicked men haue gotten the kyngdome of oure progenitours, I am purpoſed to chalenge the realme agayne, and to reſtore it to the olde eſtate. Wherefore, I haue gathered a great hoſte and made ſhyppes of war, that I may go thorowe the countrey, and be auenged of them whiche haue deſtroyed our land, and waſted many cityes in my realme. And therefore now I make the free alſo from all the tributes, wherof all kynges my progenitours haue diſcharged thee: and from other cuſtomes (wherfrom they haue releaſed thee) whatſoeuer they be: yea, I geue thee leaue to ſmite money of thyne owne within thy lande. As for Jeruſalem, I will that it be holye and free: and all the weapons and houſes of defẽce, which thou haſt buylded, and kepeſt in thyne handes, ſhalbe thyne. Where as any thynge is or ſhall be owynge vnto the kynge, I forgeue it thee, from this tyme forthe for euermore. And when we haue obtayned our kingdome, we ſhall do the thy people and the temple great worſhyp: ſo that your honour ſhalbe knowen thorowout the whole world. In the.C.lxxiii. yeare went Antiochus into his fathers land, and all the men of warre came together vnto hym, ſo that fewe were left with Triphon. So the king Antiochus folowed vpon him, but he fled vnto Dora, whiche lyeth by the ſea ſyde: for he ſawe that there was myſchefe cõmyng vnto him, and that his hoſt had forſaken him. Then came Antiochus vnto Dora with an.C. and twenty thouſande men of armes vpon foote, and eyghte thouſand horſemen. So he compaſſed the citye round about, and the ſhippes came by the ſea. Thus they vexed the city by land and by water, in ſo much that they ſuffered noman to go in nor out. In the meane ſeaſon came Numenius (and they that had bene with hym) from the citye of Rome, hauyng letters wrytten vnto the kynges and prouinces, wherein were conteyned theſe wordes: Lucius the mayre of Rome ſendeth gretynge vnto Ptolomy the kyng. The Imbaſſadoures of the Jewes our frendes beynge ſente from Simon the hye prieſt, and from the people of the Jewes, came vnto vs for to renewe the old frendſhyp and bond of loue, & brought a ſhild of gold weying a thouſande pounde, whyche we were content to receaue of them.

wherfore we thoght it good to write vnto the kynges and prouinces, to do them no harme, nor to take parte agaynste theym, their cityes nor countries, neither to mayntayne their enemyes agaynst them. If there be anye wycked persons therefore fled frome their countrey vnto you, deliuer them vnto Symon the hye priest, that he may punishe them accordyng to their owne lawe. The same wordes wrote the Romaynes also vnto Demetrius the kynge, to Attalus, Araba, Arsaces and to all regions: as Sanlanes, to them of Sparta, Delo, Mido, Sidon Caria, Samos, Pamphilia, Licia, Alicarnassum, and to the Rhodes, to Faselis, Coo, Sida, Arado, Gortina, Gnydum, to Cipres and Cyren. And of euery letter they sent a copy to Symon the hie priest, and to the people of D the Iewes. So Antiochus the kyng brought his hooste vnto Doza the seconde tyme to take it: where he made diuerse ordinaunce of warre, and kept Cryphon in, that he shoulde not come forth. Then sente Simon to Antiochus two thousande chosen men to helpe hym with golde, syluer and other pleteous geare: Neuertheles, he would not receaue them, but brake all the couenaunt whiche he made with Symon afore, and withdrewe hym selfe from hym. He sente Athenobius also a frende of hys vnto Simon, for to reason with him, saying: Ye withholde fro me Joppa and Gaza (with the castell that is at Jerusalem) whiche are cities of my realme, whose borders ye haue destroyed and done great euyll in the land, hauyng the domination in many other places of my kingdome. Wherfore deliuer nowe the cities whiche he haue taken, with the tributes of the places that ye haue rule vppon without the borders of Iewry: Or els geue me fiue hundred talentes of syluer: yea, & for the harme that ye haue doug in the cityes, and for the tributes of the same, other fyue hundred talētes. If no, we shall come E and fyght against you. So Athenobius the kynges frend came to Jerusalem, and when he sawe the great worshyp and honoure of Simon in golde, siluer, and so great plenty of ornamentes: he maruayled and told Simon as the king commaunded him: Then answered Simon, and sayde vnto hym: *As for vs: we haue neither taken other mens landes, nor withholdē thē, Jud.11 C but onely our fathers heritage, which oure enemyes had vnryghteously in possession a certayne time. This heritage of our fathers haue we chalēged in processe of tyme. And wher as thou complaynest concerninge Joppa and Gala, they dyd greate harme to oure people and in our lande, yet wyll we geue an hundred talentes for thē. Neuertheles, Athenobius answered him not one worde, but tourned agayne worthfully vnto the kinge, and told him al these wordes, and the great dignitye of Symon, with al that he had sene, and the kinge was very angrye. In the meane tyme fled Cryphon by shyp vnto Dortholaida. Then ꝑ king made Cendebius captayne of the sea coste, and gaue him an hoste of footemen and horsemenne, commaundinge him to remoue the hoste toward Jewrye, and to build vp the citie of Cedrō to make vp the portes, and to warre agaynste the people of the Iewes. As for the king him selfe: he folowed vpon Cryphon. So Cendebius came vnto Jamnia, and began to vexe the people, to tread doun Jewry, to take the people prisoners, to slay them, and 1.ma.16 *to builde vp Cedron: where he sette horsmen and other men of warre, that they might com forth and go through the stretes of Jewry, like as the king had commaunded him.

Then came John vp from *Ga Ia youth vp vnto thys daye foughten a-gaynſte the ennemyes of Iſraell, and God gaue vs good fortune to deliuer Iſraell ofte tymes. And nowe for ſo much as I am olde, be ye in ſtede of me and my brother, to go forth & fight for oure people and the helpe of God be with you. So he choſe .xx. M. fighting men of the countrye, with horſe men alſo, which went forth agaynſte Cendebius, and reſted at Modin. In the morning they aroſe, and went into the playne fielde: and beholde, a myghty great hoſte came againſt thē, both of footemen and horſemē. Now was ther a water broke betwixt thē, and Iohn remoued the hoſt toward them. And when he ſawe that the people was afrayde to go ouer the water brooke, he went ouer fyrſte him ſelfe: and the men ſeing thys, folowed him.

B Then Iohn ſette hys horſmenne and fotemen in order, the one by the other, for their enemyes horſemen wer very many. But when they bleawe vp the prieſtes trompettes, Cendebius fled with hys hoſte, whereof many were ſlayne, and the remnaunt gat them to their ſtrong holde. Iudas alſo Iohns brother was wounded at the ſame tyme. And Iohn folowed ſtill vppon the ennemies, til hee came to Cedron,

1 mac. 15 * which he builded. The enemies fled alſo vnto the towres that were in the feldes of Azotus, and thoſe did Iohn burne vp. Thus there were ſlaine .xx. thouſand men of them, and Iohn turned agayn peceably into Iewry. And in the feld of Iericho was Ptolomy the ſonne of Abobus made captayne: which becauſe he had aboundance of ſiluer, and gold (for he had maried the daughter of Simon the hie prieſte) waxed proud in his mind, and thoght to conquer the land, ymagining falſehed againſte Simon and hys ſonnes, to deſtroye them. Nowe as Simon was going about throughe the cities that were in the country of Iewry, and caring for theym: he came downe to Iericho with Mathathias & Iudas hys ſonnes, in the .C. lxxvii. yere

January in the .xii. month called Sabat. Thē Ptolomye the ſonne of Abobus receiued theym (but with dyſceate) into a ſtronge houſe of hys, called Doth, C which he had builded, wher he made them a banckette. So when Simon and hys ſonnes were mery and dronken wel, Ptolomy ſtode vp with his men (whom he hadde hyd there) and tooke their wepons, entred into the banket houſe, and ſlew Simon with hys twoe ſonnes, and certayne of hys ſeruauntes. Such great vnfaythfulnes dyd Ptolomye in Iſrael, and recompenced euil for good. Then wrot thys Ptolomy the ſame vnto Kynge Antiochus, requiringe hym, that hee ſhould ſend him an hoſte to helpe him and ſo he ſhould deliuer him the land with the cities & tributes of the ſame. He ſent other men alſo vnto Gaza, for to take Iohn: and wrote vnto the captaines to come to him, and he ſhoulde geue them ſiluer, gold and rewardes. And to Ieruſalem hee ſente other, to D take it, and the Sanctuarye. Thē ranther one before, and told Iohn in Gaza, that hys father and hys brethren were ſlaine, and howe that Ptolomy had ſent to ſlaye hym alſo. Whē Iohn hearde thys, he was ſore abaſhed, and layed handes of them that were come to deſtroye hym, and ſlewe theym, for he knewe, that they went about to kil him. As for other thinges concerning Iohn: of hys warres, of hys noble actes (wherein he behaued him ſelfe manfully) of the buyldyng of walles whiche he made, and other of hys dedes: They are writtē in the chronicles of hys prieſthode, from the tyme forth that he was made hye prieſte after hys father.

THe brethern of the Jewes, which be at Ierusalem, and in the Lande of Jewry, wyshe vnto those brethren of the Jewes, that are those owe out Egypt: good fortune, heith, and peace. GOD be gracious vnto you, and thynke vpon hys couenaunt that hee made wyth Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob his kaythfull seruauntes: Deu. 30. b * and geue you all suche an herte, that ye maye loue and serue hym: yea, and perfourme hys wylle wyth an whole heart, and of a wyllyng mynde. What tyme as Demetrius reigned in the. Clxix. yeare, wee Jewes wrote vnto you in the trouble and violence that came vnto vs. In those yeares, after that Jason departed oute of the holy lande and kyngdome, they brent vp the portes, and shed innocēt blood. In the. Clxxxviii. yere B the people that was at Ierusalē and in Jewry, the counsel and Judas him selfe, sente this wholsome salutation vnto Aristobulus kynge Ptolomees maister, whiche came of the generation of the annointed Priestes: and to the Jewes that were in Egypte: In somuche as God hathe deliuered vs from great perylles, we thanke hym highly: In that we resisted so myghty a king. And why? he brought men out of Perlis by heapes, to fyght against vs, and the holy citie. For as he was in Perlis (namely, the Captain with the great hooste) he perished in the temple of Naneas, beeyng deceyued thorough the deuice of Naneas priestes. For as he was purposed to haue dwelt there, Antiochus and his frendes came thyther, to receyue muche money for a dowrye. Soo when Naneas Priestes hadde laide forthe the money, hee entred wyth a smalle companye, into the compasse of the temple, and so they shutte the Tem- C ple. Nowe whenne Antiochus entred by opening the preuy entrance of the temple, the priestes stoned the captayne to death, hewed them in pieces that were wyth hym, smoote of theyr heades, and threwe them oute. In all thynges God be praysed, which hathe deliuered the wycked into oure handes. For what tyme as oure fathers were ledde away vnto Perlis, the priestes (whyche then fought the honoure of God) tooke the fyre priuyly from the Aulter, and hyd it in a valleye, where as was a deepe dyrye pyt: and therein they kepte it, so that the place was vnknowen vnto euery man. Nowe after many yeares, when it pleased God that Nehemias should be sent frome Leui. 6. g the kynge of Perlis, * hee sente the 10. a. 16 c childers childerne of those Priestes, D (whych had hyd the fyre) to seeke it. And as they tolde vs, they founde no fyre, but thicke water. Then cōmanded he thē to draw it vp, & to bryngе it him, & ỳ offrings withall. Now whē the sacrifices wer laid on & ordred, the prieste Nehemias cōmanded to sprynkle them & the wod with water. whē this was don, & the time com that the Sun shone, which afore was hid in ỳ cloude: ther was a great fyre kindled. In somuche ỳ euery man merueiled.

Now

Nowe all the Prieſtes prayed, while the ſacrifice was a making. Jonathas prayed fyrſte, and the other gaue aunſwer. And Nehemias prayer was after this maner: O Lord God, maker of all thynges, thou fearefull & ſtrong, thou ryghteous and mercyfull, thou that art onely a gracious kyng, onely liberall, onely iuſt. Almyghty and euerlaſtyng, thou that deliuereſt Iſraell from all trouble, thou that haſte choſen the fathers, and halowed them receiue the offring for the whole people of Iſrael, preſerue thyn owen portion, and halowe it, gather thoſe together, that are ſcatterd abroade from vs: deliuer them that are vnder the Heathens bondage, looke vpon them which are deſpiſed and abhorred, that the Hethen may know and ſe, how that thou art our GOD. Punyſhe them that oppreſſe, and proudely put vs to diſhonour. Set thy people agayne in

So when this matter was knowen, it was tolde the kyng of Perſia, that in the place wher the Prieſts which were led away, had hyd fyre, there appered water in the ſtede of fyre: and that Nehemias and hys company had purified the ſacrifices wythall. Then the kynge conſyderyng and pondryng the matter diligently, made hym a Temple to proue the thyng that was done. And when he found it ſo in dede, he gaue the prieſtes many gyftes and dyuers rewardes: yea, he toke them with his owne hande, and gaue them. And Nehemias called the ſame place Nephthar, whiche is as much to ſaye, as a clenſyng: but many men call it Nephi.

Theſe and ſuche other thynges commanded he theim, and exhorted them, that they ſhould not lette the lawe of God go out of their herts. It is writen alſo, howe the Prophete (at the cõmandement of God) charged them to take the tabernacle and the Arke with them: and he went forthe vnto the mountayne, where Moyſes clymed vp, * and ſaw the heritage of god. therfore is it consumed. In like maner Salomon kept the dedication (or halowyng) eight dayes. In the Annotations and writyngs of • Jeremy, wer these thynges put also: and howe hee made a libarie, and howe he gathered out of all countreis, the bookes of the Prophets, of Dauid, the Epistles of the Kynges, and of the prelentes. Euen so Judas also, lyke what he learned by experience of warre, and suche thynges as hath happened vnto vs, he gathered them altogether, and so wee haue them by vs: If ye desyre to haue the same, send som body to fetch them vnto you. Whereas we then are about to celebrate the purification, we haue written vnto you. Therfore, ye shall doo well, yf ye kepe the same dayes.

We hope also, that the God (whyche delyuered hys people, and gaue theim all the heritage, kyngdom, priesthode, and Sanctuarye, • that he promysed theym in the lawe) shall shortly haue mercy vppon vs, and gather vs togyther, from vnder the heauen into hys holy place: for he hath saued vs from great perils, & hath clensed the place. stories and actes (and that because of so dyuers matters) haue vndertaken so to comprehende the storyes: that suche as are dysposed to reade, myght haue pleasure and pastime therin: and that they whiche are diligent in such thynges, myghte the better thinke vpon theym, yea, and that whosoeuer reade theym, myght haue profit therby. Neuertheles, we our selues that haue medled with this matter for the shortening of it, haue taken no small labour, but great diligence, watchinges and trauayle. Lyke as they that make a feaste, wouldo fayne do other menne pleasure: Euen so we also (for many mens sakes) are very wel content to take the labour, where as we maye shortly comprehend, the thinges that other mē haue truly writtē. For hee that buildeth an house a newe, must prouide for many thinges, to the whole building: but he that painteth it afterwarde, seketh but onely what is comly, mete and conuenient to garnish it withal: Euen so do we also in lyke maner. And whyle he that beginneth to wryte a storye for the fyrste, must with his vnderstanding gather the matter together, set hys woordes in order, and diligently seke out of euerye parte. But he that afterwarde wyl shorten it, vseth fewe woordes, and toucheth not the matter at the large: Let this be sufficient for a Prologe, nowe wil we begin to shewe the matter: for it is but a folysh thinge to make a long Prologe, and to be short in the storye it selfe.

Neuertheles, when he might not o-then was chyefe Lorde in Celosyria and Phenices) and told him, that the treasury in Jerusalem was ful of innumerable money, and howe that the common goods (which belonged not vnto the offerynges) were exceading great also: yea, and howe it were possible, that al these myght come vnder the kinges power. Now when Ap-polonius had shewed the king of the monye, as it was tolde him: the kyng called for Heliodorus hys steward, & sent him wyth a commaundement, to bring him the same money. Immedi-atlye Heliodorus tooke hys iourney, but vnder a colour, as though he wold visit the cities, but hys purpose was to fulfil the kyngs pleasure. So when he cam to Jerusalē, & was louingly re ceiued of the hie preist into the city: he tolde what was determined, concerning the money, and shewed the cause of hys comminge: he asked also if it were so in dede. Then the hye preiste told him, that there was suche money layed vp for the vpholding of wydo-wes and fatherlesse chyldren, & howe a certayne of it belonged vnto Hyrca-nus Tobias a noble man: and that of the money (which that wicked Symon had bewrayed) there were foure hundred talentes of siluer, and .ii. hun dred of golde: yea, and that it wer vn-possible for those mennes meaning to be disceaued, that had layed vp their tēple to order thys matter. But there was no small feare throughoute the whole citie. The Priestes fel downe before the aulter in their vestimentes and called vnto heauen vppon hym, * which had made a lawe concerning stuffe geuen to kepe, that they should be safely preserued for such as commit them vnto keping. Then whoso had looked the hye Priestes in the face, it would haue greued hys heart: For hys countenance and the changing of hys colour, declared the inward sorowe of hys mynde. The man was al in heavynesse, and hys bodye in fear: wher-by they that loked vpon him, myghte perceaue the griefe of his herte. The other people also came oute of their houses by heapes vnto the common prayer, beause the place was lyke to comme into confusion. The wemen cam together through ỹ stretes with hearye clothes aboute their brestes.

The virgins also that were kept in, ran to Onias, some in the walles, other some loked out of the windowes yea, they all held vp their handes toward heauen, and prayed. ✠ miserable D thing was it, to loke vpon the commē people, and the hie preist being in such trouble. But thei besought almighty God that the goodes which wer com mitted vnto theym, mighte bee kepte whole, for those that hadde delyuered them vnto their kepinge. Neuerthelesse, the thinge that Heliodorus wes determined to do, that persourmed he in the same place, he himself personal-nally being about the treasurye wyth his men of warre. But the spirite of almyghtye God shewed himselfe openlye, so that all they whiche presumed to obeye Heliodorus, fel through the power of God into a great fearefulnesse and dreade. For there appe- 2 mac. 1

So they toke hym vp (beyng compassed about with great darknes) and bare hym out vpon a biere. Thus he that came with so many runners and men of warre, into the sayd Treasory, was born out where as no myght helpe him: and so the power of God was manyfest and knowen. He laye styll dombe also, by the power of god destitute of all hope, and lyfe. And they praysed the Lorde that he had shewed his power vppon his place and temple, whiche a lyttle afore was full of feare and trouble: and that thorow the reuelation of the almyghty Lorde, it was fylled wyth ioy and gladnesse. Then certain of Heliodorus frendes prayed Onias, that in all the haste he wold call vpon god, to graunt hym his lyfe, whiche was geuing vp the ghost. So the hie priest considerynge the matter, and leste the kyng should suspecte, that the Iewes had done Heliodorus somme euyll: he offred an helth offring for hym. Now when the hye priest had obteyned hys petition, the same yong men in ỹ same clothyng appeared, and stoode beside Heliodorus, saying: Thanke Onias F the hye priest, for * for his sake hathe Act.27.c the Lord graunted thee thy lyfe: therfore, seing that god hath scurged thee, geue him prayse and thankes, & shewe euery manne his myght and power. And when thei had spoken these wordes, they appered no more. So Heliodorus offered vnto God, & made great vowes vnto hym, whiche had graunted hym his life, thanked Onias, toke hys host, and went agayn to the king. Then testified hee vnto euery man of the great workes of God, that he had sene with his eyes. And whenne the kynge asked Heliodorus, who were mete to be sent yet ones again to Ierusalē, he sayd: If thou hast an enemy or aduersary vnto thy realme, sende hym thyther, and thou shalt haue hym punished, if he escape wyth hys lyfe: for in that place (no dout) there is a speA cial power and worckyng of God. For hee that dwelleth in heauen, visiteth and defendeth that place: and all that come to do it harme, he punisheth and plagueth them. This is now the matter concernynge Heliodorus, and the kepyng of the treasory at Ierusalem.

trayer of the moneye, and of hys owne naturall countrey, reported the worste of Onias: as thoughe he had moued Heliodorus vnto this, and as though he had ben a brynger vp of euil. Thus was he not ashamed to cal him an enemy of the realme that was so faythfull an ouerseer and defender of the Citie, and of his people: ye, and so feruente in the lawe of God. But when the malice of Simon increased so farre, that thorough hys frendes, there were certayne manslaughters committed: Onias considered the peryll that myght come thorough thys stryfe, and howe that Appollonius, (namely the chiefe Lord in Celosiria, and Phenices (was all set vppon tyranny, and Simons malice increased the same: he gat hym to the kyng, not as an accuser of the Citesyns, but as one that by himself intēded the cōmon wealth of the whole multitude. For he sawe it was not possible to lyue in peace, neither Simon to lene of from hys foolyshnesse, except the kyng did looke thereto. But after the deathe of Seleucus, when Antiochus (whiche is called the noble) tooke the kyngedome: Jason, the brother of Onias laboured to be hye priest. This was nowe the begynnyng of the Heathenyſh and ſtraunge conuerſacion, brought in thorowe the vngracious & vnheard wickednes of Jaſon, whyche ſhoulde not be called a prieſt, but an vngodly perſon. Inſo much that the prieſtes wer now no more occupyed about the ſeruice of the aulter, but deſpiſed the temple, regarded not the offerynges: yea, gaue their diligence to learne to fight, to wraſtle, to leape, to daunce, and to put at the ſtone, not ſetting by the honoure of the fathers, but lyked the glorye of the Greekes beſte of all: for the whiche they drone perylouſly, and were gredye to folowe their ſtatutes, yea their luſte was in all thynges to be lyke them, which afore were their enemyes and deſtroyers. Theſe wer kept euerye fyfthe yeare.

Now what tyme as the * Olympiades ſportes were played at Tyrus (the kinge hym ſelfe beynge preſente) thys vngracious Jaſon ſent wicked men, bearynge frome theym of Jeruſalem (whych now wer called Antiochiãs) iiii. C. drachmas of ſyluer for an offering to Hercules. Theſe hadthey that caried them deſired them vnder ſuche a fashion, as though they ſhoulde not haue ben offred but beſtowed to other vſes. Neuertheles, he that ſente them ſente theym to the intente that they ſhould be offred vnto Hercules. But becauſe of thoſe that were preſente, they were geuen as to the makyng of ſhyppes. And Appolinas the ſonne of Meſtens was ſet into Egipt becauſe of the noble men of kynge Ptolomye Philometor. Now when Antiochus perceaued that he was put oute from medlyng in the realme, he ſought hys owne profite, departed frome thence, came to Joppa, and then to Jeruſalē, where he was honorably receyued of Jaſon, and of the citie, & was brought in with torche light, and with greate prayſe: and ſo he turned his hoſt vnto Phenices. brother, to beare the money vnto the kyng, and to bryng hym anſwer of other neceſſary matters. But he (whē he was prayſed of the kyng for magnifying of hys power) turned the prieſthode vnto hymſelfe, layng vp .iii. C. talentes of ſiluer for Jaſon. So whē he had gotten the commaundementes from the kynge (he came hauyng nothynge that becommeth a prieſte) but bearyng the ſtomacke of a cruell tyrant, and the wrath of the wyld brute beaſt. Then Jaſon (whyche hadde 1.ma.3 diſceaued his owne brother (ſeynge that hee hym ſelfe was begyled alſo, was fayne to flee into the lande of the Ammonites, and Menelaus gatte the dompnion. But as for the money that he promiſed vnto the kyng, he did nothynge therein, when Soſtratus the ruler of the Caſtell required it of him For Soſtratus was the man that gathered the Cuſtomes, wherfore they were bothe called beefore the kynge. Thus was Menelaus putte oute of the prieſthoode, and Lyſimachus hys brother came in hys ſtede. Soſtratus alſo was made Lord of the Ciprians. F It hapened in the meane ſeaſon, that the Charſians and Mallatians made inſurrection, becauſe they were geuen for a preſente vnto kynge Antiochus concubine. Then came the kyng in all the haſte, to pacifye them agayne, and to pacifye the matter, leauyng Andronicus there to bee hys debitie, as one mete therfore. Nowe Menelaus ſuppoſynge that he had gotten a ryghte conuenyente tyme, ſtole certayne veſſels of gold out of the temple, & gaue them to Andronicus for a preſent: and ſome he ſolde at Tyrus, and in the cyties thereby. Whiche whenne Onias

knewe of a fuertye, hee reproued him: but he kepte hym in a Sanctuary beſyde Daphnis, that lyeth by Antioche. Wherfore Menelaus gat hym to Andronicus, and prayed hym that he ſwold ſlay Onias. So when he came to Onias, he counceled hym craftelye to come out of the Sanctuary, geuing him his hand with an othe (howebeit he ſuſpecte hym) and then he ſlewe Onias, without any regard of righteouſneſſe. For the whiche cauſe not onely the Jewes, but other nacions alſo toke indignation, and were diſpleaſed for the vnryghteous death of ſo godly a man. And when the kynge was come agayne frowe Cilicia, the Jewes and certayne of the Greekes went vnto him, complaynyng for the vnryghteous death of Onias: Yea, Antiochus him ſelfe was ſorye in hys mynd for Onias, ſo that it pitied him and he wepte, remembryng his ſoberneſs and manerly behauour. Wherfore he was ſo kyndled in hys mynde, that he commaunded Andronicus to bee ſtriped out of his purple clothing, and ſo to be led thorowout the citye: yea, and the vngracious man to be ſlayne in the ſame place where he committed his wickednes vpon Onias. Thus the Lorde rewarded him his punyſhment, as he had deſerued. Now when Liſimachus had done manye wycked dedes in the temple thorow the counceil of Menelaus, and the boyce came abrode: the multitude gathered them together agaynſte Liſimachus: for he had caryed out nowe much gold. So when the people aroſe, and were full of diſpleaſure, Liſimachus armed. iii. M. vnthryftes to defende hym: a certayne tyraunt beynge their captayne, which was growen bothe in age and woodneſſe. But when the people vnderſtode the purpoſe of Liſimachus, ſome gat ſtones, good ſtrong clubbes, and ſome caſt aſſhes vpō Liſimachus. Thus there were manye of theym wounded, ſome beynge ſlayne, and all the other chaſed away. But as for the wicked chuechrobber him ſelfe, they, kylled hym beſyde the treaſurye. Of theſe matters therfore ther was kept a courte agaynſt Menelaus. Nowe when the kynge came to Tirus, they made a complaint vnto him of Menelaus, concerning this buſines, and the ambaſſadours were three. But Menelaus went and promiſed Ptolomy, to gene him much money, if he would perſwade the kynge. So Ptolomie went to the kyng into a court (wher as he was ſet to coole him) & brought him out of that mynd. Inſomuch ỳ he diſcharged Menelaus from the accuſacions, that notwythſtandynge was cauſe of al miſchefe, and thoſe pore mē whiche yf they had tolde their cauſe, yea, before the Scithians, they ſhulde haue bene iudged innocente, theym he condemned to death. Thus were they ſoone punyſhed, which folowed vpon the matter for the citye, for the people, and for the holy veſſel. Wherfore, they of Tyrus toke indignation, and buried them honorablye. And ſo thorowe the couetouſnes of them that were in power. Menelaus remayned ſtyll in auctority, increaſing in malice to the hurt of the citeſens.

The. v. Chapter.

At the ſame tyme Antiochus made hym ready to go agayne into Egipt. Then were there ſene at Jeruſalem foure dayes long, horſemen, runnynge to and fro in the ayre, which hadde rayment of golde, and ſpeares. There were ſeene alſoo wholle hooſtes of men weaponed, and horſes, runnyng in an order, how they camme together, howe they healde fooythe theyr ſhyeldes, howe the harneſſed menne drewe out their ſwordes, and ſhot theyr dartes. The ſhyne of the golden weapons was ſene, and of all maner of armure. Wherfore euery man prayed, that thoſe tokens mighte turne to good. Nowe when there was gone forthe a falſe rumour, as though Antiochus hadde ben dead, Jaſon toke a M. men, and came ſodenly vpon the city. The citiſens ranne vnto the walles, at the laſte was the citye taken, and Menelaus fled into the caſtell. As for Jaſon, ſon, he ſpared not hys owne cyteſens in the ſlaughter, nether conſidered he what greatte euyll it were, to deſtroye the proſperytie of hys owne kynſemen: but dyd as one that hadde gotten the victorye of hys ennemyes, and not of hys frendes. For all this gatte he not the ſuperiorytie, but at the laſte receaued confuſyon for hys ma-2 mac.4.c lyce', and fledde agayne lyke a bagabounde into the lande of the Ammonytes. Finallye, for a reward of hys wickednes he was accuſed before Arethas the kynge of the Arabians. In ſo muche that he was fayne to flee from cytye to cytye, beynge deſpiſed of euery man as a forſaker of the lawes, and an abhominable perſon. And at the laſte (as an open enemye of hys owne naturall countrey and of the cyteſens (he was dryuen into Egypte. Thus he that afore put many out of their owne natyue land, peryſhed from home hym ſelfe. He wente to Lacedemon, thynkynge there to haue gotten ſuccoure by reaſon of kynred. And he that afore had caſten manye one vnburyed, was throwen out hym ſelf, no man mournyng for him, nor puttyng him in hys graue: ſo that he neyther enioyed the buriall of a ſtraunger, neyther was he partaker of hys fathers ſepulcre.

C Now when this was done, the kyng ſuſpect that the Jewes wolde haue fallen from hym: wherfore he came in a great diſpleaſure out of Egipt, and 1.mac.1.c toke the cytye by vyolence. He commaunded his men of warre alſo, that they ſhoulde kyll and not ſpare, but ſlaye downe ſuch as withſtode them, or clymed vp vpon the houſes. Thus was there a great ſlaughter of ponge men, olde men, wemen, chyldren and virgines. In three dayes were there ſlayne. lxxx. M. fourty thouſande put in preſon, and no leſſe ſolde. Yet was he not content with this but durſt go into the moſte holy temple (Menelaus that traytoure to the lawes and to hys owne naturall countrey, beynge hys gyde) and with hys wicked handes toke the holy veſſell, which other kynges and cityes had geuen thyther for the garnyſhyng and honour of the place: them toke he in his handes vnworthelye, and defiled them. So mad D was Antiochus, that he conſydered not, how that God was a lytle wroth for the ſynnes of them that dwelte in the citie, for the which ſuch confuſion came vpon that place. And why: yf Judi.5.d it had not happened them to haue bene lapped in manye ſynnes, this Antiochus (as ſone as he had come) had ſodenly bene punyſhed, and ſhut out for his preſumption, lyke as Heliodo- 2.mac.3.d rus was, whom Seleucus the kyng ſent to robbe the treaſury. Neuertheleſſe, God hath not choſen the people for the places ſake, but the place for the peoples ſake: and therefore is the place become partaker of the peoples trouble, but afterward ſhall it enioye the wealth of them. And lyke as it is now forſakē in the wrath of almightye God, ſo when the greate God is reconciled, it ſhalbe ſet vp in hye worſhyppe agayne. So when Antiochus E had taken a. M. and. viii. C. talentes out of the temple, he gat hym to Antioche in all the haſte, thinkyng in hys pryde, that he myghte make men ſayle vpon the drye lande, and to go vpon the ſea, ſuche an hye minde had he. He lefte debittes there, to here the people: At Jeruſalem left he Philip a Phrygian, in maners more cruell then him ſelfe that ſet him there. At Gariſim he left Andronicus and Menelaus, whiche were more greuous to the citezens then other. Now as he was 1.mac.1.f thus ſet in malice againſt the Jewes he ſent Appollonius an hated prynce, with. xxii. But Judas Machabeus, whyche was the tenthe, fled into the wylderneſs, led his lyfe there with his compayne among wyld beaſtes, and vpon the mountaynes, dwellyng there, and eatyng graſſe, leſt they ſhould be partakers of the fylthyneſſe.

NOt long after this, ſente the kynge a meſſanger of Antioche, for to compel the Jewes to alter the ordinances of the fathers and the law of God, to defile the temple that was at Jeruſalem, and to call it the temple of Jupiter Olympius: and that they ſhoulde be in Gazarim, as thoſe whiche dwell at the place of Jupiter the harborous. Thys wicked ſedition of the vngodly was heauy vpon all the people: for the temple was full of voluptuouſnes, bybbing and bollyng of the Heathen, of rybaldes and harlottes together. The women went into the holy place, & bare in that was not laufull. The aulter alſo was full of vnlaufull thynges, which the lawe forbiddeth to lay vpon it. The Sabboths were not kept, the other ſolemne feaſtes of the lande were not regarded. To be plain, there durſte no man bee a knowen that hee was a Jewe. In the day of the kynges byrthe they were compelled parforce to offre: and when the feaſte of Bacchus was kept, they were conſtrained to weare garlandes of yuie, and ſo to go aboute to the honoure of Bacchus. Moreouer, thorough the councell of Ptholomie, there wente out a commaundement in the next cities of the Heathen, that they ſhold intreat the Jewes in like maner, namely, to compell theim for to do ſacrifice after the lawes of the Gentiles: and who ſo woulde not, to put theym to death. A piteous thyng was it to ſee. There were two women accuſed to haue circumciſed their ſonnes, whom when they had ledde round about the citie, (the babes hanging at their breſtes, they caſt them downe headlynge ouer the walles. Somme that were crept in dennes, and had kept the Sa both were accuſed vnto Philyp, and brente in the fyre: becauſe that for the feare of God, they kept the commaundement ſo ſtyffely, and would not defend them ſelues. Now I beſeche all thoſe which rede this boke, that they refuſe it not for theſe falles of aduerſitie: and iudge the thynges (that are happened) for no deſtruction, but for a chaſtening of our people. And whyle whē God ſuffred not ſinners ſo long to folowe their owne mynde, but ſhortly punyſheth them, it is a token of his great louyng kyndnes. For this grace haue we of god more then other people, that he ſuffreth not vs long to ſynne vnpuniſhed, like as other nations, that when the day of iudgement commeth, he may puniſhe them in the fulneſſe of their ſinnes. If we ſynne, he correcteth vs, but he neuer withdraweth his mercy from vs: & though he punyſhe with aduerſitie, yet dothe he neuer forſake his people. But let this that we haue ſpoken now with few wordes, be for a warnyng & exhortation of the Heathen. Now wil we come to the declaryng of the matter. Eleazar, one of the principal ſcribes, an aged man, and of a well fauoured countenance, was conſtreyned to gape with open mouthe, and to eate ſwines fleſh. But he deſiring rather to die gloriouſely, then to lyue wyth ſhame, offred himſelf willingly to the martyrdom. Now when he ſaw that he muſt nedes go to it, he toke it pacientlyr: for he was at a poynt with himſelfe, that he would conſent to no vnlaufull thing for any pleaſure of lyfe. Thei that ſtode by being moued with pitie (but not aright) for the old frendſhip of the man, toke him aſide priuily, & praied him, that he wold let ſuch fleſhe be brought hym, as wer laufull to eate, & then to make a countenance as thoughe he had eaten of the fleſhe of the ſacrifice, lyke as the king commanded, for ſo he myght be deliuered from deathe, and ſo for the olde frendſhyp of the menne, they ſhewed hym this kyndnes. But he began to conſyder his diſcrete and honorable age his noble and worſhipful ſtocke, and howe that from hys youth vp, he had bene of an honeſt and good converſation: yea, and howe conſtantly he had kept the ordynances and lawes cõmaunded by God, wherefore he gaue them thys anſwere, and ſaid: Yet had I rather firſte be layed in my graue. For it becommeth not myne age, ſaide hee) in anye wyſe to diſſemble, wherby many yonge perſons mighte thynke, that Eleazar being. lxxx. yere olde and tenne, were nowe gone to a ſtrange life: and ſo thrugh myne hypocriſie (for a litle tyme of a tranſitorye lyfe) they myght be diſceaued: by thys meanes alſo ſhoulde I defyle myne age, and make it abhominable. Amos. 1 a

For thoughe I were not delyuered from the torments of men, yet ſhould I not eſcape the hande of almyghtye God, neither alyue nor dead: wherfore I wyl dye manfully, and do as it becommeth myne age. Wherby I maye peraduenture leaue an example of ſted faſtnes for ſuch as be yong, if I wyth a ready minde and manfullye dye an honeſt death, for the moſt worthy and holye lawes. When he had ſaide theſe wordes, immediatly he was drawen to the torment. Nowe they that ledde him, and were mylde a litle afore, beganne to take diſpleaſure, becauſe of the woordes that hee ſaide: for they thought he had ſpoken them of an hie mynde. But when hee was in hys martyrdome, hee mourned and ſayde. Thou (O LORD) which haſt the holy knoweledge: knoweſt openlye, that where as I might be delyuered from death, I ſuffer theſe ſore paines of my bodye: but in my mynde I am wel content to ſuffer them, becauſe I feare the. Thus thys man dyed, leauynge the memoriall of hys death for an example, not only vnto yonge men but vnto all the people, to be ſtedfaſte and manly.

IT happened alſo, that there were ſeuen brethren (wyth their mother) taken, and compelled by the king * againſte the lawe to eate ſwynes fleſhe: namelye wyth ſcourges and lethern whyppes. And one of them which was ỹ chiefe: ſaid: What ſeekeſt thou, and what requireſt thou of vs? As for vs, wee are ready rather to ſuffer death, then to offende the lawes of God, and the fathers. Then was the kyng angrye, and bad heate cauldrons and braſen pottes. Whyche when they were made hote, immediatly he commaunded the tong of him that firſte ſpake, to be cut out, to pulle the ſkinne ouer hys heade, to pare of the edges of hys handes and fete: yea, and that in the ſyghte of hys mother and the other of hys brethren. Nowe when he was cleane marred, he commaunded a fyre to be made, and ſo whyle there was any breth in him, to bee fryed in the cauldron: In the which when hee had bene longe payned, the other brethren wyth their mother exhorted him to dye manfullye, ſayinge: The Lorde God ſhal regard the trueth, and comforte vs, lyke as Moyſes teſtifieth * and declareth in hys ſonge, ſayinge: and hee will haue compaſſion on hys ſeruauntes. So when the firſte was deade after thys maner, they broughte the ſeconde, to haue him in deriſion, pulled the ſkyn wyth the heare ouer hys head, and aſked him, yf hee woulde eate ſwynes fleſhe, or he were payned in the other members alſo throughout hys bodye. But he anſwered boldly, and ſaide: I wyll not do it. And ſo was he tormented like as the firſt, and when he was euen at the geuinge vp the ghoſte hee ſayde: Thou mooſte vngracious perſon putteſt vs nowe to death, but the kinge of the worlde ſhall rayſe vs vp whyche die for hys lawes) in the reſurrection of euerlaſting lyfe. After him, was the thyrde had in deryſion, and when he was required, hee putte oute hys tonge, and that ryght ſoone, holdynge forth hys handes manfully and ſpake with a ſtedfaſt faith. These haue I of heauen, but nowe for the lawe of God I deſpyſe theym: for my truſt is, that I ſhal receaue theym of him agayne. In ſo much that the kyng and 2. Mac. 7. a Deu. 32. b

John. 5 c and trust in God, for he shall raise vs vp againe. * As for thee, thou shalte haue no resurrection to lyfe. And when they had spoken to the fyfthe, they tormented him. Then looked he vnto the king and sayde: thou haste power among menne, for thou arte a mortal man also thy selfe, to do what thou wilt, but thinke not, that God hath forsaken our generation. Abyde thee, tary stil a while, and thou shalte see the great power of God, howe he wyl punyshe thee and thy seede. After him they brought the fyrst, which being at the pointe of death, saide: Bee not disceaued O king, for this we suffer for oure owne sakes, because wee haue offended our God, and therefore marueylous thinges are shewed vpon vs. But thinke not thou whiche takest in hand to striue agaynst God, that thou shalt escape vnpunished.

D Thys excellente mother (worthye to be wel reported of, and had in remembraunce) sawe her seuen sonnes die in one day, and suffered it pacientlye, because of the hope that she had in God, yea, she exhorted euery one of them in especial, and that boldly and stedfastly wyth perfite wisdome, waking vp her wyuishe thought with a manlye stomake, and sayd vnto them: I canne not tel howe ye came in my wombe, for I neither gaue you breth nor soul, no nor life: It is not I that ioined the membrs of youre bodies together, but the maker of the worlde, which fashioned the byrth of man, and begaune al thinges. Euen hee also of hys owne mercye shal geue you breath and lyfe agayne, lyke as ye nowe regarde not your owne selues for hys lawes sake. Nowe thought Antiochus that shee had despysed him, therfore he lette her go wyth her reproues, and began to exhorte the yongest sonne (which yet was left) not only wyth wordes, but swore vnto hym wyth an oth, that he shoulde make hym a ryche and welthy man (yf he woulde forsake the lawes of hys fathers) yea, and that he should geue him what soeuer were necessary E for him. But whē the yong mā wold not bee moued for all these thynges, he called hys mother, and counselled her to saue her sonnes life. And when he had exhorted her wyth many wordes, she promised him that she shoulde speake vnto her sonne. So she turned her vnto him (laughing the cruel tyrante to scorne) and spake with a bold voyce: O my sonne, haue pity vpon me, that bare the nine moneths in my wombe, ẏ gaue thee sucke, norished, & brought thee vp vnto thys age. I beseche thee (my sonne) looke vpon heauen and earth, and all that is therein, and consider, that God made theym, and mannes generation of naught: so shalt thou not feare thys hangeman, but suffer death stedfastlye, like as thy brethren haue done: that I maye receaue thee agayne in the same mercye wyth thy brethren. And thoughe God bee angrye wyth vs a litle while (for our chastening and reformation) yet shal he bee at one agayne wyth his seruauntes. But thou O shameful and moste abhominable person) Pryde not thy selfe through vaine hope, in beinge so malicious vpon the seruauntes of God: for thou hast not yet escaped the iudgement of the God which is almyghty, and seeth al thinges. My brethrē these haue suffered a litle payne, are nowe vnder the couenaunt of euerlastynge lyfe: but throughe the iudgemente of god, thou shalt be punished rightously for thy pryde. As for mee (lyke as my brethren haue done) I offer my soule & my body for ỹ lawes of our fathers, calling vpon God, that he wil sone be

In me now and in my brethrē ỹ wrath of almighty God is at an end, which ryghteously is fallē vpon al our people: Then ỹ kinge beinge kindled in anger, was more cruel vpon him then vpon al the other, and toke indignation, that hee was so lyghtelye regarded. So thys yong man dyed vndefiled, and put hys trust stil in the Lord. Laste of all after the sons, was the mother put to deth also. Let this now be ynoughe spokē, concerning the offringes, and extreme cruelnes.

A THen Judas Machabeus, and they that wer wyth him went priuely into the townes, called their kinsfolkes and frends together, toke vnto them al suche as continued yet in the faythe and lawe of the Jewes, and brought foorth. vi. So they called vpon the Lorde, that he wold haue an eye vnto his people, whiche was troden downe of euerye man: to bee gracious vnto the temple that was defiled of the vngodlye: to haue compassion vpon the destruction of the citye, which was shortlye lyke to be layed waste, to heare the voice of the bloud that cryed vnto hym, to remember the moste vnryghteous deathes of yonge innocente children, the blasphemies also done vnto his name

But specially he made such chases by nyght, in so muche that hys manlines was spokē of euery where. So when Philip sawe that the man encreased by lytle, and lytle, and that the matter prospered wyth him for the moste part: he wrote vnto Ptolomy (whych was a captayne in Celosiria and Phenices) to helpe hym in the kinges busines. • Then sente hee 1.ma.3.c

Nowe were there some of them fearefull, not trustinge vnto the ryghteousnes of God, and fled their waye. But the other that remayned, came together, and besought the Lord to deliuer them from that wicked Nicanor, which had solde theym or euer he came nie them: and though he wold not do it for their sakes, yet for the couenaunte that hee made wyth their fathers, and because they called vpon hys holye and glorious name. • And 1.mac.5.a

He exhorted them also to call to remembrance the helpe that God shewed vnto their fathers: as when ther perished an. C.lxxxv. So he set vpon euery company a captayne, one of his owne brethren: Simon, Joseph and Jonathas: geuyng echeone.xv. C. men. Hee caused Eldras also to reade the holye boke vnto them, and to geue theym a token of the helpe of God. Then he hymself being captain in the forefront of the battaile, buckled wyth Nicanor. And God was their helpe, in somuch that they slewe aboue.ix. M. men, and cōpelled the more part of Nicanors host to flee, they were so wounded and feble. Thus they toke the money from those that came to bye theim, and followed vpon them on enery syde. But when the time came vpon thē, they returned, for it was the Sabboth, and therfore they followed no more vppon them. So they tooke their weapons and spoyles, and kepte the Sabbothe, geuyng thankes vnto the Lord, whiche had delyuered them that daye, and shewed them his mercy. After the Sabboth, they distributed the spoyles to the sycke, to the fatherlesse, and to widowes, and the residue had they them selues wyth theirs. When this was done, and they all had made a generall prayer, they besoughte the mercyfull Lorde to be at one with his seruants. Of those also that were with Timotheus and Bachides, whiche sought agaynst them, they slew.xx. M. wan hye and stronge holdes, and deuyded mo spoyles: euer geuynge an equall portion vnto the sycke, to the fatherles, to wyddowes, and to aged persons. And when they had diligently gathered theyr weapones together, they layd thē all in conuenient places e the remnāt of ꝑ spoiles also brought they to Jerusalem. They slewe also Philarches that wicked person, whiche was with Timotheus, and had vexed many Jewes. And when they helde the thankesgeuyng at Jerusalem for the victorye, they brent those that hadde sette fyre on the portes of the Temple: namelye Calisthenes, whyche was fledde into an house: and soo they gatte a worthy rewarde for theyr wyckednesse. As for that moste vngracious Nicanor, whyche hadde brought a thousande marchantes, to bye the Jewes, he was thorough the healpe of the LORDE, brought downe euen of them, whom he regarded not, insomuch that he put of his glorious rayment, fled by sea, and camme alone to Antioche, wyth greate shame and dyshonour, whyche hee gatte thorowe the destruction of hys hoste. Thus hee that promysed the Romaynes, to paye theym theyr tribute, whenne he tooke Jerusalem, beganne nowe to saye playnely, that God was the defender of the Jewes, and therfore not possible to wounde them, because they followed the lawes which God had made.

At the same tyme came Antiochus agayne wyth dyshonour out of Persis. For when he camme to Persepolis, and vndertooke to robbe the Temple, and to subdue the Citie, the people ranne together, and defended theym selues, in so muche that he and his were fain to flee wyth shame. And so after that fyghte, it happened, that Antiochus came agayne with dyshonoure. But when he cam to Egbathana, he gatte knowledge what was happened vnto Nicanor & Timotheus. Howe as he was auancyng hymselfe in his wrath, hee thoughte hee was able to auenge the iniurie that was done to them, vpon the Iewes: and therfore cõmanded to make ready his charet, haſtyng on hys iourney without ceaſſyng, the iudgement of God prouokynge hym, becauſe he had ſpoken ſo proudly, that he would come to Ieruſalem, & make it a graue of the Iewes. But the lord God of Iſraell, that ſeeth al thyngs, ſmote hym with an inuiſible plague, whiche no man coulde heale. For as ſoone as he had ſpoken theſe wordes, there came vpon hym an horrible pain of his bowels, & a ſore greſe of the armes. And that was but right: for hee had martired other mennes bowells with dyuers and ſtrange tormentes: howbeit, he would in no wiſe ceaſſe from his malice. Yea, he was yet the prowder and more malicious againſt the Iewes. But whyle he was cõmandyng to make haſte in the matter, it hapned that he fell downe violently frome the charet, ſo that it brooſed his body, and dyd hym greate payne. And ſo he that thought he myght command the flouds of the ſea (ſo proude was he beyond the condition of man) & to wey ye hie mountayns in a paire of balance, was nowe brought down to the grounde, and caryed vppon an horſlytter, knowledging the manifeſt power of God vpon hym: ſo that the wicked body of his ſwas ful of wormes, which in his payn fell quick out of his fleſhe: In ſoo muche that his hoſte was greued with the ſmell and ſtinke of hym. Thus he that a lyttell afore thought he myght reache to the ſtarre of heauen, hym myght no man nowe abyde nor beare, for the beheuſence of ſtynke. Therfore, he beyng brought frome his great pride, began for to come to the knowledge of hym ſelfe: for the punyſhment of God warned hym, and his payn increaſed euermore and more. And when he himſelf mighte not abide his owne ſtynke, he ſaid theſe wordes: It is reaſon to bee obedient vnto God, and that a manne deſyre not to bee lyke vnto hym. This wycked perſon prayed alſo vnto the Lorde, of whom he ſhould haue obteyned no mercy. And as for the citie that hee camme vnto ſo haſtily, to bryngе it downe to the grounde, and to make it a graue for dead men: nowe he deſyreth to deliuer it free. And as touchyng the Iewes, whome he had iudged not worthy to bee buried, but ſwoulde haue caſt theim out for to bee deuoured of the foules and wyld beaſtes, ſaying, that he ſwoulde haue deſtroyed bothe olde and young: Nowe he promyſed to make theym lyke the citiſens of Athens. And where as he had ſpoiled the holy temple afore, nowe he maketh promiſe to garniſh it with great gifts, to increaſe the holy ornaments, & of his owne rentes to beare the coſtes and charges belongyng to the offrynges: yea and that he wold alſo become a Iew himſelfe, to go thorow euery place of ye world, & to preache the power of God. But when his paynes wold not ceſſe, (For the ryghteous iudgemente of God was comme vpon hym) out of a very deſpayre, hee wrote vnto the Iewes a Letter of Intercellion, conteynynge theſe wordes: The kyng and prince Antiochus wyſheth vnto the vertuous Citeſyns of the Iewes, muche healthe and good proſperitie: If yee and your chylderne fare well, and yf all thynges go after your mynd: wee geue great thankes. In my ſyckneſs alſo doo I remembre you louyngely: for as I came out of Perſia, and was taken with ſore dyſeaſe: I thoughte it neceſſarye to care for the common wealthe. Neyther deſpayre I in my ſelfe, but haue a good hope to eſcape this ſycknes. But conſiderynge that my father ledde an hoſte ſometyme in the hygher places: and ſhewed whoe ſhoulde Reygne after hym, that (yf there happened any controuerſye, or any harde thyng were declared) they in the laude myght know their chief Lorde, that there ſhould be no inſurrection. Therefore, I praye you, and require you to remember the benefittes that I haue done vnto you generally, and in especiall (that euery man will bee faythful to me & my son.) For I hope that he shal be of sober & louing behauour, and if hee folowe my deuice, he shalbe

Now vpon the same day that the straungers pollu ted the temple, it hapned ỹ on the very same day it was clēsed again: namely, * the. xxii. daye of the month called

And in the same token they bare grene bowes, braunches and palmes, before him that had geuen theim good fortune to clēse hys place. They agreed also together, & made a statute, that euery peare those days should be solemnely kept of al the people of the Jewes. Howe Antiochus then (that was called the noble) died, it is sufficiently told. Nowe wil we speake of Eupator the son of that wicked Antiochus, howe it happened with him, and so with fewe wordes to comprehende the aduersitie that chaunsed in the warres. When he had taken in the kingdom, he made one Lisias (which had bene captayne of the hoste in Phenices and Siria) ruler ouer the matters of the realme. For Ptolomy that was called Macron, beinge the ruler for the Jewes (and specially, to sit in iudgement for suche wronge as was done vnto them) vndertooke to deale peaceably wyth them. For the which cause he was accused of the frendes be fore Eupator: and when he was suspect to be a traytour (because he had lefte Cypres that Philometor hadde committed vnto him: and because hee departed from noble Antiochus, that he was come vnto) he poysoned hym self, and died. Nowe when Gorgias C was gouernour of the same places, he toke straungers: and vndertooke ofte tymes, to warre wyth the Jewes. Moreouer the Idumeans that helde the strong holdes, receaued those that were driuen to Jerusalem, and tooke in hande to warre also. But they 1. mac. 5. a

Then departed thei frō thēce. viii. C. and. l. furlonges, and came to Caraca vnto the Jewes that are called Tubianei. But as for Timotheus, they coulde not get hym there: for (not one matter dyspatched) he was departed from thence, and had left certaine men in a very strong holde. But Dositheus and Sosipater, whiche were captaynes with Machabeus, slew those that Timotheus had left in the house of defence, euen. x. M. men. And Machabeus prepared him with the. vi. M men that were about hym, set them in order by companyes, and went forthe against Timotheus, which had with hym an. C. and. xx. M. men of foote two. M. and fiue. C. horsemen. When Timotheus had knowledge of Judas commynge, he sente the women, chyldren and the other baggage vnto a castel called Carnion. (For it could not be won, and was hard to come vnto, the wayes of the same places were so narowe) and when Judas company came first in sight, the enemies were smytten with feare, thorowe the presence of God: which seeth all thinges: In so much that they flying one here, another there, wer rather disconfyted Judi. 7. f of their owne people, * and wounded 1 Mac. 14 c with the strokes of their own swearedes. Judas also was verye earnest in folowynge vpon theym, punyshynge those vngodly, and slew. xxx. M. men of them. Timotheus also him selfe fel into the handes of Dositheus, and Sosipater, whom he besought wyth many prayers, to let him go with his life: because he had many of the Jues fathers and brethren in preson, which (if they put hym to deathe) myght be disapointed. So when he had promised faythfully to delyuer them agayn, accordynge to the condycyon made, they let him go without harme, for the health of the brethren. And when Judas had slayne. xxb. M. he went from Carnion. Nowe after that hee hadde chased away and slayne his enemies, he remoued the host toward Ephron a stronge citie, wherin dwelte manye dyuerse people of the heathen, and the stronge yonge men kepte the walles, defending them myghtely. In this cytie was much ordinaunce and prouysion of dartes. But when Judas and hys companye hadde called vpon almyghtye God (which with his power breaketh the strength of the ennemyes) they wanne the Citie, & slewe xxb. M. of theym, that were wythin. From thence went they to the Cytie of the Scithians, which lyeth. vi. C. furlonges from Jerusalē. But when the Jewes which were in the Cytye testified, that the citezins dealt louingly wyth them: yea, and intreated them kindly in the tyme of their aduersitie, Judas and hys companie gaue theim thankes, desiring them to be frendlye stil vnto them: and so they came to Jerusalem, the hie feast of the wekes being at hand. And after ỳ feast of Pentecost they went forth againste Gorgias the gouernour of Idumea, with thre. M men of fote, and four. C. horsemen. which when they met together, it chaunced a fewe of the Jewes to be slaine. And Dositheus one of the Bachenors a myghty horseman, toke holde of Gorgias, and would haue taken him quicke. But an horseman of Thratia fel vpon him, and smote of his arme, so that Gorgias escaped and fled into Maresa. whē they nowe that wer of Gorgias side, had foughtē lōg & wer wery: Judas called vpō ỳ Lord, ỳ he wold be their helper, and captayne of the feld: and with that, he beganne wyth a mannelye voyce to take vp a songe of prayse, and crye: In so much that he made the enemies afrayde, and Gorgias men of warre toke theyr flight. So Judas gathered his hoost, and came into the cytie of Odulla. And when the seuenthe day cam vpon them, they clensed them selues (as the custome was, and kept the Sabboth in the same place. And vpon the daye folowyng, Judas and his company came to take vp the bodyes of them that were slayne, and to burye theym in their fathers graues. Nowe vnder the cotes of certayne Jewes which wer slayn, they found Jewels that they had take out of the Deu.7.c. temple & from the Idols of the Jamniters: which thinge is forbidden the Jewes by the law. Then euery man sawe, that thys was the cause, wherfore they were slayne. And so euerye man gaue thankes vnto the Lord for his ryghteous iudgement, which had opened the thing that was hid. They fell downe also vnto their prayers, & besought God, that the sawte which was made, myghte be put oute of remembraunce. Besydes that, Judas exhorted the people earnestly, to kepe them selues from suche synne: for so muche as they sawe before they eyes: that these men wer slaine for the same offence. So he gathered of euery one a certayne, in so much that he brought together two thousande drachmas of syluer, whiche he sente vnto Jerusalem, that there might a sacrifice be offered for the mysdede. In the whiche place he dyd well and right: for he had some consideracion and pondrynge of the ryse that is after thys tyme. For if he had not thoght that they, which were slayne, dyd yet lyue, it had bene superfluous and vayne, to make anye bowe or sacrifyce, for them that were dead. But forsomuch as he sawe ỹ thei whiche dye in the fauoure and beleue of God, are in good reste and ioye, he thoughte it to be good and honorable for a reconcilynge, to doo the same for those which were slayne, that the offence might be forgiuen.

2.mac.6d

IN the .Cxlix. yeare gat ✣ Judas knowledge, that Antiochus Eupator was comming with a great power into Jury, and Lisias the steward and ruler of hys matters wyth hym, hauyng an. C. and .x. M. men of fote. v. M. horsemen. xxii. Elephātes, and thre. C harettes. Menelaus also ioined him selfe with them (but with great dyscreate) and spake fayre to the kyng, not for any good of the countrie but because he thoughte to haue bene made some greate man of auctorite. But the kyng of kynges moued Antiochus mynde agaynst this vngodly person, and Lisias informed ỹ king, ✣ that thys Menelaus was the cause 2.mac.4d of all myscheefe: so that the kynge commaunded to take him, and (as the maner of them is) to put him vnto death in the same place. There was also in the same place a towre of .L. cubites hye heaped with asshes: but aboue it was so made, that men mighte looke downe on euery syde. Whereinto the king commaunded that shamefull person to be cast among the asshes, as one that was cause of all vngraciousnes. And reason it was, that the vnthryft should dye such a death, and not to be buried, for he had done much mischefe vnto the alter of God (whose fyre and asshes were holye) therefore was it right, that he him selfe also shoulde be destroyed with asshes. But the kyng B was wood in hys mynde, and came to shewe hym selfe more cruell vnto the Jewes, then his father was. Whiche when Judas perceaued, ✣ he cōmaun- 2.ma.10.b ded the people to call vpon the Lorde night and daye, that he wouldo nowe helpe them also, lyke as he had doone alwaye: For they were afrayde to be put from their lawe, from their naturall countrey, and from the holy temple: and not to suffer the people (whiche a lytle whyle afore began to recouer) to be subdued agayne of the blasphemous nacions. So when they had C done this together, and besoughte the Lorde of mercy, with weppyng and fastyng three dayes longe, lay vpon the grounde: Judas exhorted them, to make them selues ready. But he and the elders together deuised, to go forth first with their people, afore ỹ king brought his host into Jewry, and afore he besyeged the citye, and so to commyt the matter vnto God. Wherfore he ascrybed the power of all things vnto God the maker of the worlde, exhorting his people to fyghte manfullye (yea, euen vnto death) for the lawes, the temple, the cytye, their owne natiue countrey, and to defend the citezens: and set hys host before Modin. Thus when they had brought a great feare and rumour among the tentes of their enemyes: and all thinges wente prosperously with them, they departed in the breake of the day, God being their helper and defender. Now whē the kynge perceaued the manlynes of the Iewes, he went about to take the stronge places by crafte, and remoued 1 ma. 11 g his host vnto Bethsura, which was a well kepte house of defence of the Iewes: but they were chased awaye, hurt and discomfited. And Judas sent vnto them that wer in it, such things as were necessary. In the Jues hoste also there was one Rhodocus, which tolde the enemyes their secretes: but they sought him oute, & when they had gotte him, they put him in prison. After this did the kyng cōmen with thē ẏ were in Bethsura, toke truce with them, departed, & stroke a battell with e Judas, which ouercame hym. But when he vnderstode, that Philyppe (whō he had left to be ouerseer of his businesse at Antiochie (began to rebel agaynst him, he was astonyed in hys mind: so that he yelded himself vnto ẏ Iewes, and made them an othe to do whatsoeuer they thoght ryght. Now when he was reconciled with theym, he offered, made muche of the temple, gaue greate gyftes vnto it, embraced Machabeus, makynge hym captayne and gouernour from Ptolomays vnto the Gerrenes. Neuertheles, when he came to Ptolomays, the people of the cytye were not contente with the bonde of frendeshyppe: for they were afraide, that he wold breake the couenaunt. Then went Lisias vp into the seat, & enfourmed the people, shewed them the cause why, and pacified thē. So he came again to Antiochie. This is nowe the matter concernynge the kinges iourney, and hys returne.

After three yeres was Judas infourmed how that Demetrius the son of Seleucus was come vp with a great power & ships, throughe the hauen of Tripolis, to take certaine commodious places and contreys, agaynst Antiochus and his captaine Lisias. Nowe Alcymus (which had bene hie preest, and wilfully defyled him selfe in the time of the mixting) seing that by no meanes hee coulde bee helped, nor haue anye more entraunce to the aultare: he camme to king Demetrius in the hundred and one and fyftye yeare, presenting vnto hym a crowne of golde, a palme and an olyue tre: which (as men thought) belonged to the temple, and that daye he held hys tonge. But when he had gotten opportunitie for hys madnesse, Demetrius called him to counsel, and asked him what thinges or counsails the Iewes leaned vnto. Hee answered: The Iewes that bee called Assidei (whose captayne is Judas Machabeus) maintayne warres, make insurrections, and will not lette the realme be in peace. For I beinge depriued of my fathers honor (I meane the hye preesthoode) am come hither: partlye because I was faithful vnto ẏ king, & partly because I sought the profit of the citezēs. And why, al our people throughe ẏ wickednes of thē ar not a litle troubled. So at the commaundemente of the captayne, they remoued from thence, and came to a towne called Dessau. And Simon Judas brother fell in hande with Nicanor, but thorowe the sodayne commyng of the enemyes, he was afrayde. Neuertheles, Nicanor hearyng the manlynes of them that were with Judas, and the bolde stomakes that they hadde to fight for their natural countrey, durst not prone the matter with bloodshedyng. Wherfore he sent Posidonius, Theodocius and Mathias before, to geue and to take peace. So whē they had taken long aduysement there vpon, and the captayne shewed it vnto the multitude, they were agreed in one mynd to haue peace. And they appoynted a day to syt vppon these matters quietlye amonge them selues, the stoles also wer brought and set forth.

He prayed him also to take a wyfe, and to bringe forth children. So he maryed, lyued in rest, and they led a commen life. But Alcimus perceaupnge the lane that was betwyxte them, and howe they were agreed together, came to Demetrius, and tolde him that Nicanor had taken straunge matters in hand, and ordeyned Judas (an enemie of the realme) to be the kynges successour. Then the kynge was sore displeased, and thorowe the wycked accusations, which Alcimus made of Nicanor, he was so prouoked, that he wrote vnto Nicanor, sayinge: that he was very angrye for the frendeshyppe and agreemente, which he had made with Machabeus. Alderman of Ierusalem, a louer of the whole citie, and a man of good report: which for the kynd herte that he bare vnto the people, was called a father of the Iewes. Thys man ofte tymes, when the Iewes were mynded to kepe them selues vndefiled, defended and deliuered them, beyng content stedfastly to spend hys bodye and his lyfe for hys people. So Nicanor wylynge to declare the hate that he bare to the Iewes, sent fyue hundred men of war to take him: for he thoght if he gate hym he shoulde bryngе the Iewes in great decay. Nowe when the people beganne to rushe in at hys house, to breake the doores, and to set fyre on it: he beyng nowe taken, wold haue defended hym selfe wyth hys swearde: chosynge rather to dye manfully, then to yelde hym selfe to those wycked doers: and because of his noble stocke, he had rather haue bene put to extrem cruelty. Notwithstanding, what tyme as he mysled of his stroke for hast, and the multitude fell in violentlye betwyxte the dores, he ranne boldely to the wall, and cast hym selfe downe manfully amonge the heape of them whiche gaue soone place to hys fall, so that he fell vpon his bely. Nevertheles, whyle ther was yet breath within hym, he was kyndled in hys mynde, and whyle hys bloode gushed out exceadyngly (for he was very sore wounded) he ranne thorow the myddest of the people, and gat hym to the toppe of a rocke. So when his blood was nowe gone, he toke out his owne bowelles with both hys handes, and threwe them vpon the people callyng vpon the Lorde of lyfe and spirite to reward hym thys agayne, and so he dyed.

NOw when * Nicanor knew that Iudas was in the countrey of Samaria, he thought with all hys power to stryke a fyelde with him vpon a Sabboth day. Nevertheless, the Iewes that were compelled to go with hym, sayde: O doo not so cruelly and vnkyndly, but hallow the Sabboth day, and worshyp hym that seeth all thynges. For all this, yet said the vngracious persone: 3.re.20.

* Is there a myghtye one in heauen, that commaunded the Sabboth daye to be kept? And when they sayd: yea: the lyuyng God, the myghty Lord in heauen, * commaunded the seuenthe daye to bee kepte, he sayde: And I am myghty vpon earth, to commaunde them for to arme theym selues, and to perfourme the kynges busynes. Not withstanding, he might not haue his purpose. Nicanor had deuysed with greate pride to ouercome Iudas, and to bryng away the victorie: But Machabeus had euer a fast confidence and a perfect hope in God, that he wolde healpe hym, and exhorted his people, not to bee afrayde at the commyng of the heathen, but alwaye to remembre the healpe that had ben shewed vnto them from heauen: yea, and to be sure nowe also, that almyghty God wold geue them the victory. He spake vnto them out of the Law and Prophetes, puttyng them in remembrance of the battailes, that they had striken afore, and made theym to bee of a good courage. So when theyr hertes were pluckt vp, he shewed them also the disceytfulnesse of the Heathen, and how they wouldе keepe no conenaunt nor othe. Thus he weaponed theym, not wyth the armour of sheld and speare, but wyth wholsome wordes and exhortations. He shewed them a dreame also, wherthorowe he made theim all glad, whiche was thys: He thought that hee sawe Onias (whyche hadde bene hye Priestе, a vertuous and louynge man, sad, and of honest conuersation, wel spoken, and one that had bene exercysed in godlynesse, from a chylde, holdyng vppe hys handes towarde Heauen, and prayenge for his people. After thys, there appered vnto hym an other man, whyche was aged, honourable, and glorious. And Onias sayd: Thys is a louer of the brethren, and of the people of Israel.

Thys

This is he that prayeth much for the people and for al the holy citie: Jeremye the prophete of God. He thought also that Jeremy helde out the ryght hand, and gaue vnto Judas a swearde of gold, saying: Take this holy swerd a gifte from God, wherewith thou shalt smite downe the enemies of the people of Israel. And so they wer wel conforted through the wordes of Judas, and tooke corage vnto thē, so that the yonge menne were determined in their mindes to fyght, and to bide stifly at it: In so much that in the thynges whiche they tooke in hande, their boldnes shewed the same, because the holy citie and the temple were in peril: for the which they toke more care, then for their wiues, childzen, brethrē and kynsefolckes. Agayne, they that were in the Citie, were more carefull for those which were to fight. Nowe when they were al in a hope that the iudgement of the matter was at hand and the enemies drewe nie, the hoste being set in aray, the Elephantes and horsemen euery one standinge in hys place: Machabeus considered the comming of the multitude, the ordenance of dyuerse weapons, the cruelnes of the beastes, and helde vp hys handes

And so he made an ende of hys wordes. Then Nicanor and they that were wyth hym, drew nye wyth shawmes and songes but Judas and hys compayne wyth prayer and calling vpon God. wyth their handes they smote, but wyth their heartes they prayed vnto the Lorde, and slewe no lesse then .xxxv. He caused the tongue also of that vngodlye Nicanor to be cut in lyke peces, and to be caste to the foules, and the cruel mannes hande to be hanged vp before the temple. So euerye manne gaue thankes vnto the Lorde, sayinge: blessed be he that hath kepte hys place vndefyled. As for Nicanors heade, hee hanged it vp vpon the hie castell, for an euidente and playne token of the helpe of God. And so they agreed altogether to kepe that day holye, namelye the thyrtenth daye of the moneth Adar, whyche in the Sirians language is called the next day before Mardocheus day.

Thus was Nicanor slayne, and frō that time forth the Jewes had the city in possession: And here wil I now make an ende.

WHen ✠ Jesus was borne at Bethleē a citie of Jewrie, in the time of Herode the king: Beholde, there came wise mē frō the east to Jerusalē, saying: where is hee that is borne kinge of Iewes? For wee haue seene his * starre in the East, and are come to worshippe him. whē Herode the king had herde these thinges, hee was troubled, and all the citie of Jerusalem ỽ him. And whan he had gathered all the chiefe priests & Scribes of the people together, he demaunded of them, where Christ should be borne. And they said vnto him: At Bethleem in Jewrye. For thus it is written by the prophet: * And thou Bethleem in the lāde of Juda, art not the least among the Princes of Juda. For * out of thee shall there come vnto me the captaine, that shall gouerne my people Israell. ¶ Then Herode (when he had priuelie called the wise men) he enquired of them diligently what time the starre appeared, & hee bade them go for Bethleem, and saide: Go your way thither, and searche diligently for the childe. And when ye haue founde him, bring mee worde againe that I maye come and worship him also. ✠ When they had heard the kinge, they departed: and lo, the starre which thay saw in the east, went before thē till it came, and stoode ouer the place, wherein the childe was. When they sawe ỹ starre, thei were exceding glad: and went into the house, and founde the childe wᵗ Mary his mother * and fel downe flat and worshipped him, and opened their treasures and offered vnto him giftes, golde, frankynsence, & myrre. And after they were warned of God in sleepe (that they should not go againe to Herode) they returned into their owne countrey another waye. ✠ When they were departed, beholde, the Aungell of the Lorde appeared to Joseph in sleepe, saying: arise, and take ỹ childe and his mother and flye into Egipt: & be thou there till I bring the worde. ℂ For it will come to passe that Herode shall seeke the childe, to destroye him. So when he awoke, he toke the childe and his mother by night, and departed into Egipt, & was there vnto ỹ death of Herode, that it might bee fulfilled, which was spokē of the Lorde by the prophet, saying: * oute of Egipt haue I called my sonne. Then Herode whē he sawe that he was mocked of ỹ wise men, he was exceding wroth, and sent forth men of warre, & slue all the children that were in Bethleem, and in all the coastes, (as many as were twoo yeare olde or vnder) according to the time, which he had diligently knowen oute of the wise men. Then was fulfilled that, which was spoken by the Prophet Jeremie: where as he saide: in Rama was there a voice heard * lamentaciō, weping, and great mourning. Rachel weping for her children, and would not bee comforted because they were not. ✠ But when Herode was deade: beholde, ✠ an Aungell of the Lorde appeared in sleepe to Joseph, in Egipt, saying: arise, and take the childe and his mother, and go into the lande of Israell, * for they are dead which sought the childes life. And he arose, and tooke the childe and his mother, and came into the lāde of Israell. But when hee heard that Archelaus did raigne in Jewrie, in the rowme of his father Herode, hee was afraide to go thither. Notwithstanding, after he was warned of God in a slepe, he turned aside into the parties of Galilie, & went and dwelt in a city which is called Nazareth: that it might be fulfilled which was spokē by ỹ Prophetes: he shall be called a Nazarite. ✠

The same daie went Jesus out of the house, * and sate by the sea syde, & much people were gathered together vnto hym, so greatly that hee went, and sate in a shippe, and all the people stoode on the shore. And he spake many thinges to them by similitudes, sayinge: Beholde, the sower went forth to sowe. And whan he sowed, some seedes fell by the waies syde, and the foules came and deuoured them vp. Some fell vpō stonie places, where they had not muche earth, and anone they sprōge vp, because they had no deepenesse of earth: and when the Sunne was vp, they caught heate, and because they had not roote, they wythered away. Again, some fell amonge thornes, and the thornes spronge vp & choaked them. But some fell into good grounde, & brought forth fruite: some an hundred folde, some sixtie folde, some thirtie folde. Whosoeuer hath eares to heare, let him heare. And ỳ Disciples came, & saide vnto him: why speakest thou to them by parables? Hee answered and saide vnto them: * it is giuen vnto you to knowe the secretes of the kingdome of Heauen, but to them it is not giuen. * For whosoeuer hath, to him shall be giuen: and he shal haue aboundāce. But whosoeuer hath not: from him shalbe taken away euen that also which he hath. Therefore speake I to them by symilitude: for they seeing, se not: and hearing, they heare not nother doe they vnderstande. And in them is fulfilled ỳ Prophecy of Esayas, which saieth: * with the eares ye shal heare, & shall not vnderstand & seyng ye shall see, and shall not perceaue. For these peoples heartes is wexed grosse, and their eares are dull of hearing, and theire eyes haue they closed, least at any tyme they should see wyth their eyes, and heare with their eares, & should vnderstand wyth their heart, and be conuerted, ỳ I also might heale them. * But blessed are your eyes, for they se: and your eares, for they heare. Verely I saye vnto you, * that many Prophets and ryghteous mē haue desyred to see thoes thinges which ye see, & haue not seene them: & to heare thoes thinges which ye heare, and haue not hearde them. * Here ye therefore the similitude of the sower. Whan one heareth the worde of the kingedome, and vnderstandeth it not, then commeth ỳ euyll man, and taketh awaye ỳ wyych was was sowen in his heart: thys is hee, which was sowen by the waye syde. But he that receaued the seede which was cast into stony places, the same is he that heareth the worde, and anone with ioye receaueth it, yet hath hee no roote in himselfe, but dureth for a season: for when tribulacion or persecution happeneth because of the worde, by and by hee falleth. Hee also that receaued seede into ꝑ thornes, is hee that heareth the word: and the care of this worlde, and ꝑ deceitfulnes of riches, choke vp the worde, and so is he made vnfruiteful. But he ꝑ receaued ꝑ seede into the good grounde is hee that heareth the worde, and vnderstandeth it: which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth some an hundred folde, some sixtie fold, some thirty folde. Another ly-

Syr didest not thou sowe good seede in thy fielde? from whence then hath it tares? He saide vnto them, the enuious mā hath done this. The seruants saide vnto him: wilt thou then ꝑ wee go, and weede them vp? But he saide, nay, least while ye gather vp the tares ye pluck vp also the wheate with thē, let both growe together vntill ꝑ harueste, and in time of harueste, I will say to the reapers gather ye first the tares, and bynde them together in sheaues to be brent: but gather the wheate into

E it is the greatest amonge herbes, and is a tree: so that the byrdes of the ayer come, and make their nestes in ꝑ braunches thereof. Another symilitude spake he vnto them: * The kingdome of Heauen is lyke vnto leuen, which a woman taketh & hydeth in three pecks of meale, till all be leuened. * All these thinges spake Jesus vnto the people by symilitudes and without a parable spake he nothinge vnto them: that it might be fulfylled, which was spoken by the Prophet, that saith. * I will open my mouth in parables: I will speake forth thinges which haue been kept secrete from the beginning of the worlde. ✠ When the people were sent away, than came Jesus into ꝑ house. * ✠ And his Disciples came vnto hym, saying: declare vnto vs the parable of the tares of the fielde. Hee aunswered and saide vnto them. Hee that soweth the good seede, is the sonne of mā. The fielde is the worlde. And the children of the kingdome, they are ꝑ good seede: the tares are the children of the wicked: the enemie ꝑ soweth them, is ꝑ deuil. The harueste is the ende of the worlde: the reapers be the Aungels. Euen as the tares therfore, are gathered & brent in the fyre: so shall it be in the ende of this worlde. * The sonne of man shall sende forth his Aungels, and they shal gather out of his kingdome all things that offende, and them which doe iniquitie: and shall cast them into a furnesse of fyre. There shall be wailing & gnasshing of teeth. * Then shall the righteous shyne as the Sonne in the kingdome of their father. Whosoeuer hath eares to heare, lett him heare. ✠ ✠ Againe, the kingdome of Heauen is lyke vnto treasure hid in the fyelde, the which a man hath founde and hyd: & for ioy therof he goeth and selleth all ꝑ he hath, and byeth the fielde. Againe, the kingdome of Heauen is lyke vnto a marchantmā, seking goodly pearles, which (when hee founde one precious pearle) went and solde all that he hade and bought it. Againe, the kingdome of heauen is lyke vnto a net, that was cast into the sea & gathered of all kinde (of fyshes) whiche when it was full men drewe to lande, and sate downe & gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad awaye. of the worlde. The Aungels shall cõe and seuer the bad from among ỹ good, and shall cast thẽ into a furnace of fire: there shalbe waylyng and gnashing of teeth. Jesus saieth vnto them: haue ye vnderstand al these thinges? They saye vnto him: ye Lorde. Then sayde he vnto them. Therfore euery Scribe which is taught vnto the kyngdome of heauen, is lyke vnto a man that is an housholder, whyche bringeth forth out of hys treasure, thinges newe and olde. ¶ And it came to passe that when Jesus had finished these similitudes, he departed thence: And whan he came into his owne countre, he taught them in their synagoges, in so muche, that they were astonied and sayde: whence commeth this wisedome and powers vnto him? is not this the carpenters sonne? Is not his mother called Mary? and his brethẽ, James and Joses and Simon and Judas? Andar not al his sisters wt vs? whẽce hath he then all these thinges? And they were offended at him. Jesus said vnto them: A prophete is not without honour, saue in his owne countre, and in hys owne house. And he did not manye miracles there, because of their vnbeleefe.

The .xiiii. Chapter.

At that time Herode the Tetrarcha heard of the fame of Jesu and sayde vnto his seruautes: this is Jhõ the Baptist. He is risen from the deade and therefore are miracles wroughte by him. For Herode had taken Jhon, & bound him, and put him in prison because of Herodias, his brother Philips wife. For Jhon sayd vnto hym: it is not lawefull for the to haue her. And when he would haue put him to death, he feared the people because they counted him as a prophet. But when Herodes byrth day was kept, the doughter of Herodias daunsed before them, and pleased Herode. Wherfore he promised with an othe, that he would geue her whatsoeuer she wold aske. And she beynge instructe of her mother before, said: geue me here Jhõ Baptistes head in a platter. And the kyng was sory. Neuertheles, for the othes sake, and them which sat also at the table, he commaunded it to be geuen her: and sent turmentours, and beheadded John in the prison, & his head was brought in a platter, and geuen to the damsell, and shee brought it to her mother. And his disciples came & toke vp his body, and buried it: went and tolde Jesus. When Jesus hard of it, he departed thence in a shyp vnto a desert place, out of the way. And when the people had hard therof, they folowed him on fote and lefte the cyties. And Jesus went forth, and sawe muche people, and was moued wyth mercy toward them, and he healed of them those that were sicke. And whẽ the euen drewe on, his disciples came to him, saying: this is a desert place, and the houre is now past, let the people depart, that they may go into the townes, and bye them vyttailes But Jesus sayd vnto them. They haue no nede to go away. Geue ye thẽ to eate. They sayd vnto hym: we haue here but fyue loues and two fyshes. He sayd: bring them hither to me. And he commaunded the people to sit downe on the grasse, and he toke the .v. loues and the two fyshes, and lifte vp hys eyes toward heauen and blessed. And whan he had brokẽ them, he gaue the loaues to his disciples, and his disciples gaue them to the people. And they dyd all eate, and were suffised. And they gathered vp (of the fragmẽtes that remayned.) xii. baskettes full. And they that dyd eate were aboute .v. M. men, beside women and chyldren. And straight way Jesus made his disciples to gette vp into a shippe, and to goo before him vnto the other side whyle he sent the people away. Agayne, he sent forth other seruauntes saying: Tell them which are bydden: beholde, I haue prepared my dynner: my oxen and my fatlynges are kylled, and all thynges are ready, come vnto ẏ mariage. But they made lyght of it, & went their wayes: one to hys ferme place, another to hys marchaundise, & the remnaũt toke his seruauntes, & intreated them shamefully and slew them. But when the kyng heard therof, he was wroth, and sent forth hys mẽ of warre and destroyed those murtherers and brent vp their citie. Then sayd he to his seruauntes: the mariage in dede is prepared. But they which were bydden were not worthy. Go ye therfore out into the hye waies: and as many as ye fynd byd them to the mariage. And the seruaũtes went out into the hye wayes, and gathered together all as many as they coulde fynde, both good and bad, & the wedding was furnished with gestes. After a fewe days also, he entred into Capernaũ agayn, & it was noysed that he was in the house. And anone many were gathered together, in so muche that nowe there was no roome to receaue them: no, not so much as about the dooze, and he preached the worde vnto them. * And they came vnto him bringing one sick of the palsey, which was borne of foure men. And when they could not come nye vnto him for preasse, they vncouered the roofe of the house ẏ he was in. And whẽ they had broke vp ẏ rofe, they did (with cords) let downe the bed wherin the sicke of the palsey lay. When Jesus saw their faith, he said vnto the sick of the palsey * Sonne, thy sinnes be forgeuen thee. But there were certain of the Scribes sitting ther, and thynking in their hartes: why doth he speake these blasphemies? who can forgeue sinnes but God only? And immediatly whẽ Jesus perceiued in his spirit that they so thought within them selues, he sayth vnto them: why think ye such things in your hearts? whether is it easyer to say to the sick of the palsey: Thy sinnes be forgeuen thee: or to say, Arise, take vp thy bed, and walk? But that ye may know, that the son of mã hath power in earth to forgeue sinnes, he spake vnto the sick of the palsey: I say vnto thee: * Arise, & take vp thy bed. & get thee hence vnto thyne own house. And immediatly he arose, toke vp the bed, and went forth before them all: in so much that they were all amased, and glorified God, sayeng: we neuer sawe it on this fashion. * And he wẽt agayne vnto the sea, and all the people resorted vnto him, & he taught them. And as Jesus passed by, he saw Leui the sonne of Alphe, sittyng at the receite of custome, & said vnto hym: Folow me. And he arose, & folowed him. And it cam to passe, that whan Jesus satte at meate in his house, many publicans and sinners sate also together at meate with Jesus & his disciples. For there was manye that folowed him. And when the Scribes & pharisees saw him eate with publicans and sinners, they saide vnto his disciples: How happeth it, that he eateth & drinketh with publicans & sinners? Whẽ Jesus heard that, he said vnto them: They that be whole, haue no nede of the Physition, but they that are sicke. * I came not to cal the rightuous, but sinners to repentance. * And the disciples of Iohn & the Pharisees did fast: and they come and say vnto him: why did the disciples of Iohn & of the pharisees fast, but thy disciples fast not? And Jesus saide vnto them, can the childrẽ of the wedding fast while the bridegrome is with them? As lõg as they haue the bridegrome with them, they cã not fast. But ẏ dayes wil com when the bridegrome shalbe taken away from them, and thã shal they fast in those dayes. And he said vnto them: Know ye not this parable, and how then will ye know all other parables? * The sower soweth the word. And (they wherof some be rehersed to be by ẏ way side) ar those where the word is sowen: And whē they heare, Sathan cometh immediatly, and taketh away the worde that was sowen in their heates. And like wise the other that receaue seede into the stony ground, ar they, which whē they heare the word, at once receiue it with gladnesse, yet haue no roote in them selues, and so endure but a time: and anon whē trouble & persecution ariseth for the wordes sake, they fall immediatly. There be other also that receaued sede into thornes, & those are such as heare the word, & the cares of this world, and the deceitfulnes of riches, and the lustes of other thinges, enter in and choke the worde, & it is made vnfruitfull. And whan there came one of ỹ scribes and had heard e them disputinge together, and perceaued that he had answered them well, he asked him: which is the first of all the commaundementes? Jesus aunswered him, the first of all the commaundementes is: Heare O Israell: The Lorde our God, is lord onely: And thou shalt loue the Lorde thy God with all thy harte, and with all thy soule, and with all thy mynde, and with all thy strength. This is the first commaundement. And the second is lyke vnto this: Thou shalte loue thy neyghbour as thy selfe. There is none other commaundemente greater then these. And the Scribes sayd vnto him: well master, thou hast sayd the truth, for there is one God, and there is none but he. And to loue him wyth all thy hart, and with all thy minde, & with all thy soule, and with all thy strẽgthe: and to loue a mans neyghboure as him selfe, is a greater thynge, then all burnte offerynges and sacrifyces. The Gholspell of Saynct Luke.

FOr as muche as manye haue taken in hande, to set forth the declaration of those thynges, which are moost surelye to be beleued among vs, euen as they delyuered them vnto vs, whiche from the begynnyng sawe thē with their eies, and were ministers of the things that they declared: I determyned also as sone as I had searched out diligentlye all thynges from the begynnyng) that then I would wryte vnto the, good Theophilus: ỳ thou mightest knowe the certenty of those thinges where of thou hast bene informed.

THere was in the I dayes of Herode the kynge of Jurye a certayne Preste named Zacharias * of 1.Pe.25 the course of Abia. And hys wyfe was of the daughters of Aaron: and her name was Elizabeth: they were both ryghteous before God, and walked in all the lawes and ordynaunces of the Lord, that no man could find faute with them. And they had no child, because that Elizabeth was barren, and they bothe nowe well stryken in age. And it came to passe, that whan Zachary executed the Priestes office before God, as his course came (accordyng to the custome of the priestes office) his lot fell to burnt incense: And Exo.30b Ecclus.9.b he went into the temple of the Lord, and the whole multitude of the people were with out in prayer, while the incense was a burnynge. And there appeared vnto him an aungell of ỹ Lord standyng on the ryght syde of the aulter of incense. And when Zacharyas sawe hym, he was abashed, and feare B came on him. But the aungell sayd vnto him: feare not Zachary, for thy prayer is harde. And thy wyfe Elizabeth shall beare the a sonne, and thou shalte call his name Jhon, & thou shalt haue ioye and gladnes, and manye shall reioyce at hys byrth. For he shalbe great in the syght of the Lorde, & shal nether dryncke wyne, nor strong drinke. And he shalbe fylled with the holye Ghost, euen from his mothers wombe: and many of the chyldren of Israell shall tourne to their Lorde God. And he shall goo before him in the spirite and Mat.11 power of + Helias to tourne the harts of the fathers to the chyldren, and the vnbeleuers to the wysedome of the iust men, to make ready a perfecte people for the Lorde. And zacharias sayd vnto the aungell: by what token shal Gen.17c and.18.b I knowe this? For + I am olde, and my wyfe wel stryken in yeares. And the aungell aunswered, and sayd vnto hym. I am Gabriell, that stande in the presence of God, and am sente to speake vnto thee: & to shewe the these glad tydynges. And behold, it shal cõe to passe, that thou shalt be dom and not be hable to speake, vntyll the day that these thynges be performed, because thou beleuedst not my wordes whych shalbe fulfylled in their season. And the people wayted for zacharias: and merueyled that he taryed in the temple. And when he came out he coulde not speake vnto them. And they perceaued that he hadde seene a vysion in the temple. And he beckened vnto thẽ, and remayned speachelesse. ✠ And it fortuned, that as soone as the dayes of his office were oute, he departed into hys owne house. And after those dayes, hys wife Elizabeth conceaued, and hyd her selfe fyue monethes, sayinge: This wise hath God dealt with me, in the dayes wherin he hath loked on me, to take from me my rebuke among men. And in the sixt moneth the aungell Gabriell was sent from God vnto a citie of Galilie, named Nazareth, to a virgin spoused to a manne, whose name was Joseph, of the house of Dauid, and the virgins name was Mary. And the aungell wente in vnto her, and sayde. Hayle full of grace, the Lorde is with the: blessed art thou amonge women. whẽ she sawe hym, she was abashed at his saying: & caste in her mynde, what maner of salutation that shoulde be. And the aungell sayde vnto her: feare not Marye: for thou hast found grace with God. Be- Esay.7c holde, + thou shalte conceaue in thy Mat.1.c wombe, and beare a sonne, and + shalt luke,2,c, cal his name Jesus. He shalbe great & shalbe called the sonne of the hyest. And the Lord god shal geue vnto him the seate of his father Dauid. + and he Esay,9,b shall raygne ouer the house of Jacob Dani,7b for euer, and + of hys kyngdome there Mich,4c shalbe none ende. Then sayde Marye D vnto the aungell: Howe shal this be, seynge I knowe not a man? And the aungell aunswered, and said vnto her: The holye Ghost shall come vpon the and the power of the hyest shall ouershaddowe the. Therefore also that holy thyng whyche shalbe borne, shalbe called the sonne of God. And beholde, thy cosen Elizabeth, she hath also conceaued a sonne in her age. And thys is her syxt moneth, whych was called ba- zacha,8,b ren: for + with God shall nothynge be mat,19,a vnpossyble. And mary sayde: beholde mar,10,b the handemayden of the Lorde, be it luke,18a vnto me according to thy worde. ✠ And the aungell departed from her. ✠ And Marye arose in those dayes, and wente into the mountaines with hast into the cytie of Iewry, & entred into the house of Zacharye, and saluted Elizabeth. And it fortuned, that whan Elizabeth harde the salutation of Mary, the babe sprang in her wõbe E And Elizabeth was fylled with the holy ghost, and cried with a loud voice and sayde: Blessed arte thou amonge women, and blessed is the frute of thy wombe. And whence happened thys to me, that the mother of my Lorde shoulde come to me? For lo, as soone as the voyce of thy salutation sounded in myne eares, the babe sprange in my wombe for ioye. And blessed art thou that hast beleued: for those thynges shalbe perfourmed, which were tolde thee from the Lorde. And Mary said.

Esay. 16 * My soule magnifieth the Lord. And my spirite hath reioysed in God my sauyour. ✠ For he hath loked on the lowe degree of hys handmayden: for lo, nowe from henceforth shal al generations call me blessed. Because he ỳ is myghty, hath done to me gret thinges, and holye is his name. And his mercy is one them that feare him, from generation to generatiõ. And they made signes to hys father, howe he woulde haue hym called. And he asked for writing Tables, and wrote, saying: his name is Ihon. And they maruciled al. And his mouth was opened immediately, and his tongue also, and he spake, and praysed God. And feare came on al thẽ that dwelt nye vnto thẽ. And all these sayinges were noised abroad through out all the hill countre of Iurie: and all they that harde them layd them vp in their hartes, saying: What maner of childe shall this be? And the hande of the Lord was with him. And his father Zacharias was fylled wyth the holye Ghost, and prophesyed sayinge:
Psa. 13 Praysed be the Lorde God of Israel, for he hath visited and redemed hys people. ✠ And hath raysed vp * an horn of saluatiõ vnto vs, in the house of his seruaunt Dauid. Euen as he promysed by the mouth of his holy prophets which were sens the worlde begamne.

AND it chaunsed in those dayes: that there wente oute a commaundemēt from Augustus the Emperour, that all the worlde should be taxed. And this taxing was the first, and executed when Syrenius was leftenaunte in Syria. And euery man went vnto his owne citie to be taxed. And Joseph also ascended from Galilie, out of a citie called Nazareth, into Jewry: vnto * the 1.Re.20 citie of Dauid, which is called Bethleem, because he was of the house and lynage of Dauid, to be taxed wt Mary his spoused wife, which was with child. And it fortuned that whyle they were ther, her time was come that she B should be deliuered. And she brought forth his first begotten sonne, & wrapped him in swadlynge clothes, & layde hym in a maunger, because there was no rowme for them in the ynne. And there were in the same region of shepperdes, watchyng and keppynge theyr flocke by night. And lo, the aungell of the Lorde stode harde by them, and the brightnes of the Lorde shone rounde about them, and they were sore afraid. And the aungell sayde vnto them: Be not afrayd. For beholde, I bryng you tydynges of great ioye, that shal come to al people: for vnto you is borne this day in the citie of Dauid, a Sauyoure which is Chryst the Lorde. And take this for a sygne: ye shall finde the child wrapped in swadling clothes, and layed in a maunger. And strayghte waye there was with the aungell a multytude of heauenly sowdyers, prayesynge God: and sayinge: Glorye to God on hye, and peace on the earth, and vnto men a good will. And it fortuned, as soone as the aungels were gone away
C from them into heauen. The shepeherdes sayde one to another: let vs go nowe euen vnto Bethleem: & se this thinge that we heare say is happened, which the Lord hath shewed vnto vs. And they came with hast, and founde Mary and Joseph and the babe layde in a Maunger. And when they hadde sene it, they published abroade the saying: whych was told them of ỹ child.

And al they that harde it, wondred at those thinges which were tolde them of the shepeherdes. But Mary kept al those sayinges, and pondered them in her harte. And the shepeherdes retourned, prayesynge and laudyng God for all the thynges that they had hearde and seene, euen as it were tolde vnto thē. 30

And whē ỹ eyght day was come that the childe shoulde be * circumcised * hys name was called Jesus * whyche was named of the aungel, before he was conceaued in the wombe. Gene.17 *mat.1,c *luke.1 c

And when the time of their purification * (after the lawe of Moyses) was come they brought him to Jerusalem, to present hym to the Lorde (as it is written in the lawe of the Lorde * euery manchild that first openeth the matrix, shalbe called holy to the Lord) and to offer (as it is sayde in the lawe of the Lorde) a payre of turtledoues, or two young pygyons. And beholde there was a manne in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon. And the same manne was iust and godlye, and loked for the consolatyon of Israell, and the holye Ghost was in him. And an aunswere hadde he receaued of the holye Ghoste, that he shoulde not see death, excepte he fyrste sawe the Lorde Chryste. And he came by inspyratyon into the temple. And when the father and mother broughte in the childe Jesus: to do for hym after the custome of the * lawe, then toke he hym vppe in hys armes, and prayesed God and sayde: Lorde, nowe lettest thou thy seruaunte departe in peace, accordyng to thy promyse. For myne eyes haue seene thy saluatyon: which thou hast prepared before the face of all people. * A lyghte to lyghten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israell. And hys father and mother mercuyed at those thynges whyche were spoken of hym. And Simeon blessed them and sayde vnto Marye hys mother: beholde, thys childe is set to be the fal and vprysing agayne of manye in Israell, and for a sygne whyche is spokenne agaynste.

For I say vnto you amōg womens children, is there not a greatter Prophete then Iohn Baptist. Neuertheles, he which is lesse, in the kingdome of God is greater than he. And al the people, & the Publicans that heard him, iustified God, & were baptised with the baptisme of Iohn. But the pharises & lawyers despised the councel of God against them selues, and were not baptised of him. And the Lord said: Whervnto shal I liken the men of this generation: & what thing are they like? They are like vnto children sitting in the market place, and crying one to an other, & sayeng, we haue piped vnto you, & ye haue not daunced: we haue mourned to you, & ye haue not wepte. For Iohn Baptist came, neither eating bread, nor drinking wyne, & ye say, he hath the deuyll. The sonne of man is come, and eateth & drinketh, and ye say Behold a gluttonous man, and an vnmeasurable drinker of wine, a frēd of Publicans & sinners. And wisdome is iustified of all her children. And one of the Pharisees desired him that he wold eate with him. And he went in to the Pharises house, and sat down to meate. JEsus called the .xii. togither and gaue them power & auctoritie ouer al diuels, & that they might heale diseases. And he sēt thē to preach ẏ kingdom of god, * and to heale the sick, & he said vnto them: Take nothig to your iorney, neither staffe nor scrip, neither bred, * neither money, neither haue two cotes: * and whatsoeuer house ye enter into, there abide, & thēs depart. And whosoeuer wil not receiue you, whē ye go out of ẏ citie, shake of ẏ very dust frō your fete, for a testimony against thē. And they departed & wēt throw ẏ tounes preching the gospell, & healing euery where. ✠ * And Herode ẏ Tetrarch herd of all ẏ was done by him, & doubted, because ẏ it was said of some, ẏ John was risē again from death: & of som, ẏ Helias had appered, & of some, ẏ one of ẏ old prophets was risen again. And Herod said: John haue I beheaded: but who is this, of whō I here such thigs: & he desired to se him And ẏ apostles returned, & told him all ẏ they had don. * and he toke thē, & wēt aside into a solitary place nye vn to ẏ citie ẏ is called Bethsaida. Whiche when the people knew, they folowed him: & he receiued them, & spake vnto thē of the kyngdom of god, and healed them ẏ had nede to be healed. And whē ẏ day began to wear away then came ẏ .xii. & said vnto him: send ẏ people away, ẏ they may go into ẏ towns & next villages, & lodge, & get meat: for we ar here in a place of wil dernes. But he said vnto thē: Geue ye thē to eate. And thei said: we haue no mo but .v. loaues, and .ij. fishes, except we shuld go and bie meate for all this people. And they wer about .v. M. mē. And he said to his disciples: Cause thē to syt down by fifties in a cōpany: and they did so, and made thē all to syt downe. And he toke ẏ fiue loaues & the fishes, & loked vp to heauen: & blessed thē, & brake, & gaue to ẏ disciples, to set before ẏ people. And they al did eat, & wer satisfied: & there was takē vp of ẏ remained to them, xii. baskets full of brokē meat. * And it fortuned, as he was alone praying, his disciples were w him, & he asked thē, saying: * who say the people ẏ I am? Thei answerd, & said: John Baptist. Some say Helias, & some say, ẏ one of ẏ old Prophets is risē. He said vnto them. But who say ye ẏ I am? Symō Peter answered, & said * thou art ẏ Christ of God. And he warned & cōmanded them, ẏ they shold tell no man ẏ thing, saying: * The son of mā must suffre many thinges: & be reproued of the elders, & of the hie prests & scribes, & be slain, & rise again ẏ third day. And he said to thē all, if any mā will come after me, let him deny him self, & take vp his crosse daily, & folow me. * For whosoeuer will saue hys life shal lose it. But whosoeuer doth lose his life for my sake, the same shal saue it. For what auātageth it a mā if he wyn ẏ whole world, & lose him self, or run in damage of himself? For * who so is ashamed of me, and of my wordes, of him shal ẏ son of man be ashamed, when he cōmeth in his maiestie, & in ẏ maiesty of his father, & of ẏ holy angels. I tell you of a truth: * there be some standing here, which shal not tast of deth, til they se ẏ kyng dō of god. * And it fortuned, ẏ about an. viii. days after these sayinges, he toke Peter & John & James, & wēt vp into a mountain to pray. And as he praied, the fashion of his countenāce was chāged, & his garmēt was whit & shone. And behoide, there talked w him two men, which were Moses & Helias, ẏ appered in the maiestie, & spake of his departynge, whyche he shold ende at Jerusalem. But Peter and they that were with hym, were heuy with sleape. And when they awoke, they sawe his maiestie, & two men stāding with him. * And it chāced, as they departed from him, Peter said vnto Jesus: Maister, it is good beyng here for vs. Let vs make also thre tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, & one for Helias (& wyst not what he sayde.) whyle he thus spake, there came a cloude, & ouershadowed them, & they feared whā they

And they kept it close: & tolde no man in those dais, any of these things which they had sene. ✠ And it chanced, that on the next day (as they came dowen from ỹ hill, muche people met him. And behold, a mā of the company cried out, sayeng: Master, I beseech thee behold mi son, for he is al that I haue, & se, a spyte taketh him, & sodenly he crieth, (& he knocketh) and teareth him that he fometh agayn, & with much paine departeth from him, whē he hath rēt him, and I besought thy disciples to cast him out, and they could not. Jesus answered & said: O faithles and croked nation, how e long shall I be with you, & shall suffer you? Bringe thy sonne hither. And as he was yet coming, the fiend rent him, and tare him. And Jesus rebuked the vncleā spyte, & healed the childe, & deliuered him to his father. ✠ And they were all amased at the myghtye power of God. But while they wondred euery one at all thyngs which he did, he said vnto his disciples: Let these sayengs sink dowen into your eares. For it will come to passe: that ✠ the sonne of man shalbe deliuered into the handes of mē. ✠ But they wist not what that word ment, & it was hid frō thē, that they vnderstode it not. And they fered to aske him of that saying. And there entred a thought among them, which of them should be the greatest. When Jesus perceiued the thoughte of their hearts: ✠ he toke a childe, and set him hard by him, & said vnto them whosoeuer receueth this child in my name, receueth me: ✠ And whosoeuer receiueth me, receiueth him that sent me. For he that is least amōg you all the same shalbe great. And John answered, & said: Maister, we sawe one castyng out deuils in thy name, & we forbad hym, because he followeth not with vs. And Jesus said vnto him: ✠ forbid ye him not. For he that is not against vs, is with vs. And it fortuned whē the tyme was come, that he shold be receiued vp, he set his face to go to Jerusalē, & sent messengers before him. And they wēt into a citie of the Samaritās, to make redy for him. And they would not receiue him, because his face was as though he wold go to Jerusalē. Whē his disciples James & John saw this, they said: Lord wilt thou that we commande fire to come dowen from heauen, & consume them, euē as Helias did? Jesus turned about, & rebuked thē, saying: Ye wote not what maner spyt ye are of. For ỹ son of mā is not cōe to destroy mēs iynes, but to saue thē. And they went to an other town. ¶ And it chāced, ỹ as they wer walking in ỹ way a certain mā sayd vnto him: ✠ I will folow thee, whither soeuer thou go: Jesus said vnto him: foxes haue holes, & birds of the aire haue nests: but the sonne of mā hath not where to lay his head. And he said vnto an other: folow me: & ỹ same said: Lord, suffer me first to go & bury my father. Jesus said vnto him: ✠ Let ỹ dead bury their dead: but go thou & preach ỹ kingdom of god. And another said: Lord ✠ I will folow thee: but let me first go bid thē farewell, which ar at my house. Jesus said vnto hym: No man that putteth his hāds to the plough, & loketh back is apt & mete for ỹ kingdom of god. ¶

THere were present at ŷ same season, certain men ŷ shewed him of the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mingled wt their owne sacrifice. And Jesus answered, & sayde vnto them: Suppose ye that these * Galileans were greater sinners then all the other Galileans, bicause they suffred such punishment? I tel you nay: but except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perishe. Or those .xviii. vpon which the towre in Siloe fell, & slew them, think ye that they were sinners aboue all men that dwelt in Jerusalem? I tell you nay: But except ye repent, ye shall all like wise perish. ✠ He told also this simi-litude: A certaine man had * a fygge tree planted in his vineyarde, and he came and sought fruite thereon, and found none. Then said he to ŷ dresser of his vineyarde: Beholde, this thee yeare

yeare hēce I come and sought fruite of this figge tree, & finde none cut it downe, why comebryeth it the grouṅd: and he answered and sayde vnto him: Lorde, let it alone this yere also, til I digge round about it, and dong it, to se whether it will beare fruite: and if it beare not thē, after that shalt thou cut it downe. And he taught in one of their synagoges on the Sabboth daies. And behold ther was a womā, which had a spirit of infirmitie. xviii yeares, and was bowed together, and coulde in no wyse lifte vppe her head. ¶ When Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and sayd vnto her: woman: thou art deliuered from thy disease. And he layd hys handes on her, and immediatlye, she was made straight, and glorified God. And the ruler of the Synagoge aunswered with indignatiō (because ẏ Jesus hadde healed on the Sabboth daye) and sayd vnto the people: There are sixe dayes, in whiche men ought to worke, in them come that ye may be healed, and not on the Sabboth daye. But the Lorde aunswered him, and said: Thou hipocrite doth not eche one of you on the Sabboth day * lose his oxe or his asse frō the stall, & leade him to ẏ water? And ought not this doughter of Abraham whom Sathan hath bound (lo. xviii. yeares) be loosed from this bond on ẏ Sabboth day? And whē he thus said all his aduersaries were ashamed, & all the people reioyced on al the excellent deds that were doone by hym. ¶ Then sayd he: what is the kingdome of God like? or wherto shall I compare it? * It is lyke a grayne of mustard sede, which a man toke, & sowed in his gardein: and it grew & waxed a great tree, and the foules of the aire made nestes in the bracches of it. And again he said. wherunto shal I liken the kingdom of God? * It is like leuen which a * woman toke, and hyd in three peckes of meale, till all was leuened. And he went through all cities and townes, teaching & iorneying towardes Jerusalem: Then said one vnto hym: Lorde, ar there few that be saued? And he said vnto hym: Strue to enter in at the strait gate: for many (I say vnto you) will seke to enter in & shal not be able. when ẏ good man of the house is risen vp, & hath shut to the doore, & ye begyn to stand without, & to knock at the doze saying: Lorde, Lorde, open vnto vs, and he shall answer, and say vnto you (I know you not whens ye are.) Then shall ye begin to say: we haue eaten & dronken in thy presence, & thou haste taught in our streetes. And he shall say: I tell you, I knowe not whens ye are: Departe from me all ye that worke iniquitie: there shall be weping and gnashyng of teethe, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the Prophetes in the kingdome of God, and ye your selues thrust out. * And they shall com from the East, and from the west, and from the North, and from the South, and shall syt downe in the kyngdome of God. And beholde, * there are laste, which shalbe first: and there are first which shalbe last. The same day cam there certaine of the Pharisees, & said vnto him: Get the out of the waye, & depart hence: for Herode wil kil the. And he sayd vnto them: Go ye, and tell that fore, Beholde, I cast out deuils, and heale the people to daye and to morow, and the third day I make an end. Neuertheles, I must walk to day and to morow, and the day folowyng: for it can not be, that a Prophete perysshe any other where, saue at Jerusalem. * O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest Prophets, and stonest them that are sent vnto the: how ofte wold I haue gathered thy chyldren together, as a byrd doth gather her yong vnder her wynges and ye wouldē not? Beholde, your habitation is lefte vnto you desolate. I tell you, ye shall not see me, vntil the tyme comme that ye shall saye: Blessed is he that commeth in the name of the Lorde.

AND it chaūced, that he went into the house of one of the chefe Pharises, to eate bred on ỹ Sabboth daye, and they watched him. And behold there was a certaine man before him, which had the dropsie. And Jesus aunswered and spake vnto the lawers and Pharises, saying, * is it lawefull to heale on the Sabboth day? And they held their peace. And he toke hym & healed hym and let hym go, & aunswered them sayinge: which of you shal haue * an asse or an oxe fallē into a pyt and will not straight waye pull him oute on the Sabboth daye? And they could not aunswere hym agayne to these things. He put forth also a similitude to the gestes, when he marked, howe they preased to the hiest rowmes, and sayd vnto them: When thou art bydden of any man to a weddyng, syt not down in the hiest rowme, lest a more honorable man thē thou be bidden of him, and he (that bad him & the) come and say to the: geue this man rowme, and thou than begynne wyth shame to take the lowest rowme. But rather when thou art bidden, go and sit in the lowest rowme: that when hee that bad the, commeth he may say vnto thee: * frend sit vp hier. Then shalt thou haue worshipe in the presence of them that sit at meat with the. * For whosoeuer exalteth him selfe, shalbe brought lowe. And he that humbleth him selfe, shalbe exalted. ✠ Then sayd he also vnto him, that had desired him to dinner: ✠ when thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy frendes, nor thy brethren, nether thy kinsmen, nor thy rych neighbours, lest they also bid thee agayne, and a recompence be made the. But when thou makest a feast, call ỹ poore, the feble, the lame and the blind, & thou shalt be happye, for they can not recompence the. But thou shalt be recompensed at ỹ resurrection of the iust menne. When one of them (that satte at meate also) hearde these thynges, he sayde vnto hym: happye is he that eateth breade in the kyngedome of GOD. ✠

Then sayd he vnto him: ✠ A certain man ordeined a great supper, and bad many, and sent his seruant at supper time, to say to them that were bidde, Come, for all thinges are now ready. And they all at once began to make excuse. The firste sayde vnto hym: I haue bought a farme, & I must nedes go and see it, I pray thee haue me excused. And an other sayde: I haue bought fyue yoke of oxen, and I go to proue them, I pray thee, haue me excused. And an other sayde: I haue maried a wife, and therfore I can not come. And the seruaunt returned and brought his master word again therof. Then was the good mā of ỹ hous displeased, and saide to his seruaunt: Go out quickely into the streetes and quarters of the citie, and bring in hyther the poore & the feble, and the halt and the blynd. ¶ The xv. Chapter. ✠

THē resorted vnto him * al the publicans and sinners, for to hear hym. And the Scrybes and Pharises murmured, saying: He receaueth sinners, and eateth with them. But he put forth this parable vnto them, saying: * What man of you hauing an hundred shepe (if he lose one of them, doth not leaue ninty & nine in ꝑ wildernes, & go after that which is lost, vntill he fynd it? And whan he hath found it, he laieth it on his shoulders with ioy. And as sone as he commeth home, he calleth together his louers & neighbors, saying: Reioyce with me, for I haue founde my shepe, which was lost. I say vnto you, that likewise ioy shalbe in heauē ouer one sinner that repenteth, more then ouer nintie & nine iuste persons, which neede no repentaunce. Either what woman (hauing ten grotes, if she lose one) doth not light a candle, & swepe the house, and seeke diligently till she fynde it? And whan she hath founde it, she calleth her louer, & her neighbors together, saying: Reioyce with me, for I haue found the grote whiche I had lost. Likewise I saye vnto you, shall there be ioy in the presence of the angelles of God ouer one sinner * that repenteth. ✠ And he said: A certain mā had two sonnes, & the yonger of them sayd vnto the father: Father, geue me the portion of the goods, that to me belongeth. And he deuided vnto them his substance. And not long after, whan the yonger sonne hadde gathered all that he had together, he toke his iourney into a farre countrey, and * there he wasted his goodes with riotous liuing. And when he hadde spent all, there arose a great dearth in all that lande, and he began to lacke, and went and cam to a citizen of the same countrey and he sent him to his farme, to kepe swyne. And he wold fayne haue filled his bely with the coddes that the swyne dyd eate, and no manne gaue vnto hym. Then he came to hym self, and sayd: Howe many hyred seruantes at my fathers haue bread inough: and I perysche with hunger: I wyll aryse, and go to my father, and wil say vnto him: father, I haue synned agaynst heauen and before the, and am no more woorthy to be called thy son, make me as one of thy hyred seruantes. And he arose, and came to his father. * But when he was yet a great way of, his father sawe him, and had compassion, and ranne, and fell on his necke and kyssed hym. And the sonne sayd vnto hym: Father, I haue synned agaynst heauen, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to bee called thy sonne. But the father sayd to his seruauntes: Bryng forthe the beste garment, and put it on hym, and put a ryng on his hande, and shoes on his feete: and bryng hither that fat calfe, and kill it, and let vs eate and be merry: for this my sonne was dead, and is alyue agayne, he was loste, and is founde. And they began to be merye. The elder brother was in the fielde, and when he came and drewe nye to the house, he harde minstrelsy and daunsyng, and called one of his seruantes, and asked what those thinges ment? And he said vnto hym: thy brother is come, and thy father hathe killed the fat calfe, because he hath receaued hym safe and sounde. And he was angrye, and would not goe in. Then cam his father out, and entreated him. He answered and sayd to his father: Lo, these many yeares haue I done the seruice, neither brake at any time thy cōmandemēt, and yet gauest thou me neuer a kyd to make merry ✠ my frendes: but as soone as this thy sonne was come (whyche hathe deuoured thy goodes with harlottes, thou hast for hys pleasure killed the fat calfe. And he sayd vnto him: sonne, thou arte euer wyth me, and all that I haue, is thine: it was mete that we shoulde make merrye and be glad, for this thy brother was deade, and is a-lyue agayne: and was lost, & is found.

A AND he sayd vnto hys disciples. ✠ There was a certaine rich man, which had a stewarde, and ỹ same was accused vnto hym that he had wasted his goodes. And he called him, and sayde vnto hym. Howe is it, that I heare this of thee? geue accoumptes of thy stewardshyp. For thou mayst be no longer stewarde. The steward sayde within him selfe: what shall I doo? for my master taketh awaye from me the stewardshyp. I can not digge and to begge I am ashamed. I wot what to do, that when I am put out of the stewardshippe, they maye receaue me into their houses. So when he hadde B called al his masters detters together, he sayde vnto ỹ first: howe much owest thou vnto my master? And he sayd an hundred tōnes of oile. And he sayd vnto him: take thy bill, and sit downe quickely, and wryte fyftye. Then sayd he to another: how much owest thou, And he sayd an hundred quarters of wheate. He sayd vnto him: Take thy bill, and wryte foure scoore. And the Lord commended the iniust steward, because he had done wiselye. For the children of thys world ar in their nation wiser then the children of light. C And I say vnto you: make you frendes of ỹ vnrighteous of Mammon, ỹ when ye shal haue nede, they may receaue you into euerlastyng habitations. ✠ He that is faithfull in that whiche is leaste, is faithefull also in muche. And he that is vnrighteous in the leaste, is vnrighteous also in muche. Soo then, if ye haue not ben faithfull in the vnrighteous Mammon, who wyll beleeue you in that which is true? And yf ye haue not ben faithfull in an other mans busynes, who shall geue you that which is youre owne? * No seruante can Mar. serue two maisters: for either he shall hate the one, and loue the other, or els he shall leane to the one, and dispise the other. Ye can not serue God and Mammon. All these thinges hearde the Pharisees also, which wer couetous, and they mocked hym. And he D sayd vnto them. Ye are they whiche iustifie your selues before men: but God knoweth your hertes. For that which is highly estemed among men is abhominable in the sight of god. ✠ * The law and the prophets reigned mat.11 vntill Iohn, and sence that tyme, the kingdome of God is preached, & euery mā striueth to go in. * Easier is it for heauen and earthe to perishe, then Esa, one title of the law to fayle. * Who so Mat. euer forsaketh his wife, and marryeth mat.19 an other, committeth aduoutrie. And mar.10 he which marieth her that is deuorsed frō her husband, cōmitteth aduoutrie also. ✠ There was a certain rich man, whyche was clothed in purple E and fine white, and fared deliciously euery day. And there was a certayne begger, named Lazarus, which lay at his gate ful of sores, desiring to be refreshed with the crūmes, which fell from the riche mās boord (and no mā gaue vnto him.) The dogs came also, and licked his sores. And it fortuned, that the begger died, and was caried by the angelles into Abrahams bosome. The ryche man also dyed, & was buried. And being in hell in tormentes, he lift vp his eies, and sawe F Abraham a farre of, and Lazarus in his bosome, and he cried and said: Father Abraham, haue mercy on me, & send Lazarus, that he maye dippe the tippe of his fynger in water, and cole my tong: for I am tormented in this flame. But Abraham sayd: Sonne, * remembre ỹ thou in thy life time, re- Gala.6 ceauedst thy pleasure, & contrarywise Lazarus receiued paine. But now is he comforted, and thou art punished. Beyond al this, betwene vs and you there is a great space set, so that they which wold go from hens to you, can not: neyther may come from thence to vs. Then he sayd: I praye the therfore father, send him to my fathers house. (For I haue fyue brethren) for to warne them, leste they also come into this place of torment. Abraham sayde vnto hym, they haue Moses and the Prophetes, let them heare them. And he said: nay father Abraham, but if one come vnto them frō the dead, they wyl repente. He sayde vnto him: If they heare not Moses and the Prophetes, neyther will they beleue thoughe one rose from death agayne. ✠

IT is sayde vnto the disciples: it can not be, but offences wyll come. Neuertheles wo vnto hym, thro we whom they come. It were better for hym, that a milstone were hāged about his necke, and he caste into the see, then that he shoulde offende one of these yytticons. Take hede to youre selues. * If thy brother trespas againste thee, rebuke him: and if he repēt, forgeue hym. And thoughe he synne agaynste thee seuen tymes in a day, and seuē times in a day tourne agayne to the, sayinge: it repenteth me, thou shalte forgeue him. And the Apostles sayde vnto the Lorde: increase our faith. And the Lorde sayde: * If ye had faith like a grayne of mustardsede, and should say vnto this Sicamine tree, plucke thy selfe vp by the rootes: and plant thy selfe in the see, it should obey you. Who is it of you, if he had a seruaunt plowyng or fedyng catell, that will saye vnto hym when he commeth from the felde: Go quickly, and sit downe to meate, and saieth not rather vnto hym, dresse, wherwith I may suppe, and gyrde vp thy selfe, and serue me, tyll I haue eaten and dronken, and afterward eate thou & drynke thou? Doth he thanke that seruaunte because he dyd the thynges that were commaunded vnto him? I trowe not. So likewyse ye when ye haue done al those thinges which are commaunded you say: we are vnprofitable seruants. we haue done, that whiche was oure dueтye to do. ✠ And it chaunced as he went to Ierusalem, ✠ he passed thrō Samaria and Galile. And as he entred into a certayne towne, there mete him ten men that were lepers, whiche stode a farre of, and put forth their voices, and sayd: Iesu master haue mercy on vs. When he saw them, he said vnto them: * Go shew your selues vnto the Priestes. And it came to passe, that as they went they were clensed. And one of them, when he sawe that he was clensed, turned backe againe, and with a loude voyce praysed God, and fell downe on his face at his fete, and gaue hym thankes. And the same was a Samaritayne. And Iesus answered, and sayde: are there not ten clensed? But wher are those nyne? There are not found that returned again, to geue God praise saue onely this straunger. And he sayde vnto hym: aryse go thy way, thy faith hath made the whole. ✠ ✠ When he was demaunded of the Pharises, when the kingdome of God shoulde come, he answered them, and sayde: The kyngdome of God shall not come with waytyng for, neyther shall they saye, Lo here, or lo there. For beholde, the kyngdome of God is within you. And he sayde vnto the disciples: the dayes wyll come, when ye shall desyre to see one daye of the sonne of man, and ye shall not see it. * And they shall saye vnto you: See here, See there. Go not after them, nor folowe them: for as the lyghtenynge that appeareth out of the one part that is vnder heauen, and shyneth vnto the other parte whyche is vnder heauen: so shall the sonne of man be in hys dayes. But first muste he suffer many thynges and be refused of thys nacion. And as it happened in the * dayes of Noe: so shall it be also in the dayes of the sonne of man. They dyd eate and drynke, they maryed wyues, and were maryed, euen vnto that same daye that Noe wente into the Arke: and the floude came, and destroyed them all. These thynges were done in Bethabara beyonde Iordane * where Iohn dyd baptise. ✠ ✠ The next day. Iohn seeth Iesus commyng vnto hym, and sayth * behold the lamb of God, which taketh away the synnes of the worlde. Thys is he of whom I sayde: After me cometh a man: whych went before me, for he was before me, and I knew him not: but that he should be declared to Israell, therefore am I come baptisynge with water. * And Iohn bare recorde, sayinge: I sawe the spirite descende from heauen, lyke vnto a doue, and abode vppon hym, and I knewe hym not. But he that sent me to baptise in water, the same sayde vnto me: vpon whom ye shall see the spirite descende, and tary still on him, the same is he which baptised with the holy ghost. And I sawe, and bare recorde, that he is the sonne of God. ✠ The next daye after, Iohn stode agayne, and two of hys disciples, and he beheide Iesus as he walked by, and sayeth: beholde the lambe of God. And the two disciples heard hym speake, and they folowed Iesus. And Iesus turned aboute, and sawe them folowe him, and saith vnto thē: what seke ye? They said vnto him Rabbi (which is to saye if one interpret it, Master) wher dwellest thou? He saieth vnto them come and se. They came & sawe wher he dwelt: and abode with him that daye. For it was about the tenth houre. One of ỹ two which heard Iohn speake, and folowed him, was Andrewe Symon Peters brother. The same found hys brother Simon first, and saith vnto him: we haue found Messias (which is by interpretacion, annoynted) and brought him to Iesus. And Iesus beheld him, & sayd: thou arte Simon the sonne of Ionas, thou shalt be called Cephas: which is by interpretacion a stone. The day folowyng, Iesus wolde go into Galile, and found Philip, & sayeth vnto hym: folowe me * Philip was of Bethsaida the citie of Andrewe & Peter. * And no man ascendeth vp to heauen, but he that came downe from heauen, euen the sone of man which is in heauen. * And as Moses lyft vp the serpēt in the wildernes, euen so must the sone of man be lift vp, that whosoeuer beleueth in him, perishe not, but haue eternall lyfe. ✠ ✠ * For god so loued the worlde, that he gaue his only begotten sone, that whosoeuer beleueth in him, shoulde not perysh, but haue euerlasting lyfe. * For God sent not his sone into the worlde, to condempne the worlde but that the worlde through him might be saued. He that beleueth on hym, is not condempned. But he that beleueth not, is condemned alreadye, because he hath not beleued in the name of the only begotten sonne of God. And this is the condempnation: * that lyght is come into the worlde, and men loued darknes more thē lyght, because their dedes were euyll. For * euery one that euyll doeth, hateth the lyght: neyther commeth to the lyghte, leste hys dedes should be reproued. But he that doeth trueth: commeth to the lyght, that hys dedes may be knowen: howe that they are wrought in God. ✠ After these thinges came Jesus, and his disciples into the lande of Jury & there he taried with them * and baptised. And John also baptised in Enon beside Salim because there was muche water there, and they came & were baptised. * For John was not yet caste into prison. ✠ And there arose a question betwene Johns disciples and the Jewes, about ỹ purifying. And they came vnto John, and sayde vnto him: Rabbi, he that was with the beyond Jordan (to whom thou bearest witnes) behoulde the same baptiseth * and all men come to him. John answered, and sayde: a man can receaue nothynge, except it be geuen him from heauē. Ye your selues are witnesses * how that I saide: I am not Christ, but am sent before him. He that hath the bryde, is the bridegrome. But the frende of the brydegrome, which standeth and heareth him, reioyceth greately because of the brydegromes voyce. Thys my ioye therefore is fulfilled. He must increase, but I must decrease. He that cōmeth from an hye, is aboue all: He that is of the earth, is earthly, & speaketh of the erth. He that commeth from heauen, is aboue al, and what he hath sene an heard: that he testifieth: and no man receaueth his testimony. He that hath receaued his testimonye. * hath set to his seale, that God is true. For he whom God hath sent, speaketh the wordes of God. * For God geueth not the spyrete by measure vnto him. The father loueth the sonne * and hath geuen all thynges into hys hande. * He that beleueth on the sonne hath euerlasting lyfe: he that beleueth not the sonne, shall not see lyfe, but the wrath of God abydeth on hym. ✠

AS soone as the Lorde knewe, how the Pharyses had heard, that Jesus made and baptised moo disciples then John (though that Jesus hym selfe baptised not: but hys disciples) * he lefte Jewry, and departed agayne into Galile. For it was so that he must nedes goo thorowe Samaria. ✠ Then came he to a citie of Samaria (which is called Sichar.) Besydes the possession * that Jacob gaue to hys sonne Joseph. And there was Jacobs well. Jesus then beynge werye of hys iourney, sate thus on the wel. And it was about the sixt houre: and there came a woman of Samaria to draw water. Jesus saieth vntoher: geue me drynke. For hys disciples were gone away vnto ỹ towne, to bye meate. Then saith the woman of Samaria vnto him: howe is it, that thou beinge a Jewe, askest drynck of me, whiche am a Samaritane. * For the Jewes medle not & the Samaritans. Jesus answered & saide vnto her: if thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saieth to the geue me drynke, thou wouldest haue asked of hym and he wold haue geuen * thee water of lyfe.

The woman sayeth vnto him: Syr, ꝓ hast nothing to drawe with, & the well is depe: frō whence thē hast thou that water of lyfe? Arte thou greater then our father Jacob which gaue vs the well, and he him selfe dranke therof, and his children, and his cattel? Jesus answered and sayde vnto her: Whosoeuer drynketh of thys water, shall thyrst agayne. But whosoeuer drynketh of ꝓ water that I shall geue hym, shall neuer be more a thirst: but the water that I shal geue him shalbe in hym, a well of water, spryngyng vp into euerlastyng lyfe.

The woman sayeth vnto hym, Syr geue me of that water, that I thyrst not, neither come hither to drawe. Jesus sayeth vnto her: Go, call thy husband, and come hither. The woman answered and sayde vnto him: I haue no husbād. Jesus said vnto her: Thou hast well sayde, I haue no husbande.

The woman then left her waterpot, and went her way into the cytie, and sayeth to the men. Come se a man which tolde me all thynges that euer I did: Is not he Christ? Then they went out of the citie, and came vnto hym. In the meane while his disciples prayed him, sayinge: Mayster, eate. He sayde vnto them: I haue meate to eate, that ye knowe not of. Therefore sayde the disciples amonge themselues: hath anye man brought hym ought to eate? Jesus saieth vnto thē: my meate is to do the wil of hym that sent me, and to finishe his worke. Say not ye: there are yet foure monethes, E mat.9 and then commeth haruest? Beholde, luke, I say vnto you: lifte vp your eyes, and loke on the regions: for they are white al ready vnto ꝓ haruest. ✱ And he that reapeth, receaueth reward, and gathereth the fruite vnto lyfe eternall: that both he that soweth, and he that reapeth, might reioise together. And here in is the saying true, that one soweth and another reapeth. I sēt you to reape that, wheron ye bestowed no laboure. Other men laboured, and ye are entred into their labours. Many of the Samaritans of that citie beleued on hym, for the saying of the womā, whiche testified that he tolde her all, that euer she dyd. So, when the Samaritans were come vnto him: they besought him, that he would tary with thē. And he abode there two dayes. And Jhō, many mo beleued because of his owne worde, and sayde vnto the woman. into Cana of Galilee, • where he turned the water into wine. ✠ And ther was a certain ruler, • whose son was sicke at Capernaum. As soone as the same heard that Iesus was come out of Iewry into Galilee, he went vnto him, & besought him, ẏ he wold come down, & heale his son, for he was euē at the point of deth. Then said Iesus vnto him: except ye see signes & wonders, ye will not beleeue. The ruler sayth vnto him: Syr, come downe or euer that my son dye. Iesus saith vnto him: Go thy way, thy sonne liueth. The man beleued ẏ word that Iesus had spoken vnto hym. And he went his way. And as he was now going down, ẏ seruāts met him, & told him, saying: Thy son liueth. Then enquired he of them the houre when he began to amēd. And they said vnto him Yesterday at the seuēth houre, ẏ feuer left him. So the father knew, that it was the same hour, in the which Iesus said vnto him: Thy sonne liueth. And he beleeued, and all his household. ✠ This is agayne the seconde miracle, that Iesus dyd, when he was come out Iewry into Galile.

AFter this was ther a feast daie of the Iewes, & Iesus went vp to Ierusalem. And there is at Ierusalē by the slaughter house, a poole (which is called in the hebrue tongue, Bethseda) hauyng fiue porches, in which lay a great multitude of sicke folke, of blynd, halt, and wytherd, waiting for the mouing of water. For an angell went downe at a certain season into the poole, and stered the water. Whosoeuer then firste (after the stering of the water) stepped in, was made whole of whatsoeuer disease he had. And a certain man was there, which hadde bene diseased xxxviii. yeares. when Iesus saw him lye, and knewe that he nowe longe tyme had ben diseased, he sayth vnto hym, Wilt thou be made whole? The sicke man answered hym: Syr, I haue no man whē the water is troubled, to put me into the poole: But in the meane tyme, while I am about to come, an other steppeth downe before me. Iesus saith vnto him, • rise, take vp thy bed, and walke. And immediatly the man was made whole, & toke vp his bed, & walked. And the same day was the Sabboth. The Iewes therfor said vnto him that was made whole: It is the Sabboth daye, it is not lawfull for thee to carye thy bed. He answerd them: He that made me whole, said vnto me: Take vp thy bed, and walk. Than they asked him, what man is that, which said vnto ẏ, take vp thy bed & walke? And he that was healed, wiste not who it was. For Iesus had gotten himself away, because that there was preasse of people in that place. • Afterward Iesus found him in the temple, and said vnto him: behold, thou art made whole, sinne no more, least a worse thing happen vnto thee. The mā departed, and tolde the Iewes, that it was Iesus which had made him whole. ✠ And therfore the Iewes did persecute Iesus, and sought the means to slea him because he had done these things on ẏ Sabboth daye. And Iesus answered them. ✠ • My father worketh hither to, and I worke. Therfore ẏ Iewes sought the more to kill him, not onely because he had broken the Sabboth: but saide also that • God was his father, & made him selfe equal with God. For like wise as the father raiseth vp the dead, and quickneth them, euen so the sonne quickeneth whome he wil. • Neyther iudgeth the father any man: but hath committed all iudgement vnto the sonne, because that al men should honour the sonne, euen as they honoure the Father. Then sayd they vnto him: what shall we do, that we myght worke the workes of God? Iesus answered and said vnto them: this is the worke of God: that ye beleue on him, whom he hath sent. They sayde therefore vnto hym, What signe shewest thou then that we might se & beleue the? what doest thou worke? And this is the will of him that sent me: that euery one whiche seeth the son, & beleueth on him, haue euerlastyng lyfe. And I will raise hym vp at the laste daye. The Iewes then murmured at him, because he sayd: I am that bread (of lyfe) whiche came downe from heauen. And they sayd: Is not this Iesus the sonne of Ioseph, whose father and mother wee know? ℣ The. viii. Chapitter. ✠

JEsus went * vnto mount Oliuete, and early in the morninge he came agayne into the temple, and all the people came vnto hym, and he sate downe, and taughte them. And the Scribes and Pharisees brought vnto hym a woman taken in aduoutrie: and when they had set her in the myddes, they saye vnto hym: Maister, this woman was taken in aduoutrie, euen as ỳ dede was a doyng. * Moses in the lawe cõmanded vs, that suche shoulde be stoned. Lu.20.b But what saiest thou? This they said to tempt hym that they myght accuse hym. But Jesus stouped downe, and with his finger wrote on the ground. So, whã they continued asking him, he lift himself vp, and said vnto them: Let hym that is among you without synne, cast the firste stone at her. And agayne he stouped downe, and wrote B on the ground. And as soone as they heard this, they went out one by one, beginninge at the eldest. And Jesus was left alone, and the woman standyng in the middes. When Jesus had lyft vp himself, and sawe no man, but the woman, he said vnto her: Woman, where are these thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee? She said: Joh.4.e. No man, Lorde. And Jesus said: Neither doo I condemne thee. Go * and synne no more. ✠ Then spake Jesus agayne vnto them, sayinge: I am the light of the worlde. He that folowith me, doth not walke in darknes, Joh.1.a.8.a.12.a but shall haue the light of lyfe. The Pharisees therefore sayd vnto hym: Thou bearest recorde of thy selfe, thy recorde is not true. Jesus answered, and sayd vnto them: Though I beare recorde of my selfe, yet my recorde is true: for I knowe whens I came, and whither I go. But ye cannot tell whense I come, and whyther I go. Ye iudge after the flesshe, I iudge no man. And if I iudge, my iudgmẽt is true. For I am not alone: but I and C the father that sent me. * It is also written in your lawe, that the testimonie of two mẽ is true. I am one that Nu.35 Deu.17 and.19 mat.18 2 Cor.13 1 Tim.5 Hebr.10 beareth witnesse of my selfe, and my father that sent me, beareth witnesse of me. Then said they vnto hym: Where is thy father? Jesus answered: Ye neither knowe me, nor yet my father. If ye had knowen me, ye shoulde haue knowen my father also. These wordes spake Jesus in the treasory, as he taught in the temple, and no man laid handes on hym, * for his houre was Mat.6 not yet come. ✠ Then sayd Jesus again vnto them: ✠ I go my way, and * ye shall seke me, and shall dye in your Joh.7.a and.13 synnes. Whither I go, thither can ye not come. Then said the Jewes: Will he kill himself, because he saith: Whither I goe, thither can ye not come? And he said vnto them: Ye are from benethe, I am from above. Ye are of this worlde, I am not of this world. I sayd therfore vnto you, that ye shall dye in your synnes. * For if ye beleue mat.16 not that I am he, ye shall dye in your Joh.3 D synnes. Then sayde they vnto hym: Who art thou? And Jesus saith vnto them: Euen the very same thyng that I spake vnto you. I haue many thinges to saye, and to iudge of you. Yea, and he that sent me, is true. * And I Joh.14 speake in the worlde those thynges, which I haue hearde of him. Howbe it they vnderstode not that he spake of his father. Then sayd Jesus vnto them: When ye haue lyft vp on hie the sonne of man, than shall ye know that I am he: and that I do nothing

the Iewes vnto him: Nowe knowe we that thou hast the deuill. Abra-thou sayest: if a man kepe my saying: he shall neuer taste of death. Art thou greatter thenne our father Abraham, which is dead? and the prophetes are dead. Whome makest thou thy selfe?

G Iesus answered: If I honour my selfe, myne honour is nothyng. It is my father that honoreth me, which ye say, is your God, and yet ye haue not knowen him. And if I say, I know not, I shalbe a liar like vnto you, but I knowe hym, and keepe his saying.

John. 1. a: 8. b. & 12. a in the worlde, I am the light of the worlde. As soone as he had thus spoke he spat on the grounde, and made clay B of the spettle, and rubbed the claye on the eies of the blynd, & said vnto him:
Esa. 8. b Go, wash the in the poole of Siloe, (which by interpretatiō) is as much to say, as sent. He went his way ther fore, and washed, and came again, seeyng: So the neyghbors, & they that had sene him before (how that he was a begger) said: Is not this he that sat and begged? Some saide: This is he. Again, other said (No) but he is like him. He him selfe said: I am euen he.
C Therfore sayd they vnto him: How are thyne eyes opened? He answered and said: The mā that is called Jesus made clay, and annointed myne eyes, and said vnto me: Go to the poole Siloe, and washe. And when I went & washed, I receiued my sighte. Then said they vnto hym: Where is he? He said: I can not tell. They brought to the Pharises him that a little before was blynd: and it was the sabboth

John 7 f saist thou of him, bicause he hath opened thyne eies? He said: He is a prophet. But the Jewes did not beleue of the man (how that he had bē blynd and receiued his sight) vntil they called the father and mother of him that had receiued his sighte. And they asked them, saying: Is this your sonne, whom ye saye, was borne blynde? How doth he now see then? His father and mother answered them, and E said: we know, that this is our sonne and that he was borne blynde: but by what meanes he nowe seeth, we can not tel: Or who hath opened his eies can not we tell. He is old ynough, aske him, lette hym answere for him selfe. Suche wordes spake his father and mother, because they feared ye Jewes. For the Jewes had conspired alreadye, that if any man dyd confesse, that he was Christ, he should be excommunicated out of the sinagoge. Therfore said his father and mother, he is olde ynough, aske him. Then agayne called they the man that was blynde, and said vnto him, Geue god ye prayse: we knowe that this man is a synner. He answerd therfore & said: whether he be a sinner or no, I cā not tel: One thynge I am sure of, that where as I was blynde, nowe I see. Then sayde they to him again: what did he to the? How opened he thyne eyes? He an-F swered them: I told you ere whyle, & ye did not heare. Wherfore would ye heare it again? Will ye also be his disciples? Then rated they him, & said: Be thou his disciple. we are Moses disciples. We are sure, that god spake vnto Moyses. As for this felow, we know not frō whēce he is. The man answered, & said vnto them: This is a meruailous thing, that ye wote not frome whence he is, and yet he hathe opened myne eies. For wee bee sure, that God heareth not sinners. But if any man be a worshipper of God, & obedient vnto his will, hym heareth he. Sence the worlde began was it not heard, that any man opened ye eies of one that was borne blynd. If this man were not of God, he could haue doone nothyng. They answered and said vnto him: Thou art all together borne in synne, and doest thou teache vs? And they take hym oute. Jesus G heard that they had excommunicate hym: and when he had founde hym, he sayde vnto hym: Doest thou beleue on the sonne of God? He answered & sayde: Who is it Lorde, that I myght beleue on hym? And Jesus sayd vnto hym: Thou hast sene hym, and he John 4 it is, that talketh with thee. And he sayde: Lorde, I beleue, and he worshipped shipped him. ¶ And Jesus sayd vnto hym: I am come vnto iudgement into this worlde, that they which see not might see: and that they whyche see, myght be made blynde. And some of the Pharisees, which were with him heard these wordes, and said vnto him. Are we blynd also? Jesus saide vnto them. * If ye were blynde, ye shoulde haue no synne. But now ye say: Wee se, therfore your synne remaineth.

VErely, verely, I saye vnto you: he that entreth not in by the doore into the sheepefolde, but clymeth vp some other waye, the same is a theefe and a murtherer. But he that entreth in by the doore, is the shepeheard of the shepe: to hym the porter openeth, and the sheepe heare his voyce, and * he calleth his owne shepe by name, and leadeth them out. And when he hath sent forth his owne shepe, he goth before them, and the shepe folowe him: for they knowe his voice, a straunger wil they not folowe, but wil flee from him for they knowe not the voice of stragers. This prouerb spake Jesus vnto thē. But they vnderstoode not what thynges they were, whyche he spake vnto them. Then sayde Jesus vnto them agayne: Verily, verely, I say vnto you: * I am ỹ doore of ỹ shepe All (euē as many as came before me) are theeues and murtherers, but the shepe dyd not heare theym. I am the doore, by me if any man enter in, he shalbe safe, and shall go in and out, & fynde pasture. A theefe commeth not but for to steale, kill and to destroy. I am come, that they myght haue lyfe, and that they myghte haue it more abundātly. ¶ ✠ I am * the good shepearde. A good shepeherde geueth his lyfe for the sheepe. An hyred seruant, and he whyche is not the shepeherde (neyther the shepe are his owne) seeth the wolfe commynge, and leaueth the sheepe, and fleeth, and the wolfe catcheth, and scattereth the sheepe. The hyred seruaunt fleeth, because he is an hyred seruaunte, and carethe not for the sheepe. I am the good shepeheard, * and knowe my shepe. and am knowen of myne. * As my father knoweth me, euen so knowe I also my father. And * I geue my lyfe for the shepe: and other shepe I haue, whyche are not of this folde: them also must I bryng, and they shal hear my voyce, and there shalbe one folde, and one shepeheard. ✠ Therfore doth my father loue me, because I put my lyfe from me, that I myght take it againe. No man taketh it frō me, but I put it away of my self. I haue power to put it from me, and I haue power to take it agayne. This cōmandement haue I receued of my father. There was a dissention therefore agayne amonge the Jewes for these sayenges, and many of theim sayde: * He hath the deuill, and is mad, why heare ye hym? Other sayd, * these are not the wordes of hym that hath the deuyll. Can the deuyll open the eies of the blynde? ✠ And it was at Jerusalē the feast of the dedicatiō, and it was winter: and Jesus walked in the temple, cuē in * Salomōs porche. Then came the Jewes rounde about hym, and sayd vnto him: How longe dooest ỹ make vs doubt? If thou bee Chriſte, tell vs plainely. Jesus answered them: I tolde you, and ye beleue not. The woorkes that I do in my fathers name, they beare wytnes of me. But ye beleue not, bycause ye are not of my shepe. As I sayd vnto you: * my shepe heare my voyce: and I knowe them, and they folowe me, and I geue vnto them eternall lyfe, and they shall neuer perishe, neyther shall any man plucke them out of my hande. My father whyche gaue them me, is greater then all, and noo manne is able to take them out of my fathers hand. * I & my father ar one. * Then the Jewes agayne tooke vp stones, to stone hym withall. The.xi.Chapter.

A CErtaine man was sicke named Lazarus of Bethanya the towne of Mary, and her Luke.7f sister Martha. It was that Mary which anointed Jesus with oyntment, and wyped his feete with her heare whose brother Lazarus was sicke. Therefore, hys systers sent vnto hym, sayinge: Lorde, beholde, hee whom thou louest, is sicke. When Jesus heard that, he sayde: this infirmitie is not vnto deth: but for the praise aJoh.9. of God, that the sonne of God might be praysed by the reason of it. Jesus loued Martha and her sister and Lazarus. When he had heard therefore, that he was sicke, he abode two dayes still in the same place where he was.
B Then after that, sayde he to hys dyscyples: let vs go into Jewry againe.
Joh.7.d Hys dyscyples sayde vnto hym: Mas-8.g 10f ster, the Jewes late dyd seeke to stone thee, and wylte thou go thyther agayne? Jesus answered: are there not xii. houres of the daye? If a man walke in the daye, hee stumbleth not because he seeth the light of this world But if a man walke in the night he stombleth because there is no light in him. Mat.9 Luk.8. Mar.5
This said he, and after that he sayd vnto them: our frend Lazarus sleepeth: but I go to wake hym oute of slepe. Then sayde hys dyscyples: Lorde, yf he slepe, he shall do wel inough, Howbeit, Jesus spake of his death: but they thought, that he had spoken of the naturall sleepe. Then sayde Jesus vnto them playnely. Lazarus is dead, and I am glad for your sakes, that I was not there, because ye may beleue. Neuertheles, lette vs go vnto hym. Then Joh.20 C sayde Thomas (which is called Dydimus) vnto the disciples: let vs also go, that we may dye wyth him. The went Jesus, and founde that he had lyen in his graue foure dayes alredy. Bethanie was nygh vnto Jerusale, aboute fiftene furlonges of, and many of the Jewes came to Martha and Mary to comfort them ouer their brother. Martha assone as she heard that Jesus was commyng, went and met Joh.11 him: but Mary sat styll in the house.
H Then sayde Martha vnto Jesus, Lorde, yf thou haddest ben here, my brother hadde not died: neuertheles, now I knowe that whatsoeuer thou askest of God, God will geue it thee. Jesus sayeth vnto her: Thy brother shall ryse agayne. Martha sayeth vnto hym: I knowe that he shall ryse agayne in the resurrection at the laste Joh.1. daye. Jesus sayth vnto her: I am the and.14 resurrection and the lyfe: he that be- Joh.3. leueth on me, ye though he were dead, Ro.1.b yet shall he lyue. And whosoeuer lyueth and beleueth on me, shall neuer dye: Beleuest thou this? She saide vnto hym: yea Lorde, I beleue that thou arte Christe the sonne of God, whiche should come into the worlde.
I And assone as she hadde so sayd, she went her waye and called Marye her syster secretely, sayinge: The master is come, and calleth for thee. As soone as she herd that, she arose quickly, and came vnto hym. Jesus was not yet come into the towne: but was in that place where Martha mett hym.

The

The Jewes then which were with her in the house, and comforted here (when they sawe Mary that she rose vp hastely, and wente oute) folowed her, saying: She goeth vnto ỹ graue, to weepe there. Then when Marye was come wher Jesus was, and sawe hym, she commeth nye vnto hys feete, and saieth vnto hym: Lorde, * yf thou haddest bene here, my brother had not ben dead. When Jesus therefore sawe her weepe (and the Jewes also weepyng whiche came with her) he groned in the spyrete and was troubled in hym selfe, and sayde: where haue yee layed hym? They said vnto him: lorde, come, and se. And Jesus wept. Thē sayde the Jewes Beholde, howe he loued hym. And some of theym sayde: coulde not he which * opened the eies of the blynd, haue made also, that this manne shoulde not haue dyed? Jesus therfore again groned in himselfe, and came to the graue. It was a caue and a stone layde on it. Jesus sayde: take ye awaye the stone. Martha the Sister of him that was dead, sayde vnto hym: Lorde, by thys tyme he stinketh. For he hath ben dead foure days. Jesus sayth vnto her: Sayde I not vnto thee, that yf thou dyddest beleue, thou shouldest see the glorye of God? Then they toke awaye the stone from the place where he that had ben dead, was layde. And Jesus lifte vp hys eyes, and said: Father, I thanke thee that thou hast hearde me. Howbeit, I knewe, that thou hearest me alwais: but * because of the people, whyche stande by, I sayd it, that they may beleue, that thou haste sente me. And when he thus hadde spoken, he cryed wyth a loude voyce: Lazarus, come forth. And he that was dead, came forthe bounde hand and foote wyth graue clothes, and his face was bound with a napkyn. Jesus said vnto them Loose hym, and let hym go. Then many of the Jewes which cam to Mary (and had seene the thynges whiche Jesus dyd) * beleued on hym. But some of them went their ways to the pharises, and told them what Jesus had doone. ✠ * Thenne gathered the hye Priestes and the Pharyseyes a councel, and said: What doo we? For this man doothe many miracles. If we let hym scape thus, all men wyll beleue on him, and the Romains shal come, and take away both our roome and the people. And one of them named Cayphas, (beyng the hie priest that same yeare) sayde vnto them: Ye perceyue nothyng at all, nor consider that * it is expedient for vs, that one man dye for the people, and not that all the people perishe. This spake he not of himselfe, but beyng hye Priest that same yere, he prophesied that Jesus should dye for the people, and not for the people onely, but that he shuld gather together in one, the children of God, ỹ were scattered abrode. * Then from that day forth, they toke counsell together, for to put hym to death. Jesus therfore walked no more openly among the Jewes, but wente his waye thense vnto a countre nye to a wylderneſſe into a Citie, whyche is called Ephraim, and there continued with his disciples. * And the Jewes Easter was nye at hande, and many went out of the countrey vp to Hierusalem before the Easter, to purifye theim selues. Then soughte they for Jesus, and spake among them selues as they stode in the Temple: * What thynke ye, seeyng he commeth not to the feast daye? The hye priestes and Pharisees * had geuen a commaundement, that if any man knew where he were, he shoulde shewe it, that they might take hym. ✠

Then Jesus (sixe days before Easter) came to Bethanie, wher Lazarus had ben dead whom he raised from death. There they made hym a supper, and Martha serued, but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with hym. * Then toke Mary a pounde of ointment (called Nardus, perfect and precious) and annoynted Jesus fete, and wiped his feete with her heare, & the house was filled with the odour of the oyntemente. * Thenne sayde one

Prieſtes (his colyn whoſe eare Peter ſmot of) ſayd vnto him: did not I ſe the in the garde with him * Peter therfore denied againe: & immediatly the cocke crewe. * Then led they Jeſus from Cayphas into the hall of iudgement. It was in the morning, and they thēſelues went not into the iudgement hal leſt they ſhould be defiled, but that they might eate Paſſeouer. Pilate then went out vnto thē and ſayde: what accuſation bring ye againſt this man? They anſwered & ſaid vnto him: If he were not an euil doer we ſhulde not haue deliuered him vnto the. Thē ſayd Pilate vnto them: take ye hym & iudge hym after your owne lawe. The Jewes therfore ſaid vnto him: It is not lawfull F for vs to put any man to deeth. That the wordes of Jeſus might be fulfilled * which he ſpake, ſignifying, what death he ſhould dye. * Then Pilate entred into the iudgement hal again, and called Jeſus, and ſayd vnto him: arte thou the king of the Jewes? Jeſus anſwered: ſayeſt thou that of thy ſelfe, or did other tel it the of me? Pilate anſwered: Am I a Jewe? Thyne owne nation & hye Prieſtes haue deliuered thee vnto me. what haſt thou done? Jeſus anſwered: my kingdome is not of this worlde. If my kingdom were of this world, thē wold my miniſters ſuerly fight, that I ſhold not be deliuered to ỹ Jewes G but now is * my kyngdome not from hence. Pilate therfore ſaid vnto him. Art thou a kyng then? Jeſus anſwered: thou ſayſt that I am a king. For this cauſe was I borne, and for this cauſe came I into the worlde, that I ſhould beare witnes vnto the trueth. And all ỹ are of the trueth, heare my voyce. Pilate ſayde vnto hym, what thinge is trueth? And when he had ſayd this, he went oute agayne vnto the Jewes, and ſaieth vnto them * I finde in him no cauſe at al. Ye haue a cuſtome, that I ſhoulde deliuer you one looſe at Eaſter. Then Pilate toke Jeſus therfore, and ſcourged hym. * And the ſoudiers wound a crown of thornes, and put it on hys heade. And they dyd on hym a purple garmēt (and came vnto him) & ſaid hayle kinge of the Jewes: and they ſmote him on the face. Pylat went forth agayne and ſayd vnto them: behold, I bringe him forth to you, that ye may knowe, that I finde no faute in him. Then came Jeſus forth, wearyng a crowne of thorne, & a robe of purple. And he ſayth vnto them: beholde the man. * when the hye Prieſtes therfore & miniſters ſawe him, they cried ſayinge: crucifye hym, crucifye hym. Pylate ſayeth vnto them: Take ye him, and crucifye hym: for I find no cauſe in him. The Jewes anſwered him: We haue * a lawe, & by our lawe he ought to dye: becauſe he made him ſelfe the ſonne of God. When Pilate B heard that ſayinge, he was the more afraide, & went again into the iudgement hall, & ſayth vnto Jeſus whēce art thou? But Jeſus gaue him none anſwere. Then ſayde Pylate vnto hym: Speakeſt thou not vnto me. Knoweſt thou not, ỹ I haue power to crucify thee, & haue power to looſe the? Jeſus anſwered: Thou couldeſt haue no power at all againſt me * except it were geuen thee from aboue. Therfore he ỹ deliuered me vnto the hath the more ſinne. * And frō thence forth ſought Pylate meanes to looſe hym: but the Jewes cryed ſaying: yf thou let him go, thou art not Ceſars frend. For * whoſoeuer maketh him ſelfe a kyng, is againſt Ceſar. When C Pilate heard that ſaying, he brought Jeſus forth, and ſate downe to geue ſentence, in a place that is called the pauemēt: but in ỹ Hebrue tong Gabbatha. Pylate saieth vnto them: shal I crucifie your kynge? The hye Prieستes answered: we haue no king but Cesar. * Then delyuered he hym vnto them, to be crucified. And they toke Jesus, and led him away and he bare his crosse, * & went forth into a place, which is called the place of dead mēs sculles. But in Hebrue Golgotha: wher they crusified him, and two other with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the middes. And * Pylate wrote a title, and put it on the crosse. The wryting was: Jesus of Nazareth kyng of the Jewes. This tytle red many of the Jewes, For ỳ place wher Jesus was crucified, was nye to the Citie. And it was written in Hebrue, and Greke, and Latyn. Thē sayd the hye Prieستes of ỳ Jewes to Pilate: write not king of the Jewes but that he sayde, I am kynge of the Jewes. Pylate answered: what I haue written, that haue I wrytten. Then the soudiers, * when they had crucified Jesus, they toke hys garmentes and made foure partes, to euerye soudioure a parte, and also hys coate. The coate was without seme, wrought vpon thrawout. They said therfore amonge them selues: Let vs not deuide it, but cast lots for it, who shall haue it. That the Scripture myghte be fulfilled sayinge: * They parted my rayment among them, and for my coate dyd they cast lots. And the soudiers did such things in dede. Then sayde he to the disciple: beholde thy mother. And from that hour ỳ disciple toke her for his owne. After these things. Jesus knowing that al things were now performed: that * the scriptur might be fulfilled: he sayeth: I thirst. So there stode a vessell by, ful of venegar, * Therfore they filled a spōge with veneger and wound it about with ysope, and put it to his mouth. Assone as Jesus thē receaued of the veneger, he sayde * It is finished, and bowed hys head, and gaue vp the goost. The Jewes therfore because it was the preparyng of the Sabboth, that the bodyes should not remayne vpon the crosse on the sabboth daye (for that sabboth daye was an hye daye) besought Pilate, that their legges myght be broken that they myghte be taken downe. Then came the soudiers, and brake the legges of the firste, and of ỳ other which was crucified with him. But when they came to Jesus and sawe that he was dead already, they brake not his legges: but one of the soudiers with a speare thrust him into the syde, and forth with came there oute bloud & water. And he that sawe it, bare recorde, and hys recorde is true. And he knoweth that he saieth true, that ye myght beleue also. For these thinges were done, that the scripture shoulde be fulfilled. * Ye shall not breake a bone of him. And agayn ano ther scripture saieth: * they shall loke on hym, whom they pearsed. * After this Joseph of Aramathia (whiche was a disciple of Jesus: but secretly for feare of the Jewes) besought Pilate ỳ he might take down ỳ body of Jesus. And Pilate gaue him licence, (he came therfore, & toke the body of Jesus.) And there cāe also Nicodemus (which at ỳ beginning came to Jesus by nyght) & brought of myrre and aloes mingled together, about an hundred pounde waight. Then toke they the body of Jesu, and wound it in linnen clothes with the odours, as the maner of the Jewes is to burye. And in the place where he was crucified, there was a garden, and in the garden a newe sepulchre, wherin was neuer man layde. There layde they Jesus therefore, because of the preparynge of the Sabbothe of the Jewes for the sepulchre was nye at hande. ¶

THen came he to Derba, and to Lystra. And beholde, a certayne disciple was there named Timotheus a womans sonne, whyche was a Jewesse, and beleued: but his father was a greke. Of whom reported well the brethrẽ, that were at Lystra and Iconium. Hym would Paule that he should go foorth with hym, and toke and circumcised him, because of the Jewes whiche were in those quarters: for they knew al that his father was a greke. As they went thorowoughe the cities, they deliuered them the decrees for to kepe, that were * ordeined of the apostles and elders, whiche were at Jerusalem. And so were the congregations stablished in the faithe, and encreased in numbre dayly. When they had gone thorowoute Phrygia: and the region of Galatia, and * were forbidden of the holy ghost to preach the woorde in Asia, they came to Mysya, and sought to go into Bethinia. The.xxii. Chapter.

A MEn, bzethren, and fathers, heare ye mine answer which I make now vnto you. Whē they heard, that he spake in the Hebrue tonge to them, they kepte the more silence. And he sayeth: I am verely a man which am a Iewe borne in * Tharsus a citie in Cicile: neuertheles, yet brought vp in this citie, at the fete of * Gamaliel, and informed diligently in the lawe of the fathers, and was feruēt minded to godward, as ye all are this same day, and * I persecuted this waie vnto ẏ deth, binding and deliuerynge into prison both men and wemen, as the chefe priest doeth beare me witnesse, and all the estate of the elders: of whom also I receaued letters vnto the bzethren, and went to Damasco to brynge them (whiche were bounde) vnto Ierusalem for to be punished. And it fortuned (that as I made my iourney & was come nye vnto Damasco aboute none) sodenlye there shone from heauen a great lyght rounde about me, and I fell vnto the earth, and heard a voyce, sayinge vnto me: * Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And I answered what arte thou Lorde? And he sayde vnto me: I am Iesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest. And they that were with me, saw verely a lighte, and were afrayed: but they heard not the voyce of him that spake with me. And I said: what shall I do Lord? And the Lord sayd vnto me: Aryse, and go into Damasco, and there it shall be tolde the of al things, which are appointed for the to do. And when I sawe nothyng for the brightnes of ẏ lyght, I was leade by the hande of them that were with me, & came into Damasco. * And one

C Ananias a perfect man, (& as pertayning to the lawe, hauyng good report of all the Iewes, which there dwelt) came vnto me, and stode, and said vnto me. Brother Saul, receaue thy sight. And the same houre I receaued my syght, and sawe him. And he sayde the God of our fathers hath ordeyned thee before, that thou shouldest knowe hys will, and se the thyng that is ryghteous, and shouldest heare the voyce of his mouth: for thou shalte be his witnes vnto al men those things, which thou haste sene & heard. And nowe, why tarriest thou? Arise, and be baptised, & wash away thy sinnes - in Ro. 12. calling on the name of the Lord. And it fortuned, that when I was come againe to Ierusalem, and prayde in the temple, I was in a traunce, and sawe him, saying vnto me: Make haste and get the quickely out of Ierusalem: for they wil not receaue thy witnes, that thou beareste of me. And I sayd: Lord, they knowe that I prisoned, and bette in euery Synagoge them that beleued D on the. * And when the bloode of thy Acts.3, witnes Steuē was shed, I also stode by, and consented vnto hys death, and kepte the rayment of them that slewe him. And he sayde vnto me depart, for acts.13 b * I wil sende the farre hence vnto the Gala.1 b Gētils. Then gaue him audience vnto this worde, and then lifte vp their voices and sayd: away with such a felowe from the earth: for it is not reason that he should liue. And as they cried, & cast of their clothes, and threwe dust into the ayre, the captaine cōmaunded him to be brought into the castle, and bad that he should be scourged, and to be examined, that he mighte knowe wherefore they cryed so on hym. And when they bound him with thonges. Paull saide vnto the Centurion, that stode by him: Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Romayn & vncondempned? When the Centurion heard that, he went and tolde the vpper captayne, saying: What intendeste thou to do? For this mā is (a cetezen) of Rome. Then the vpper captayne came, & said vnto him: tell me, art thou a Romain? He said: Yee. And the captaine answered: With a great somme obtayned I this fredome. And Paull sayd. I was fre borne. Then strayght way departed from hym they whiche shoulde haue examined hym. And the hye captayne also was afrayde after he knewe that he was a Romayne, and because he had bounde hym. On

Act.25.d AFter fyue dayes Ananias * the hye Preaste descended with the elders, and with a certayne oratoure, named Tartullus, whiche enformed the debitie agaynste Paull. And when Paull was called forth, Tartullus began to accuse hym saying: Seyng that we lyue in greate quietnes by the meanes of thee, and that many good thynges are done vnto this nation thorowe thy prouidence, that alowe we euer and in all places mooste noble Felix with all thankes. Notwithstandyng that I be not tedious on to the, I pray the, that thou woldest heare vs of thy curtesie a few wordes. ascended from Cesarea vnto Ierusalem. Then enformed hym the hye preastes, and the chefe of the Iewes, of Paul. And they besought him, & desired fauoure agaynst him, that he wolde sende for hym to Ierusalem: and they layde wayte for him in the waye, to kill him. Festus answered, that Paul should be kepte at Cesarea but that he him selfe wold shortely departe thither. Let thē ther-

Paul: I stand at Cesares iudgement

Festus with deliberation, and answered: Thou hast appealed vnto Cesar, D

Against whom, when the accusers stode by, * they brought none accusation of such thinge as I supposed but had certain questions against him of their owne superstition, and of one Iesus which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alyue. And because I doubted of such maner of questions, I asked hym, whether he woulde go to Ierusalem, & there be iudged of these matters. But when Paul had appealed to be kepte vnto the knowledge of Cesar, I commaunded hym to be kepte, tyll I myght sende him to Cesar. Agrippa sayde vnto Festus: I wold also heare the man my selfe. To morowe, (sayde he) thou shalte heare him. And on ỳ morow whē Agrippa was come and Bernice, with greate pompe, and were entred into the counsell house, with the captaynes & chefe G men of the citie, at Festus cōmaundement was Paull brought forth. And Festus sayd: kyng Agrippa, and al ye men which are heare present with vs, ye se this man about whō al the multitude of ỳ Iewes haue entreated me both at Ierusalē and also here crying, that he oughte not to lyue any lenger. Yet found I nothing worthy of death that he had committed. Nenertheles, seyng that he hath appealed to Cesar, I haue determyned to sende him. Of whom I haue no certayne thynge to wryte vnto my lord. Wherfore, I haue brought him vnto you, & specially vnto the: O kyng Agrippa ỳ after examinatiō had, I myght haue somwhat to wryte. For me thinketh it vnreasonable for to send a prisoner, & not to shew ỳ causes which are layed agaynst him.

The .xxvi. Chapter

Agrippa said vnto Paul: thou art permitted to speake for thy selfe. Then Paull stretched forth the hand, & answered for himselfe I thinke my selfe happy kyng Agrippa, because I shall answere this daye before the, of al the thinges wherof, I am accused of the Iewes: namely, because thou art experte in all customes & questions, which are among the Iewes. Wherfore I beseech the, to heare me pacyently. My lyuing that I haue saying in the Hebrue tonge: * Saull, Saul why persecutest thou me? It is hard for the to kycke agaynst the prickes. And I said: who art thou Lord? And he said: I am Iesus whom thou persecutest, but ryse and stand vpō thy fete. For I haue appered vnto the for this purpose, to make the a minister & a witnes both of those thinges which thou hast sene, & of those thynges in the which I will appeare vnto the, deliuering uering the from the people, & from the Gentils, vnto whō nowe I send the, to open their eyes, that they maye be turned from darkenes to light, & from the power of Satan vnto God, that they may receaue forgeuenes of syns, & inheritaunce amōg them which are sanctified by fayth that is toward me. Wherfore (O king Agrippa) I was not disobedient vnto the heauenly vision: but shewed first vnto thē of Damasco, and at Ierusalem, & throwout all the coastes of Iewry: and then to ỹ Gentils, that they should repent, and turne to God, and do such workes as become them ỹ repent. For this cause the Iewes caught me in the temple & went about to kyll me. Seyng therfore that I haue obtayned help of god I continue vnto this day, witnessing both to smal and to great, saying none other thynges, then those whiche the prophetes & Moses dyd saye should come: that Christ should suffer, & that he should be the first that should ryse from death, & should shewe lyght vnto the people, and to the Gentils. As he thus spake for him self. Festus said with a loude voice: Paul, thou art beside thy selfe. Much learnyng doeth make the mad. And Paul sayd: I am not mad (most deare Festus) but speake forth the wordes of trueth and sobernes. For the kynge knoweth of these thynges, before whom also I speake frely: nether thinke I that any of these thinges are hidden from him. For this thing was not done in a corner. Kyng Agrippa beleuest thou the Prophetes? I wotte well that thou beleuest. Agrippa sayde vnto Paul: Somwhat thou bryngest me in mind for to become Christen. And Paul sayd: I would to God that not onely thou: but also all that heare me to day were, not somwhat onely, but altogether, suche as I am, excepte these bondes. And when he had thus spoken, the kyng rose vp, and the debytie, and Bernice, and they that sate with thē. And when they were gone aparte, they talked betwene them selues saying. This man doeth nothyng worthye of death, or of bandes. Then sayd Aggrippa vnto Festus: This man might haue ben let loose, if he had not appealed vnto Cesar.

The.xxvii. Chapter.

When it was concluded, that we should sayle into Italye, they deliuered both Paul, & certayne other prysoners, vnto one named Julius, an vnder captaine of Cesars soudiers. And we entred into a shyp of Adramicium, and loosed from lande appoynted to sayle by the coastes of Asia, one Aristarcus out of Macedonia, of the countrie of Thessalonia, tarynge styll wyth vs. And the nexte daye wee came to Sidon. And Julius courteously entreated Paul, and gaue hym libertye, to go vnto hys frendes, and to refreshe hym selfe. And when we had launched from thence, we sayled hard by Cypers because the wyndes were contrarye. And when we had sayled ouer the see of Cilicia and Pamphilia, we came to Myra whiche is in Licia. And there the vnder captayne founde a shyppe of Alexandria readye, that sayled into Italye, and he put vs therein. And when we hadde sayled slowlye many dayes, and scarse were come ouer against Gnydon (because the wynde wythstode vs) we sayled harde by the coaste of Candy, ouer against Salmo, & with muche worke sailed beyond it, and came vnto a place which is called the faire hauen. Nye whereunto was the Citye of Lasea, when much time was spent, and whē saylynge was nowe ieoperdous, because also that they had ouerlonge fasted, Paul put them in remēbraunce, and sayd vnto them: Syrs I perceaue that this viage wilbe with harte and muche damage, not of the ladinge and shyppe onelye, but also of your lyues. Neuertheless the vnder captayne beleued the gouerner and the master of the shyppe more then those thynges whyche were spoken of Paul. And because the hauen was not commodyous to wynter in, manye toke counsell to departe thence, if by anye meanes they might attaine to Phenices and there to wynter, which is an hauen of Candye, & lyeth toward the southwest & northwest winde. When the south wind blewe, they supposing to obtayne their purpose, loosed vnto Asson, and sayled past al Candy. But not longe after, there arose agaynste C their purpose, a stawe of winde out of the northeast. And whē the ship was caught & could not resiste the wynde, we let her go, and drawe with the wether. But we were carved into an yle which is named Clauda, and hadde much worke to come by a bote, which they toke vp, and vsed helpe, and made faste the shyppe, fearynge, leste they shoulde fall into the Syrtes. And so they let downe a vessell, and were carved. The nexte daie (when we were tossed with an exceadynge tempeste) they lyghtened the shyp, and the third daye we caste oute with oure owne handes the takyng of the shyppe.

When at the last, nether the sunne nor starres in many dayes appeared, and no smal tempest laye vpon vs, al hope that we shoulde escape, was then taken away. But after long abstinence, Paul stode forth in the middes of thē, and sayde: Syrs, ye should haue harkened to me, and not to haue loosed from Candy, nether to haue brought vnto vs thys harme and losse. And nowe I exhorte youe to be of good chere. For there shalbe no losse of any mans lyfe among you, saue of the ship onelye. For there stode by me thys night the angel of God, whose I am, and whom I serue, sayinge: feare not acts. 21 a Howbeit we must be cast into a certarne ylande. But when the fourteneth nyghte was come (as we were sayling in Adria aboute mydnyghte) the shyppemen demed, that there appeared some countrye vnto them: and sounded, and founde it twentye fadoms. And when they had gone a litell further, they sounded agayne, and found. xv. faddoms. Then fearing leste they should haue falle on some rocke, they cast foure ankers out of ye sterne, and wyshed for the day. And the shyp men were about to flee out of the shyp (when they had let downe the bote into the see, vnder a colour, as though they wolde haue caste ankers oute of the forepart) Paull sayde vnto the vnder captayne and to the soudiers: except these abide in the ship he cannot be safe. Then the soudiers cut of the rope of the bote, and let it fall awaye. F And when the daie began to appeare, Paul besought them all to take meat, sayinge this is the fourtenth day, that ye haue tarved and continued fastyng, receavynge nothynge at all. Wherfore I praye yon to take meate: for thys no doubt is for your health: for * there shall not an heare fal from the head of anye of you. And when he had thus spoken, he toke bread and * gaue thanks to God in presence of them al: and when he had broken it, he beganne to eate. Then were they all of good cheare, and they also toke meate. We were all together in the shyppe, two hundred thre score and syxtene soules. And when they had eaten ynoughe, they lyghtened the shyp, and cast oute the wheate into the see. When it was G daye, they knewe not the lande, but they spyed a certayne hauen with a banke, into the which they were mynded (yf it were possyble) to thrust in the shyp. And when they had taken vp the ancres, they commytted themselues vnto the see, and loosed the rudder bondes & hoysed vp the meane sayle to the wynde, and drawe to lande. And when they chaunced on a place, which had the see on bothe the sydes, they thrust in the shyp. And the forparte stucke faste and moued not, but the hynder parte brake swythe the vyolence of the wawes. Grace be with you and peace from God our father, and frō the Lorde Jesus Christ. First verely I thanke my God thorowe Jesus Christ for you all, that youre fayth is spoken of in all the worlde. For God is my witnes (whom I serue * with my spirite in ỹ Gospell of his sonne) that without ceasyng I make mencion of you prayeng alwayes * in my prayers, that by some meane, at the last (one tyme or other) a prosperous iourney (by the will of God) might fortune me, to come unto you. For I long to se you, that I might bestowe amonge you some spirituall gyfte, to strength you withal that is, that I might haue cōsolation together with you, through the common fayth, which both ye and I haue. I would that ye should know (brethren) howe that I haue often tymes purposed to come unto you, * but haue bene lette hitherto, to haue some fruit also among you, as among other of the Gentyles. I am detter both to the Grekes and to the vngrekes, to the learned and to the vnlearned. So that (as much as in me is) I am redy to preach the Gospell to you that are at Rome also. * For I am not ashamed of the Gospell of Christ, because * it is the power of God unto saluation to every one that beleueth, to the Jewe first, also to ỹ Gentile. For by it is the ryghtwysenes of God opened frō faith to faith. As it is writtē, ỹ iust shal liue by fauth. The .iiii. Chapter.

What shall we saye then, that Esa. 51 a * Abraham oure father (as pertaynyng to the flesh) dyd fynde? If Abraham were iustified by dedes, thē hath he where-in to reioyce: but not with god. For

Euen as Dauid describeth the blessednes of that man vnto whō

Howe was it then reckened? when he was in the circumcision? or when he was in the vncircumcision? * Not in the tyme of circumci- Gen 15 b kered not at the promes of God thorowe vnbeleffe: but became strouge in fayth, and gaue God the prayse, being full certified, that he whiche had promysed the same was able to make it good. And therefore was it reckened to him for righteousnes. Rom.15 Neuertheless it is not written for him one-lye, that it was reckened to hym for righteousnes, but also for vs, to whom it shalbe counted (for ryghteousnes, (so that we beleue on hym ỳ rayled vp Jesus our Lorde from the dead: which was delinered for oure synnes, and was rayled agayne for our iustification.

The.v.Chapter.

BEcause therefore that we are iustifyed by fayth, we are at peace with God, thorowe our Lord Jesus Chryst: by Ihō.16. whom also is chaunced vnto vs to be brought in thorowe faith, vnto thys grace, wherin we stand, and reioice Hebr.3,8 in hope of the glory (of the chyldren) of God. Not that onely: but also we Iaco.1.a reioyce in tribulatiōs: knowing that tribulation bringeth pacience, pacience bringeth experience, experience bringeth hope. And hope maketh not ashamed: because the loue of God is shed abroad in our hertes, by the holy Ephe.2a ghost which is geuen vnto vs. For collo.2, c whē we were yet weake, accordyng and.2.c to the tyme, Chryst dyed for vs which were vngodly: Yet scace wyl any man dye for a righteous man. Parad uenture for a good man durst a man die. But God setteth out his loue Ihō.3.c toward vs, seing that while we wer 1.Ihō,4 yet synners (accordinge to the tyme) Chryst died for vs. Much more then nowe (we that are iustified by hys bloud) shalbe saued from wrath thorowe hym. For yf when we were enmyes, we were reconciled to God by the death of his son: much more seing we are reconciled, we shal be preserued by his life. Not only this, but we also reioyce in God by the meanes of our Lord Jesus Chryst, by whome we haue nowe optayned the attonement. Wherfore, as by one man, sinne entred into the worlde, & death by the meanes of synne. Euen so death also went ouer al men, in so muche as we Gene.3 haue sinned. For euen vnto the lawe Rom.6 was sinne in the worlde, but sinne is not imputed, when there is no lawe: Neuertheless deathe raygned from Adam to Moses, euen ouer them also that had not sinned with like transgression as dyde Adam: which beareth the similitude of hym that was to come. But the gift is not lyke as the sinne. For yf thorowe the synne of one, many be dead: much more plēteous vpon manye was the grace of God, and gyft by grace: which was of one man Jesus Chryste. And the Ioh.1, gifte is not ouer one sinne: as deathe came thorowe one synne of one that synned. For damnation came of one sinne vnto condēpnation: but ỳ gyfte came to iustifie frō many sinnes. For if by the synne of one, death raygned by the meanes of one: much more they (which receaue aboundaūce of grace and of the gift of righteousnes) shall raigne in life by the meanes of one (ỳ is to say) Jesus Chryst. Lykewise thē as by the synne of one there sprāg vp euel on al men to condēnation: euē so by the ryghteousnes of oue sprynngeth good vppon all menne to the righteousnes of life. For as by one mannes disobedience manye became sinners: so by the obedience of one shal many be made righteous.

But ỳ law in the meane entred in, that synne should encreace, Neuerthe- Gala.3 less where aboundaunce of syn was ther was more plenteousnes of grace That as synne hadde raygned vnto death, euen so might grace raigne thorowe righteousnes, vnto eternall life by the helpe of Jesus Chryst.

WHat shal we say then: Shal we continue in syn, ỳ there may be aboundaūce of grace God forbyd. Howe shal we that are deade as touching synne, liue any lenger therein. As ye haue geuen youre mēbers ſeruantes to vnclēnes and to iniquitie, (from one iniquitie to another) euen ſo nowe geue youre membres ſeruauntes vnto ryghteouſnes that ye may be ſanctified. For when ye were the ſeruauntes of ſynne yee were voyde of ryghteouſneſſe. What fruite hadde ye then in thoſe thinges, wherof ye are now aſhamed? For the ende of thoſe thynges is deathe. But now are ye deliuered from ſynne, and made the ſeruauntes of god, and haue your fruit to be ſanctifted and the end euerlaſtyng lyfe. For the rewarde of ſinne is death, but eternall lyfe is the gift of God, thoughe Jeſus Chryſt our Lorde.

Rom.5.e

KNowe yee not brethren (I ſpeake to them that knowe the lawe) howe that the law hath power ouer a man: as longe as it endureth? For ✠ the woman, which is in ſubiection to a man, is bounde by the lawe to the man, as long as he lyueth. But if the man be dead: ſhe is loſed from the lawe of the man. Soo then ✠ if while the man lyueth ſhe couple her ſelfe with another man, ſhee ſhalbe counted a wedlocke breaker. But if the man be dead ſhe is free from the lawe of the husbande, ſo that ſhe is no wedlocke breaker, though ſhe couple her ſelfe wyth another man. Euen ſo ye alſo (my brethren) are dead concerninge the lawe by the body of Chriſt, that ye ſhoulde bee coupled to another (I meane to him that is riſen agayne from death) that we ſhould bryng forth fruit vnto god. For when we were in the fleſh, the luſtes of ſinne whych were ſtered vp by the lawe, raygned in our membres, to bryng forth fruit vnto death. But nowe are we deliuered frō ꝑ lawe, and dead vnto it, wherevnto we were in bondage, that we ſhould ſerue in a newe conuerſation of the ſpirite, and not in the olde converſation of the letter. What ſhall wee ſaye then? Is the lawe ſinne? God forbyd: nevertheles ✠ I knewe not ſinne but by the lawe. For I had not knowē what luſt had meante, except the lawe had ſayde: thou ſhalt not luſt. But ſinne toke an occaſion by the meanes of the commaundement, and wrought in me all maner of concupiſcence. For vereye without the lawe, ſynne was deade.

I once lyued without lawe: But when the commaundement came, sin reuiued, & I was dead. And the very same commaundement, whiche was ordeyned vnto lyfe, was founde to be vnto me an occasion of death. For sin toke occasion by the meanes of the C commaundement, & so disceaued me, 1 Tim. 1 and by the same slewe me. Wherfore Gala. 3, c the lawe is holy, and the commaun-dement holy & iust, and good. Was ꝓ then which was good, made death vn to me? God forbid. Nay it was sinne that sinne might appeare (by it whiche was good) to worcke death in me that sinne by the commaundemente might be out of measure sinfull. For Esa, 52 a we knowe, that the lawe is spirituall: but I am carnall, solde vnder sinne, because I alowe not that whiche I do. For what I would, that do I not: but what I hate, that doo I.
D If I do nowe that which I woulde not, I consent vnto the lawe that it is good. Soo then nowe, it is not I that do it, but sinne that dwelleth in Gene, 6, me. For I knowe, that in me (that is to saye in my flesh) dwelleth noo good thyng. For to will is present with me: but I synde noo meanes to performe that which is good. For the good that I would, do I not: but the euil which I would not, that do I.
If I do that I would not, then is it not I that do it, but sinne that dwelleth in me. I find thē by ꝓ lawe, that when I would do good, euil is present wᵗ me: For I delite in the lawe of God, after the inward man: But I se another lawe in my membres, re bellynge agaynste the lawe of my mynde, and subduynge me vnto the lawe of sinne, which is in my members. O wretched manne that I am: who shall deliuer me from thys body subdued vnto death? I thanke God thorow Jesus Christ our Lord. So then, with the minde I serue the lawe of God, but with the flesh the lawe of sinne.

THere is then no damnation to them which are in Christ Jesu, which walke not after the flesh, but after the spirite. For the lawe of the spirite, of lyfe thorowe Jesus Christe, hath made me free from the lawe of synne, and death. For what the law could not do (in as much as it was weake because of the flesh) that performed God, and sent his sonne in the simy-litude of sinfull flesh, and by sin dāned sinne in the flesh, that the righ-teousnes of the lawe, might be fulfilled in vs, which walke not after the flesh, but after the spirite. For they that are carnall, are carnally mynded.
But they that are spiritual, are ghost ly mynded. To be carnallye mynded, is death. But to be spirituallye minden, is lyfe and peace. Because that the fleshely minded is enemy against God, for it is not obedient to ꝓ lawe of God, neyther can be. Soo then they that are in the flesh, cannotte please G O D. But ye are not not in the flesh, but in the spirite: yf so be that the spirite of God dwell in you. If any man haue not the spirite of Christ, the same is none of his. If Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sinne: but the spirite is life for ryghteousnes sake. Wherefore, yf the spirite of him that rayled vppe Jesus from death, dwel in you: euen he that rayled vp Christ frō death, shal quic ken your mortall bodyes, because of hys spirite that dwelleth in you. & Therefore brethren, we are detters, not to the flesh, to lyue after the flesh.
For yf ye lyue after the flesh, ye shal dye. But if ye (thorowe the spiryte) do mortyfie the dedes of the bodye, ye shall lyue. For as manye as are ledde by the spirite of God, they are the son-nes of God. For ye haue not recea-ued the spirite of bondage to feare ani more, but ye haue receaued the spyryte of adoption, whereby we crye: Abba father. The same spirite certifieth oure spirite that we are the sonnes of God. If we be sonnes, then are we also heyres, the heyres I meane of God,

God, and then heires annexed with Chriſte: if ſo be that we ſuffer with him, that we may be alſo glorified together with him. ✠ For I ſuppoſe that the afflictions of this life, are not worthy of the glory, which ſhall be ſhewed vpon vs. For the feruent deſire of the creature abideth lokyng when the ſonnes of God ſhal appere, becauſe the creature is ſubdued to vanitie, againſt the will thereof, but for his wyll which hath ſubdued ẏ ſame in hope. For the ſame creature ſhalbe deliuered from the bondage of corruption, into the glorious libertie of the ſonnes of god. For we knowe, that euery creature groneth with vs alſo, and trauaileth in pain euen vnto this time. Not only it, but we alſo which haue the firſte fruites of the ſpirite, mourne in our ſelues alſo, and waite for the adoption (of the childzen of GOD) euen the deliueraunce of our bodye. ✠ For we are ſaued by hope. But hope ẏ is ſene is no hope. For howe can a manne hope for that, which he ſeeth? But and if we hope for that we ſee not, then doo we with pacience abide for it. Likewiſe, ẏ ſpirite alſo helpeth our infirmities.

For we knowe not what to deſyre as we oughte, but the ſpirite maketh interceſſion for vs with gronynges which can not be expreſſed. And he ẏ ſercheth the hearte knoweth what is ẏ meaning of ẏ ſpirit: for he maketh interceſſion for the ſayntes accordyng to the pleaſure of God. ✠ We knowe that all thynges worke for the beſte vnto them ẏ loue God, which alſo ar called of purpoſe. For theſe which he knew before, he alſo ordeined before, ẏ they ſhold be like faſhioned vnto the ſhape of his ſonne, that he myghte be the fyrſt begotten ſonne among many brethren. Moze ouer, whō he appointed before, theym alſo he called. And whom he hath called, them alſo he iuſtified, them he alſo glorified. what ſhall we then ſaye to theſe thynges? if god be on our ſyde, who can be againſt vs? which ſpared not his owen ſonne, but gaue hym for vs all: howe can it be that with him he ſhoulde not geue vs all thynges alſo? Who ſhall lay any thynge to the charge of Gods chooſen? It is god that iuſtifieth: who is he that can condemne? it is Chriſt whiche dyed, yea, rather, which is riſē again, which is alſo on ẏ right hād of god, & maketh interceſſion for vs. Who ſhall ſeparate vs frō the loue of God? ſhal tribulation? or anguiſh? or perſecution? either hūger? either nakednes? either perill? either ſweard? As it is writen: For thy ſake ar we killed all day long, and are counted as ſheepe, appointed to be ſlaine. Neuerthelesſe, in all theſe things we ouercome thorow him that loued vs. For I am ſure, that neither death, neither life, neither angels, nor rule, neither power, neither thynges preſent, neyther thynges to come, neither height, neither lowneth, nether any other creature ſhalbe able to departe vs frome the loue of God, whiche is in Chriſt Jeſu our Lord. ✠

I Say the truth in Chriſt, and lye not (my conſcience alſo bearing me witnes by the holy ghoſt) that I haue great heuynes, and continual ſorow in my hert. For I haue wiſhed my ſelfe to be curſed from Chriſt, for my brethrē (my kinſmen as pertaining to the fleſhe) whiche ar the Jſraelites. the sede. For this is a worde of promise, ✱ about this tyme wyll I come, and Sara shal haue a sonne. Not onlye this, but also Rebecca was with child by one, euē by our father Isaac. For ere the childrē were borne, when they had neither doone good, neither bad (that the purpose of God by election, might stande) it was said vnto her, not by the reason of workes, but by the caller, ✱ the elder shal serue the yonger. As it is written: Iacob haue I loued, but Esau haue I hated What shal we say then? Is there any vnryghteousnesse with God? God forbid. For he sayth to Moyses: ✱ I will shew mercy to whome soeuer I shew mercy: & wil haue compassiō on whom soeuer I haue cōpassion. So lieth it not then in a mās will or cunning, but in the mercy of god. For ỹ scripture sayth vnto Pharao: ✱ Euen for this same purpose haue I stered ỹ vp, to shew my power on thee, & that my name might be declared thorowe out all the world. So hath he mercy on whom he will, & whom he will he maketh hard hearted. Thou wilt say then vnto me: Why thē blameth he vs yet? For who hath ben able to resiste his will? ✱ But O man, what arte thou, which disputest with god? Shal the worke say to the workman why hast thou made me on this fashion? Hath not ỹ potter power ouer the clay, euen of the same lumpe to make one vessel vnto honor, & an other vnto dishonor? Euen so, God willinge to shew his wrath, and to make his power knowē, suffred with long pacience the vessels of wrath ordeined to damnation, & to declare the riches of his glory on ỹ vessels of mercy, whiche he had prepared vnto glory: whō also he called, not of the Iewes only, but also of the Gētils, As he sayth also to Osee: ✱ I wil cal thē my people which wer not my people: and her be loued whiche was not beloued (& her to haue obtained mercy, whiche hath not obtained mercy.) And it shal come to passe, that in the place wher it was said vnto them: Ye are not my people, there shal they be called the childrē of the liuing god. But Esay crieth concerning Israel, ✱ though the nūbre of childrē of Israell be as the sand of ỹ sea, yet the remnant shalbe saued. For he finisheth the word verily, and maketh it short, in righteousnesse. For a short word will God make on earth. And as Esay said before: ✱ except the Lord of Saboth had left vs sede, we had ben made as Sodoma, & had ben likened to Gomorra. What shall we saye then? We saye that the Gentiles which folowed not righteousnes, haue ouertaken righteousnes: euen ỹ righteousnes which cōmeth of faith. Contrarywise, Israel which folowed the law of righteousnes, could not attain to the law of righteousnes. Wherfore? euē because thei sought it not by faith but as it were by the woorkes of the lawe. For they haue stombled at the stōbling stone. As it is written: ✱ Behold, I put in Syon a stōbling stone and a rock that men shalbe offēded at. And who so euer beleeueth on hym, shall not be confounded.

Brethren, my hertes desire, & prayer to God for Israell is, that they myghte bee saued. For I beare them record, that they haue a feruente mynde to Godwarde, but not according to knowledge. For they beyng ignorāt of Gods righteousnes, and goyng about to stablyshe theyr owne ryghteousnesse, haue not ben obedient vnto the ryghteousnesse of God. ✠ For ✱ Christ is the fulfylling of the law, to iustifie all that beleue. For ✱ Moses writeth of the righteousnes whyche commeth of the law, how that the mā which dothe the things of the lawe, shall liue therby. This man putteth difference betwene day and day. Another man counteth all dayes a lyke. Let euery mans mynde satisfie hym selfe. He that obserueth the day, doeth it vnto the Lorde. And he that doeth not obserue the daye, doeth it for the Lorde also. He that eateth, doeth it to please the Lorde, for he geueth God thankes. And he that eateth not, eateth not to please the Lorde withall, and geueth God thankes. For none of vs lyueth for hym selfe, and no man dyeth for hym selfe. For yf we lyue, we lyue vnto the Lorde. I beseeche you brethren, by the name of oure Lorde Jesus Christe, that ye all speake one thynge, and that there be no dissencion among you: but that ye maye bee a whole bodye: of one mynde, and of one meanyng. For it is shewed vnto me (my brethren) of you, by them whyche are of the house of Cloe, that there is stryfe amonge you. I speake of the same, that euery one of you sayeth. I holde of Paule: I holde of * Appollo: I hold of Cephas: I holde of Christ. Is Christ deuyded? Was Paule crucified for you? eyther were ye baptysed in the name of Paule? power of God. For it is written: * I wyll destroye the wysedome of the wyse, and wyll caste awaye the vnderstandyng of the prudent. Wher is the wyse? * Where is the Scrybe? wher is the disputer of thys worlde? Hath not God made the wysedome of this worlde foolyshenes? For after that the worlde throughe wysedome knewe not God, in the wysedome of God, it pleased God throughe foolyshenesse of preachynge, to saue them that beleue. For * the Jewes require a sygne, and the greekes seke after wysedome. But we preache Chryste crucified, vnto the Jewes an occasion of fallynge, and vnto the greekes foolyshenesse: but vnto them that are called bothe of the Jewes and greekes, we preache Chryste the power of God: and the wysedome of god. For the foolyshnes of god, is wyser then menne: and the weakenesse of god is stronger then menne. Brethrē, ye see youre callynge, howe that not manye wise menne after the flesshe, not manye myghtye, not manye of hye degree, are called: But god hath chosen the folysh thynges, of the worlde, to confounde the wyse. And god hath chosen the weake thynges, of the worlde, to confounde thynges, whyche are myghtye. And vile thynges of the worlde, and thynges whyche are despysed, hath god chosen, yea, and thynges of noo reputation, for to bryng to noughte thynges of reputation, that no flesshe shoulde reioyce in hys presence. And of hym are ye, in Chryst Jesu, whyche of god is made vnto vs, wisedom, and righteousnes, and sanctifyinge, and redemption. That accordynge as it is wrytten: he whyche reioyseth, shoulde reioyce in the Lorde.

A AS concerninge the thynges wherof ye wrote vnto me: ✠ it is good for a manne, not to touche a woman. Neuertheles, to auoyde whordõe let euery man haue his wyfe: and let euery woman haue her husbande. Let the husbande geue vnto the wife due benevolence. Like wise also the wife vnto her husband. The wyfe hath not power of her own body: but the husband. And like wise the husband hath not power of Leuit.6.d and.8,a his owne bodye: but the wife. • With drawe not your selues one from an- Ioel,2,d other, excepte it be with consente for a tyme, for to geue your selues to fastyng and prayer. B I say of fauour, and not of commaundement For I woulde that all men were as my selfe am: but euerye man hath his proper gifte of God, one after this maner, another after that. I saye vnto them that be vnmaryed & widdowes: it is good for them, if thei 1,Tim 5 abyde euen as I do. But and • yf thei cannot abstayne, let them marye. For it is better to mary, thẽ to burne. Vnto the maryed commaunde, not I, but Mat,5 e the Lorde: • Let not the wife be sepa- and,19,a rated from the husbande. If she seperate her selfe, let her remaine vnmaried, or be reconciled vnto her husband agayne. And let not the husband put awaye hys wyfe from hym. To the remnaunt speake I, not the Lord. If any brother haue a wife that beleueth not, yf she be contente to dwell wyth hym, let him not put her awaye. And the woman whiche hath to her husbande an infidell, & consent to dwell with her, let her not put him awaye.

C For the vnbeleuyng husband is sanctyfied by the wife, & the vnbeleuinge wife is sanctified bi the husband. Or els were your children vncleane: but nowe are they holye. But and yf the vnbeleuyng depart, let him depart. A brother or a sister is not in subiection to suche. But God hath called vs in peace. certaine voyce, who shall prepare him selfe to the warre? Euen so lykewyse when ye speake with tongues, excepte ye speake wordes that haue signifyca-tion, how shall it be vnderstand what is spoken? For ye shall but speake in the ayre. Many kyndes of voyces are in the worlde, and none of them are without signification. If I knowe not what the voyce meaneth, I shalbe vnto him that speaketh, an aliant: and he that speaketh, shalbe an aliant vnto me. Euen so ye (for as much as ye couet spirituall giftes) seke, that ye may excel, vnto the edifying of the congregacion. Wherefore, let hym that speaketh with tonge, praye, that he maye interprete also. For if I praye with tonge, my spirite praieth, but my vnder standynge doeth no good. What is it then? I wil pray with the spirete, and will pray with the vnderstandyng. I will synge with the spirete, and wyll synge with the vnderstandynge. For els, whē thou blessest with the spirete, howe shall he ỹ occupieth the rowme of the vnlearned, saye: Amen, at thy geuynge of thankes, seynge he vnderstandeth not what thou sayest? Thou verely geuest thankes well, but the other is not edifyed. I thanke my God that I speake with tonges more then ye all. Yet had I leuer in the congregation to speake fyue wordes with my vnderstandyng to the informacion of other, rather then ten thousand word-des with the tonge. Brethren, be not ye children in witte. Howbeit, as con cerning maliciousnes, be children: but in witte be perfecte. In the lawe it is written * with sundry tonges, & with sondry lippes wil I speake vnto this people, and yet for all that, will they not heare me, sayth the Lorde. Wherfore tonges are for a signe, not to them that beleue: but to thē that beleue not.
Contrary wyse, prophesying serueth not for them that beleue not: but for them which beleue. Iftherfore when al the congregacion is come together, and all speake with tonges, ther come in they ỹ are vnlearned, or they which beleue not: will they not saye, that ye are out of your wittes? But and if all prophesye, and there come in one that beleueth not, or one vnlearned, he is rebuked of all men, and is iudged of euery man, & so are the secretes of hys harte opened, and so falleth he downe on his face, and worshippeth god, and sayth: that God is in you of a trueth.
How is it then brethren? As oft as ye come together, euerye one of you hath a songe, hath a doctryne hath a tonge, hath a reuelacion, hath an interpretation. Let al thynges be done vnto the edifynge: If anye man speake with tonge, let it be by two or at the moost by thre, and that by course, and let another interprete it. But if there be no interpreter, let him kepe silence in the congregation, & let him speake to him selfe and to God. Lette the prophetes speake two or thre, and * let the other iudge. If any reuelaciō be made to another that sitteth by, let the fyrst hold his peace. For ye may al prophesy one by one, that all may learne and that all may haue comforte. And the spretes of the Prophetes are in the power of the prophetes. For God is not tauser of stryfe: * but of peace, as (I teache) in all congregations of the Saynctes.
* Let your wemen kepe silence in the congregacion. For it is not permitted vnto them to speake: but to be vnder obedience, as sayth the lawe. If they wyll learne any thynge, let them aske theyr husbandes at home: For it is a shame for weomen to speake in the congregacion. Spronge the worde of God from you? Ether came it vnto you onelye? If anye man thynke neth it a body at hys pleasure, to euery seade hys owne body. ✠ All flesshe is not one maner of flesh: but ther is one maner of flesshe of men, another maner of flesshe of beastes, another of fyshes, and another of byrdes. There are also celestiall bodyes, and there are bodies terrestrial. But the glorye of the celestiall is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another. There is one maner glory of the sonne, and another glorye of the Moone, and another glorye of the starres. For one starre differeth frō another in glory. So is the resurrection of the dead. It is sowen in corruption, it ryseth againe in incorrupti on. It is sowen in dishonour, it riseth agayne in honoure. It is sowen in weaknes, it riseth again in power. It is sowen a naturall body, it ryseth a- gayne a spirituall body. Ther is a na- turall body, & ther is a spiritual body: as it is also writtē: the first man * Adam was made a liuyng soule, and the last Adam was made a quickenynge spyrete. Howbeit, ỹ is not first which is spiritnall: but that which is natu- rall, & then that which is spirituall. The first man is of the earth, earthly: the second man is the Lord from hea- uen (heuenly.) As is the earthy, such are they that are earthy. And as is the heauenly, suche are they that are hea- uenlye. And as we haue borne the ymage of the earthy, so shall we beare the ymage of the heauēly. This say I brethren that flesshe and bloud cannot inheret the kingdome of god. Nether doth corruption inheret vncorruptiō. Beholde, I shew you a mistery. * We shall not all slepe: but * we shall all be chaunged, and that in a momēt, in the twinklyng of an eye by ỹ last trompe. For the trompe shall blowe, and the deade shall ryse incorruptible, and we shalbe chaunged. For this corruptible muste put on incorruption: and thys mortall muste putte on immortalitie. When this corruption hath put on in- corruption, & this mortall hath put on immortalitie: then shalbe brought to passe the saying, ỹ is writtē * Death is swalowed vp in victorye: * Death & Seyng then that we knowe, howe the Lord is to be feared, we fare fayre with men. For we are knowen well ynough vnto God. I trust also that we are knowen in your consciences. For we prayse not our selues againe vnto you, but geue you an occasion to reioyce of vs, that ye maye haue some

A ¶ The.viii.Chapter.

I Certifye you brethren, of ỹ grace of God, which was geuen in the congregations of Macedonia, howe that the aboundaunce of their reioysing is, that they are tryed with much tribulation. And though they were exceadyng poore, yet haue they geuen exceading richelye, and that in singleneſſe. For to their powers, I beare them recorde, yea and beyonde theyr power, they were willynge of their owne accorde, and prayed vs w great instaunce, that we woulde receaue their benefite, and suffer thē to be partakers with other * in mynystryng to the sainctes. And thys they dyde, not as we loked for, but gaue their owne selues fyrst to the Lorde, and after vnto vs by the will of God

B so that we coulde not but desyre Titus, to accomplyshe the same benevolence among you also, euen as he had begonne. Nowe therefore, as ye are riche in all parties, in faith, in word, in knowledge, in all feruentnes, and in loue, which ye haue to vs: euen so, se that ye be pienteous in thys benevolence also. This saye I, not commaunding: but because of feruentnes. I do alowe the vnfaynednes of your loue toward other men. For ye know the liberalitie of oure Lorde Jesus

Rom. 10 Chryst, that though he was * ryche, yet for youre sakes he became poore ỹ ye, thrughe his pouertie, mighte be made ryche. And I geue counsel here to. For this is expediēt for you whiche beganne, not to do onely, but also to will a yeare ago. Nowe therefore,

C perfourme the thinge whiche ye beganne to do: that as there was in you a redines to wil, euē so, ye maye performe the dede * of that which ye haue. For * if there be first a willing mind,

1. Pet. 4 Pro. 3. b mar. 12 d Luke, 21 it is accepted according to that a man hath, & not according to that he hath not. that there may be equalitie agreynge to that whych is wrytten: * he that had muche, had not the more aboundaunce: and he that had a litle, had neuertheleſſe. Thankes be vnto God, whych put ỹ same good mind for you in the harte of Titus, which accepted the request: yea, rather he was so wel willing, that of his owne accorde, he came vnto you. We haue sente wyth hym the brother, whose laude is in the Gospell thorowe out all the congregations: and not that onely, but is

D also chosen of the cōgregations to be a felowe with vs in our iorney, concerning this benevolence that is mynistred by vs vnto the prayse of the same Lorde, and to sterre vppe youre prompte mynd. For this we eschew, that anye man shoulde rebuke vs in this plenteous distribution. * that is Rom, 12 mynistred by vs (to the glorye of the Lord) and make prouision for honest thynges: not onely in the sighte of the Lorde: but also in the sight of men. We haue sent with them a brother of oures: whom we haue oft times proued diligent in manye thynges, but nowe much more diligent. The great confidence which I haue in you, hath caused me this to doo: partly for Titus sake, which is my felowe and helper as concerning you: partly because of other which are our brethren, and the messengers of the congregations, and the glory of Christ. Wherefore, 1. Cor. 1 shew ye vnto them the proffe of your loue, and of our * boastyng of you in ỹ syght of the congregations.

O Ye folishe Galathians: who hath bewitched you, that ye should not beleue the truth?
To whō Iesus Christ was described before the eyes and amonge you crucifyed. Thys onelye wouldе I learne of you whether ye receaued the spirite by the dedes of the lawe, or by the preachynge of the fayth. Are ye such fooles, that after ye haue begonne in the spirite, ye nowe ende in the flesh? So many thynges ye haue suffred in vayne, if it be also in vayne.
Moreouer, he that ministreth to you the spiryte, and worcketh myracles amonge you, doeth he it throughe the dedes of the lawe, or by preachynge of the fayth? * Euen as Abraham be-leued god, and it was ascribed to him for righteousnesse. Ye knowe therefore, that they which are of fayth, the same are the children of Abraham.
For the scripture seynge afore hande, that god wouldе iustifie the heathen through fayth, shewed before hande gladdе tydynges vnto Abraham sayinge: * In thee shall all nations bee blessed. Soe then, they whiche are of fayth, are blessed with faithful Abraham. For as manye as are of ꝑ dedes of continueth not in all thynges which are written in the booke of the lawe to fulfyl them. That no man is iusti-fyed by the lawe in the syghte of god, it is euident. * For the iuste shal lyue by fayth. The lawe is not of fayth:

* but the mā that fulfilleth the things (contayned in the lawe) shall lyue in them. Chryste had deliuered vs from the curse of the lawe, inasmuch as he was made accursed for vs: For it is written: * cursed is euery one, that hā geth on tree, that the blessynge of Abraham myght come on the Gentiles throughe Iesus Chryste, that wee myghe receaue the promise of the spi-rite throughe fayth. Brethrenne, I speake after the manner of menne.
Though it be but a mans testament, yet if it be alowed, no man despyseth it: or addeth any thyng therto. ¶ To Abraham and his seede were the promyses made. He saieth not in the sea-des, as manye: but in thy seade as of one, whiche is Chryste. This I say, that the lawe whyche beganne afterwarde, beyonde * foure hundred and thirtie yeares, doeth not dysanull the testamente, that was confirmed afore of God vnto Chryst warde, to make the promise of none effect. * For if the inheritaunce come of the lawe, it com meth not nowe of promyse. But god gaue it vnto Abraham by promyse. wherefore then serueth the lawe?
* It was added because of transgression (till the seede come, to whom the promise was made) and it was ordeined * by Aungels in the hande of a mediatour. A mediatour is not a mediatoure of one, but God is one.
* Is the lawe then against the promys of G O D? God forbydde. For yf ther had bene a lawe geuen whych coulde haue geuen life: then no doubt ryghteousnesse shouldе come by the lawe. But the scripture concluded al thinges vnder sinne, that the promise by the fayth of Iesus Chryst should bee geuen vnto theym that beleue.
But before that faith cam, we wer kept vnder ꝑ lawe, and were shut vp vnto ꝑ faith which should afterward

A AND I saye, that the heyre (as longe as he is a chylde) differeth not from a seruant, though he be Lorde of all, but is vnder tuters and gouernours, vntill the tyme that the father hathe appoynted. Euen so wee also, when wee were childzen, were in bondage vnder the ordinaunces of the worlde. But when the tyme was full come,

Ro. 8. e. hath sent the spirite of his sonne into oure hearte crynge: Abba: father. wherefore nowe, thou arte not a seruaunt: but a sonne, yf thou be a sonne, thou art also an heyre of god, through Christ. Notwithstanding, when ye 1 Cor. 8. b knewe not god, ye didde seruice vnto them, whiche by nature are no gods. But now after that ye haue knowen god (yea rather are knowen of God) Coll. 2. d howe is it that ye tourne againe vnto the weake and beggerlye ordinaunces, wherevnto againe ye desire a fresh to be in bondage? Ye obserue dayes, & monethes, and times, and yeares. I am in feare of you lest I haue bestowed on you laboure in vayne. Brethren I beseche you to be as I am: for I am as ye ar. Ye haue not hurte me at all. Ye know how through infirmitie of the flesh, I preached the gospell vnto you at the firste. And my temptation which was in the flesh, ye despysed not nether abhorred: but receaued me as an Aungel of God: euen as Christ Jesus. What is then your felicity? for I beare you recorde, that if it had ben possible ye would haue plucked oute youre owne eyes, and haue geuen thē to me. Am I therefore become youre enemye, because I tel you the trueth? They are gelous ouer you amysse. Yea, they intende to exclude you, that ye shoulde be feruent to themwarde. It is good alwayes to be feruente in a good thynge, and not onely when I am present wyth you. My little childzen, of whome I trauayle in byrthe againe, vntill Christe be fashioned in you, I wold I were wyth you now and could chaunge my voyce: for I stande in a doubte of you. Tell me: ye that desire to be vnder the lawe, do ye not heare of ye lawe? For it is written, that Abraham had two sonnes. gen. 16. a the one by a bonde mayde, the other gen. 21. a by a free woman. Yea, and he whych He. 11. a was borne of the bond woman, was borne after the flesche: but he whiche was borne of the free woman, was borne by promyse. Which thynges are spokē bi an allegori. For these ar two testamentes, the one from ye mōut Sina, which gēdreth vnto bondage, which is Agar. For mount Sina is Agar in Arabia, and bordreth vpon the Citie, which is now called Jerusalē, and is in bondage w̄ her childrē. But D Apo. 21. Jerusalem, which is aboue, is free: Esa. 54. whyche is the mother of vs all. For it is writte. Reioyce you barren, Ro. 14. that beareste no childzen: breake forthe 1 Co. 8. and cry thou that trauayleste not. For the desolate hath many mo childzen, mat. 22. then she which hath an husband. Bre- mar. 12. thren, we are after Isaac, the childzen Le. 19. of promise. But as then he that was Ro. 13. borne after the flesche, persecuted hym Jam. 2. that was borne after ye spirite, euen so is it nowe. Neuertheles, what saieth gen. 21. the scripture: put away ye bonde wo mā & her sone. For ye sonne of the bōd woman shall not be heyre with the son of the free woman. So thē brethrē we

The epistle of Sainct Paule the Apostle vnto the Philippians.

The first Chapter.

PAul and Timothe the seruauntes of Iesu Christe. To al the Sainctes in Christ Iesu, whiche are at Philippos with ỳ bishops and Deacons. Grace bee vnto you and peace from god our father, & from the lorde Iesus Christe. ✠ I thanke my god with al remembraunce of you ✱ alwayes in all my prayers for you, and praye with gladnes: because ye arcome into the felowship of the gospel from the fyrste daye vntill now ✠ and am sure ye certified of thys, that he which hath begonne a good worke in you, shall performe it vntill the daye of Iesus Christ, as it becommeth me so iudge I of you all, because I haue you in my hearte: forasmuch as ye are all companions of grace with me, cuẽ in my bondes, and in the defendynge and stablyshyng of the Gospell. For god is my recorde, howe greatelye I longe after you all, from the very hert rote in Iesus Christe. ✱ And this I praye, that your loue may encrease yet more & more in knowledge, and in all vnderstandyng, ỳ ye maye accepte the thinges ỳ are most excellente, that ye may be pure, & such as offẽd no mã vntil ỳ day of Christ: being filled ỽ the fruite of righteousnes, which cõmeth by Iesus Christ vnto ỳ glori & praise of god. ✠ I wold ye shuld vnderstãde (brethrẽ) ỳ ỳ thinges which happed vnto me chaũged vnto ỳ great furtheraũce of the Gospel: So that by bandes in Christ, are manifest throughout all the iudgement hal and in all other places: In so muche that manye of ỳ brethren in ỳ lord beinge encoraged throgh my bãdes, dare more bold ly speake ỳ worde without feare. Some preach Christ of enuy, and stryfe, and some of good will. The one parte preache Christe of stryfe and not sincerelye, supposynge to adde more aduersitie to my bandes. Againe the other parte preach of loue, because they knowe that I am set to defend the gospell. What then? So that Christ be preached any maner of way, whether it bee by occasion, or of true meaning, I am glad therof, ye and wil be glad, For I knowe, that this shal chaunce to my saluatiõ, ✱ through your prayer & mynystryng of the spyrite of Iesu Christ accordynge to my expectation, and hope, that in nothyng I shall be ashamed: but that with all boldenesse, (as alwayes euen so now also) Christ shalbe magnified in my body, whether it be thorow life, or thorow deth. For Christ is to me life, and death is to me auantage. If it chaunce me to liue in the flesh, that thing is to me fruitfull for the worke, and what I shall chose I wote not. For I am constrained of these two thinges. ✱ I desire to be losed, & to be ỽ Christ which is much & farre better. Neuertheless, to abide in the flesh is more nedefull for you. And this I am sure of, that I shall abyde, and continue with you all, for your furtherance and ioy of your faith that your reioysyng maye be the more aboundant thorow Iesus Christ in me, by my commynge to you agayne. Onely let your conuersation be, ✱ as it becommeth the gospell of Christe: that whether I come and see you, or els be absent, I may yet heare of your condition, that ye continue in one spirite, and in one soule, laborynge as we do, to maintayne the fayth of the gospell, and in nothynge fearyng youre aduersaries, which is to them a cause of perdition, but to you of saluation, and that of GOD: for vnto you it is giuen of Christ, that not only ye should beleue on him: but also that ye should suffre for his sake, hauynge euen suche a syghte, as ye sawe in me, and nowe heare of me.

I Exhorte therefore, that aboue all be

Jer. 29c Baru. 1e be had for all men: * for kinges, and for all that are in auctoritie, that we may lyue a quiet and a peaceable lyfe, with all godlynes and honestie. For that is good and accepted in the sight of God our sauiour, which will haue all men to be saued, & to come vnto the knowledge of the trueth. For there is * one Joh. 17a *He.9.d god, and one * mediatour betwene god Gala.3c and man, euen the man Christ Jesus, which gaue hym selfe a raunsome for all men that it shoulde be testifyed at Rom.1e and.11.c his time, * wherevnto I am ordeined a 1.Ti.2c preacher and an Apostle. I tell the truth in Chryst and lye not: beyng the teacher of the Gentils with faith and B veritye. ¶ I will therfore that the men Joh.4c * praye euery where, lyftynge vp pure handes without wrath or doubtyng. Lykewyse also the wemen, that they arraye them selues in comely apparell with shamfastnes and discret behauioure, not with broydred heare, eyther golde or pearles, or costly araie: but as becommeth wemen that professe godlynes thrwe good workes. * Let the 1.cor.14B woman learne in silence with all subiection. But I suffer not a woman to teache, neyther to vsurpe auctoritie ouer the man: but to be in sylence. For Adam was fyrste fourmed, and then Eue. Adam also was not deceaued, but the woman was deceaued, & was subdued to the transgression. Notwithstandynge thrwe bearynge of chyldren she shalbe saued, if they continue in fayth and loue, and holynes, with discression.

A THys is a true sayinge: If a man desyre the office of a Bisshoppe, he desireth an honest worke. A Bysshop therfore must be blameles, the husbande of one wyfe, diligent, sober, discret, a keper of hospitalitie: apte to teache, not geuen to ouer much wyne, no fyghter, not gredye of fylthye lucre: but gentle, abhorrynge fyghtyng, abhorrynge couetousnes, one that ruleth well hys owne house, one that hath children in subiection with reuerence. For yf a man cannot rule his owne house, how shal he care for the congregation of God? He maye not be a ponge scoler, lest he swell and fall into the iudgemente of the euyll speaker. He must also haue a B good reporte of them which are without, lest he fall into rebuke and snare of the euyll speaker. Lykewyse muste the ministers be * honest, not double Actes.6a tonged, not geuen vnto muche wyne, neyther gredy of fylthy lucre: but holdyng the misterye of the faith with a pure conscience. And let them fyrst be proued, and then let them minister so, that no man be able to reproue them. Euen so must their wyues be honest, not euyll speakers: but sober and faith full in all thynges. Let the Deacons be the husbands of one wyfe, and such as rule their childrē well, and theyr owne housholdes. For * they that mat.25.b minister well, get them selues a good degree and gerat libertie in the fayth, which is in Chryste Jesus. These C thynges wryte I vnto thee, trustyng to come shortly vnto thee: but and yf I tarye longe, that then thou mayest yet haue knowledge, how thou oughtest to behaue thy selfe in the house of God, whiche is the congregation of the lyuyng god, the pyller and ground of trueth. And without doubt greate is that misterye of godlynes: * God Joh.1b was shewed in the flesh, was iustified in the spyrte, was sene amonge the Angels, was preached vnto the Gentiles, was beleued on in the worlde, and receaued vp in glorye.

Thou therefore receyue hym, that is to saye myne owne bowels, whom I would fayne haue retayned with me that in thy steade he might haue ministred vnto me in the bondes of the Gospell. Nuertheles, without thy mynde would I do nothing, that the good which thou doest, should not be as it were of necessitie, but willingly. For haply he therfore departed for a season, that thou shuldest receaue him for euer, not now as a seruaunte: but aboue a seruaunt, euen a brother beloued, specially to me: but howe muche more vnto the, both in the flesshe, & also in the Lord? If thou count me therefore a felowe, receaue him as my selfe. If he haue done the any hurt, or oweth the ought, that laye to my charge, (I Paul haue writtē it with mine owne hand) I will recompence it. So that I do not saye to the, howe that thou owest vnto me euen thyne owne selfe also. Euen so brother, lette me enioye the in the Lorde: Comfort my bowels in the Lorde. The.ii.Chapter.

A Wherefore, we ought to gene the more ernest hede to the thynges that are spoken vnto vs, least at any time we perysshe. For if the word which was spoken by aungels was stedfast: And euery transgression and disobedience receaued a iust recompence of rewarde, howe shall we escape, if we despise so great saluation, which at the fyrst began to be preached of the Lord himself and was confirmed vnto vs ward, by them that hearde it: * God bearynge wytnes therto, both with signes and wonders also and with diuers myracles, and gyftes of the holye ghost, accordyng to hys owne wyll. For vnto the aungels hath he not subdued the world to come, wherof we speake, but one in a certayne place witnessed, saying: what is mā: that thou art mind full of hym? Or the son of man, that thou visitest him? Thou madest him a litle lower thē the aungels: thou hast crowned hym with honoure and glory, and * hast set him aboue the workes of thy handes. Thou hast put all thynges in subiection vnder his feete. In that he put all thinges vnder him he left nothinge that is not put vnder hym. Neuertheles, we se not yet all thynges subdued vnto him: but hym that was made lesse then the aungels, we se that it was Iesus, whyche is crowned with glory and honour, for the sufferyng of deathe: that he by the grace of God, should taste of death for all men. For it became him, for whom are all thynges and by whom are all thynges (after that he had brought many sonnes vnto glory) that he shoulde make the Lorde of their saluation perfect thorowe affections. For bothe he that sanctifieth and they whyche are sanctified, are all of one. For whyche cause sake he is not ashamed to call them brethren, saying: I will declare thy name vnto my * brethren in the myddest of the congregation will I prayse thee. And againe: I will putte my trust in hym. And againe: beholde, here am I & the children whom God hath geuen me. For as much then as the children are partakers of flesh and bloud, he also him selfe likewise toke part with them that (thorowe death) he might expel him that had lordshyp ouer death, that is to say the deuil, and that he mighte deliuer them, whyche thorowe feare of death were all their lyfe tyme subdued vnto bondage. For he in no place taketh on him the aungels: but the sede of Abraham taketh he on him. Wherfore in all thinges it became him to be made like vnto hys brethren, that he might be mercyfull & a faithfull hye Priest in thinges concerning God, for to purge the peoples sinnes. For in that it fortuned hym selfe to be tempted, he is able to succor them also that are tempted.

A Therefore holy brethren, partakers of the celestiall callynge consider the ambassadoure and hye Priest of oure profession Chryste Iesus, howe that he is faithfull vnto him that put him in the office, euen as was Moses in al his house. For loke howe much honour he (that hath buil ded a house) hath more then the house it selfe, so muche honoure is he counted worthy of more then Moses. For euerye house is builded of some man. But he that ordeyned all thinges is God. And Moses verely was faithfull in all his house, as a minister, to beare witnes of those thinges whiche were to be spoken afterwarde. But Chryste as a sonne, hath rule ouer the house, whose house are we, if we hold fast the confidence and * the reioysing of that hope, vnto the ende. Wherfore (as the holy ghost saith:) to day yf ye will heare his voice, harden not your hartes, as in the prouokyng, in the day of temptatyō in the wyldernes, wher youre fathers tempted me, proued me, and sawe my workes foretye yeare. Wherefore I was greued wyth that generation, and sayde: They do all waye erre in theyr hartes, they verely haue haue not knowen my wayes, so that I sware in my wrathe: they shal not enter into my rest: Take hede brethrē lest at any tyme there be in any of you a frowarde hart subiect vnto vnbeliefe that he should depart from the lyuing God: but exhort ye one another dayly, while it is called to day, least anye of you waxe harde harted thorowe the deceitfulnesse of sinne. We are made partakers of Christe, yf we kepe sure (vnto the ende) the begynning of the substaunce, so long as it is said: to day if ye will heare his voyce, harden not your hartes, as in the prouokinge, for some when they hearde, did prouoke: howbe it not all that came out of Egipte by Moses. But with whome was he displeased .xl. yeares? was he not displeased with them that had sinned, whose carkases were ouer throwen in the desert? To whom sware he that they shuld not enter into his rest but vnto thē that were not obedient? And we se, that they coulde not enter in, because of vnbeleife.

LEt vs feare therefore, lest any of you (forsakyng the promes of entring into his rest) should seme at any tyme to haue ben disappoynted. For vnto vs is it declared, as well as vnto them. But it profited not theym, that they hearde the worde: because they which hearde it, coupled it not with faythe. For we which haue beleued, do enter into his rest, as he sayd. Euē as I haue sworn in my wrath: they shall not enter into my reste. And that spake he verelye long after that the workes were made and the foundation of the world layd. For he spake in a certaine place of the seuenth day, on this wise. And God dyd rest the seuenth day from all hys workes. And in this place againe: They shall not enter into my rest. Seinge therefore it foloweth, that some must enter therinto, and they (to whō it was fyrst preached) entred not therin for vnbeleefes sake, he appoynteth a certayne day after so long a tyme saying in Dauid (as it is rehearsed) this daye yf ye will heare his voice, harden not your hartes. For if Iosua had geuen them rest, then woulde he not afterward haue spoken of another day. There remayneth therefore yet a rest to the people of God. For he that is entred into hys rest hath ceased also from his owne workes, as God dyd from his. Let vs study therfore to entre into that rest, lest any man fall after the same ensāple of vnbeleefe. For the worde of God is quicke, and mighty in operation, and sharper then anye two edged sweorde: and entreth thorowe, euen vnto the dirydyng a sonder of the soule and the spryte, and of the ioyntes and the mary: and is a discerner of the thoughtes and of the intentes of the herte: nether is there anye creature that is not manifeste in the sight of hym: But all thynges are naked and open vnto the eyes of hym, of whom we speake. Seynge then, that we haue a great hye Priest which is entred into heauen (euen Iesus the sonne of God) let vs holde the profession: (of our hope.) For we haue not an hye priest, which cannot haue compassyon on our infirmities: but was in all poyntes tempted, like as we are but yet without sinne. Let vs therefore go boldly vnto the seat of grace that we may obtayne mercye, & fynde grace to helpe in tyme of nede.

FOr euery hye priest that is taken from amonge men, is ordeyned for menne, in thynges pertayninge to GOD, to offer giftes and sacrifices for sin, which can haue compassion on the ignorannt, and on them that erre out of the waye, for as muche as he him selfe also is compassed with infirmitie. And for the same infirmities sake he is bounde to offre for sinnes, as wel for hym selfe, as for the people. And no man taketh honor vnto him selfe, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron. Euen so Christ also glorified not hym selfe, to be made the hye preiste: but he yͤ said vnto him * thou arte my sonne, thys daye haue

Acts. 13 Heb. 1.b Psa. 110 haue I begotten thee, glorifyed hym. As he saieth also in another place: * thou arte a preest for euer after the order of Melchisedech. & whiche in the dayes of his flesshe, whan he had offered vp prayers & supplications, with stronge cryinge and teares (vnto him that was able to saue him from death) and was heard because of hys reuerence, though he were ỹ (son of God) yet learned he obedience, by those thinges which he suffred: and he beynge perfecte, was the cause of eternall saluation vnto all them that obeyed him: and is called of God an hye preest, after the order of Melchisedech. wherof we woulde speake manye thynges but they are harde to be vttered: seyng ye are dull of hearynge. For when as concerninge the tyme, ye oughte to be teachers, yet haue ye nede againe, that we teach you the fyrste principles of the worde of God: & are become suche as haue nede of * milke: & not of strong meate: for euery man that is fed wyth mylke, is inexperte in the worde of ryghteousnes. For he is but a babe. But stronge meate belongeth to them that are perfecte, euē those, which (by reason of vse) haue their wittes exercised to discerne both good and euyll.

Therefore, leauynge the doctryne, that pertayneth to the beginning of Christen men, let vs go forth vnto perfection not layinge againe the foundation of repentaunce from deade workes & of fayth toward God, of baptisynges, of doctryne, and of layinge on of handes, and of resurrection from death, & of eternall iudgement. And so wil we do * if God permitte. For it cannot be that they which were once lighted, and haue tasted of the heauenly gyfte, and were become partakers of the holye ghost, and haue tasted of the good word of God, and of the power of the worlde to come: * if they fall away (& as concernyng theym selues crucifye the sonne of God a fresshe, and make a mocke of hym) that they should be reuued agayne by repentaunce. For the earth whyche drynketh in the rayne that commeth ofte vppon it, and bryngeth forth herbes mete for them that dresse it, receaueth blessynge of God. But that ground which beareth thornes and bryers, is reproued, and is nie vnto cursyng: whose ende is to be burned. Neuertheless (deare frendes) we trust to se better of you, and thinges which accompany saluation, though we thus speake. For God is not vnrighteous * ỹ he should forget your worke and laboure that procedeth of loue, which loue ye shew in his name which hath ministred vnto ỹ saintes, & yet minister. Yea, and we desire, that euery one of you shewe the same dilygence, to the full stablishyng of hope, euen vnto the ende, that ye faynte not, but be folowers of thē, which thorow fayth and pacience receaue the inheritaunce of the promyse. For whē God made promes to Abraham because he had no greater to sweare by * he sware by him selfe, saying: Surely I wyll blesse the, and multiplye the in dede. And so after ỹ he had taried pacientlye, he enioyed the promes. For men verely sweare by hym that is greter then them selues, and * an othe to confirme the thinge, is to theym an ende of all stryfe. So God wyllyng very aboundantely to shewe vnto the heyres of promys, the stablenes of hys counsaile added an oth: that by two immutable thinges (in which it was vnpossyble that God shoulde lye) we might haue a stronge consolation, which hytherto haue fled, for to holde faste the hope that is set before vs, whiche hope we hold as an ancre of the soule both sure and stedefast, which hope also entreth in, into those thynges which are with in the vayle, where the forerunner is for vs entred, euē Jesus, that is made * hye preest for euer, after the order of Melchisedech.

For where as is a Testament, there must also (of necessitie) be the deathe of him that maketh the testamēt. For the testament taketh authoritie when men are dead: for it is yet of no value, as long as he that maketh the Testament is alyue: for which cause also neither the fyrst testament was ordeined without bloode. For when Moyses had declared al the cōmandement to al the people, accordynge to the law, he toke the blood of calues and of goates with water and purple woll & yssope, and sprynkled both the boke, and al the people, saying: * This is the bloode of Ex. 24.b

And almoste al thinges are by the law purged with blood, and without shedynge of blood is no remission. of the lawe, as transgressers. Whosoeuer shall kepe the whole lawe, & yet fayle in one poynte, he is gyltie of all. For he that sayd: Thou shalt not commyt aduiterie, sayde also: Thou shalt not kyl. Though thou do none aduiterie, yet if thou kill, thou art become a transgressor of the lawe. So speake ye, and so do, as they that shall be iudged by the lawe of liberty. For he shal mat. 18.b haue iudgemēt without mercy, that sheweth no mercy: & mercy reioyceth against iudgement. What auayleth it my brethren, thoughe a man saye he hath faith, if he haue no dedes? Can fayth saue hym? If a brother or a syster be naked & destitute of dayly fode, and one of you say vnto thē: depart in peace, God send you warmnes & fode: notwithstandyng ye geue theym not those thynges whych are nedefull to the body, what shall it helpe? Euen so faith, if it haue no dedes, is dead in it selfe. But some man will say, Thou hast Faith, & I haue Dedes: Shewe me thy fayth by thy dedes: and I will shew thee my faith by my dedes. Beleuest thou that there is one God? Thou doest wel. The deuyls also beleue and tremble. But wilt thou vnderstande (O thou vayne man) that D Ge. 22.b fayth without dedes is dead? Was not Abraham our father iustified thorowe workes, when he hadde offered Isaac his sonne vpon the aultar? Thou seest, how that faith wrought with his dedes, & through the dedes Ge. 15.b was the faithe made perfect: and the Ro. 4.a scripture was fulfilled, which saith: Gal. 3.a Abraham beleued God, and it was reputed vnto him for righteousnesse: and he was called the frende of God. Ye se then, how that of dedes a man is iustified, and not of fayth onely. Iosu. 2.a Lykewyse also, was not Raab, the harlot iustified thorow workes, whē she had receaued the messengers, and had sent them out an other way? For as the bodye without the spirite is dead, euen so Fayth without workes is dead also.

My brethren, be not many 117 a maister, knowynge howe that wee shall receyue the greater damnation: for in many thynges we synne all. If a man sinne not in word, the same is a perfect man, able also to tame al the body. Behold, we put bittes into the horses mouthes, that they may obeye vs, and we turne about all the bodies of them. Behold also the shyppes, which thoughe they be so greate, and are dryuen of fierce wyndes, yet are they tourned aboute with a very smal helme, whyther soeuer the violēce of the gouerner wil. Euen so the tonge is a lyttle membre also, and boasteth great thinges. Behold howe great a thyng a lyttle fyre kindleth, & the tonge is fier, euē a worlde B of wickednes. So is the tongue set amonge our members, that it defyleth the whole bodye, and setteth a fyre, all that we haue of nature, and is it selfe set a fyre euen of hell. All the natures of beastes, and of byrdes, and of serpētes, and thinges of the see are meeked and tamed of the nature of man. But the tongue can no man tame. It is an vnrulye euill, full of deadelye poison. Therwith blesse we God the father, Gen. 1.d and therwith curse wemen, which are made after the image and similitude of god. Out of one mouth proceadeth blessinge and cursinge. My brethren these things ought not so to be. Doth a fountayne sende forthe at one place swete water and bytter also? Can the C figge tree (my brethrene) beare olyue bearies: ether a vine beare figges? So can no fountayne geue bothe salt water and fresh also. If any man be wise and endued with knowledge amonge you, let him shewe his workes out of good conuersation with meknesse of wisedome. But yf ye haue bitter enuyng and strife in youre hearte, reioyce not: nether be liars against the truth: For suche wisedome descendeth not from aboue: but is earthye, naturall, & diuelishe. For where enuying and D strife is, there is vnstablenes, & al maner of euill workes. But the wisedome that is from aboue, is firste pure, then peceable, gentle, and easy to be intreted, full of mercy and good frutes, with out iudging, without simulation: yea and the frute of righteousnes is sowē in peace, of them that maintaine peace

THat which was from the be A gynnyng, whyche we haue heard, whyche we haue sene with our eyes, whiche we haue loked vpon, and our handes haue handled, of the worde of the lyfe. And the lyfe appeared, & we haue sene and beare witnes, and shewe vnto you * that eternal mat.17.a lyfe, whiche was with the father, and appeared vnto vs. That whiche we haue sene and heard, declare we vnto you, that ye also may haue felowshyp with vs, and that our felowship may be with the father and his sonne Jesus Christ. And this write we vnto you, that (ye may reioyce, and that) your ioye may be full. And this is the tydynges which we haue heard of him and declare vnto you, that god is light and in hym is no darkenes at all. If B we say, that we haue felowshyp with him, and walke in darkenes, we lye, and do not the trueth. But and yf we walke in lyght euen as he is in lyght, then haue we felowshyp with hym, and * the bloude of Jesus Christe hys Hebr.9.d sonne cleanseth vs from all synne. * If Apoc.1b we saye that we haue no sinne, we de- *3 Reg.8e ceaue our selues, and the trueth is not 1 Par.6g in vs: * If we knowledge our synnes * Job.13 he is faythfull and iuste, to forgeue vs Psa.32b oure synnes, and to clense vs from all and.94.c vnrighteousnes. If we say we Luk.15b haue not synned, we make him a lyer, & his worde is not in vs.

A My litle childrē, these thynges wryte I vnto you, that ye sin not. And yf anye man sinne, we haue an aduocate with the father, Jesus christ, the righteous e he it is that obtayneth grace for our sinnes, not for our sinnes onely: but also for the synnes of all the worlde. ✠ And hereby we are sure that we know him, if we kepe his commaundemētes. Joh.13d • He that saith I know him and kepeth not hys commaundementes is a lyer, and the veritie is not in him. But who so kepeth his word, in hym is the loue of God perfecte in dede: hereby knowe we that we are in hym. He that sayth he bydeth in hym. ought to walke euen as he walked. ✠

B Brethren, I wryte no newe cōmaundement vnto you: but that olde commaūdement, which ye haue had from the begynnyng. The olde commaundement is the worde, whiche ye haue heard from the begynning. Agayne, a newe commaundement I wryte vnto you, that is true in hym, and the same is true also in you: for the darkenes is past, & the true lyght nowe shineth. He that saieth howe that he is in the lyght, and yet hateth his brether, is in darkenes euen vntyll thys tyme. He that loueth his brother, abideth in the light, & there is none occasion of euyll in him. He that • hateth his brother, is 1.Ieu.19d in darkenes, and walketh in darkenes: and can not tell whether he goeth, because that darkenes hath blinded hys eyes. Babes, I wryte vnto you, how that your synnes are forgeuen you for his names sake. I wryte vnto you fathers, how that ye haue knowen him that is from the beginnyng. I wryte vnto you yong men, how that ye haue ouercome that wicked. I wryte vnto you litle chyldren, howe that ye haue knowen the father. I haue written vnto you fathers, howe that ye haue knowen hym that is from the begynnyng. I haue written vnto you yong men, howe that ye are strong, and the worde of God abydeth in you, and ye haue ouercome the wicked; He that ye loue not • the worlde neyther the C thynges that are in the worlde. If any Job. 17b man loue the worlde, the loue of the father in not in hym. For all that is in the worlde (as the luste of the flesh, and the luste of the eyes, and the pryde of lyfe) is not of the father, but of the worlde. And the worlde passeth away and the luste therof: but he that fulfylleth the will of God, abideth for euer. Little children, it is the last tyme, and as ye haue herde how that Antichrist shall come, euen nowe are there many begonne to be Antichristes already, wherby we know, ẏ it is ẏ last tyme. • They went out from vs, but they Act.20.f were not of vs. For if they had bene D of vs, they would no doubt haue continued with vs. But that it myghte appeare, that they were not of vs. Nevertheles, ye haue an oyntemente of hym that is holye, and ye knowe all thynges. ✠ I haue not wryten vnto you, as though ye knewe not ẏ truth: but as though ye knew it (and know also) that no lye commeth of trueth. Who is a lyar, but he that denieth that Jesus is Christe? the same is Antichriste, that denyeth the father and the sonne. Whosoeuer denieth the sonne, the same hath not the father, (he that knoweth the sonne, hath the father also.) Lette therefore abyde in you that same which ye harde from the beginnyng. If that which ye hard from the beginning shal remaine in you, ye also shal cōtinue in the son, & in the father. And this is the promise ẏ he hath promised vs, euē eternal life. These thinges haue I wryten vnto you, concerning thē ẏ disceyue you. And ẏ anoyntynge which ye haue receaued of hym dwelleth in you. And ye nede not, that any man teach you: but • as the anoyntyng teacheth you of al thinges, and is Esa.54b true, and no lye, and as it hath taught Iohn.16 you, euen so byde therein. And nowe babes abyde in him: that when he shal appeare, we maye be bolde, and not be made ashamed of him at his comming. If ye knowe that he is righteous, know also that euery one which doth righteousnes, is borne of him.

A Beholde, what loue the father hath shewed on vs, that we shulde be called (& be in dede) the * sonnes of God. For this Luk.20 f cause the worlde knoweth you not, be- John.1b cause it knoweth not him. Dearly be-loued, now are we the sonnes of god, and yet it doth not appeare, what we shalbe. But we knowe, that when it shall appeare, we shalbe like him. For we shall see him as he is. And euery man that hath this hope in him, pourgeth him selfe, euen as he also is pure.
Whosoeuer committeth sinne, cōmit-teth vnrighteousnes also, and sinne is vnrighteousnes. And ye knowe that he appeareth, to take away our sinnes and in him is no sinne. As manye as bide in him, sinne not: whosoeuer sinneth, hath not sene him, neyther know-en hym. Babes, let no man deceaue B you. He that doeth ryghteousnes, is righteous, euē as he is righteous. He that committeth sinne, is of the deuyl: Gene.3 a * for the deuyll sinneth sence the begin-John.8 f ninge. For this purpose appeared the sonne of God, to loose the workes of the deuyl. Whosoeuer is borne of god, sinneth not: for hys sede remayneth in him, and he cannot sinne, because he is borne of god. In this are the children of god knowen, and the children of the deuyll. Whosoeuer doeth not righte-ousnes, is not of god, neyther he that C loueth not his brother. For this is the tidynges, that ye hard from the begir-Gene.4b ning, that ye should loue one another, not as * Cain which was of that wicked, and slew his brother. And wherfore slewe he him? Because his owne workes were euyll, and his brothers good. ¶ Maruayle not my brethren though the worlde hate you. We know that we are trāslated from death vnto Leu.19d life, because we loue the brethren. * He that loueth not his brother abydeth in death. Whosoeuer hateth his brother is a manslayer. And ye know, that no manslear, hath eternall life abidyng in him. Hereby perceue we loue: because Hereby we knowe, that we are of the veritie and can quiet our hartes before is greater then our hart, and knoweth all thynges. Dearely beloued, if oure harte condemne vs not: then haue we trust to godward: & * whatsoeuer we

C Exo.33 d Iudi.5.e Deu.4.b John.1 c and.6.e another. • No man hath sene God at anye tyme. If we loue one another, God dwelleth in vs, and hys loue is perfite in vs. Hereby knowe we that we dwell in him, and he in vs: because he hath geuen vs of hys spyrete. And we haue sene, and do testifye, that the father sent the sonne to be the sauiour of the worlde. Whosoeuer confesseth that Iesus is the sonne of god, in hym dwelleth God, and he in God. And we haue knowē and beleued the loue that God hath to vs. God is loue, and he that dwelleth in loue, dwelleth in God, and God in hym. Herein is the loue perfite in vs, that we sholde haue D truste in the daye of iudgement: For as he is, euen so are we in thys worlde. There is no feare in loue, but perfyte loue casteth oute feare, for feare hathe paynfulnes. He that feareth, is not parfite in loue. We loue him, for he loued vs first. If a man say, I loue god, and yet hate hys brother, he is a lyar. For howe can he that loued not hys brother whom he hath sene, loue God whom he hath not sene? And thys commaundemente haue we of hym: that he whiche loued God, shoulde loue hys brother also. ✠

Who is it that ouercōmeth the world: but he which beleueth, that Iesus is the sonne of god? Thys Iesus Chryste is he that came by water and bloude. And it is the spyrete that beareth witnes, because the spyrete is truth. (For ther are thre which beare recorde in heauen, the father, the word, and the holy ghost. And these thre are one.) And there are thre which beare B

For this is the witnes of god (that is greater) which he testified of hys sonne. He that beleueth on the son of God, hath the witnes in him selfe. ✠ He that beleueth not God, hath made him a lier because he beleued not the recorde that God gaue of his sonne. And this is that recorde, how that God hath geuen vnto vs eternall lyfe, and this lyfe is in his sonne. He that hath the son hath lyfe, and he that hath not the sonne of God hath not lyfe. ¶ The seconde Epistle of Saint John.

THe Elder to the elect Ladye and her chyldren, whom I loue in trueth, and not I only, but also all that haue knowen the truth for the truthes sake which he dwelleth in vs, and shalbe in vs for euer. With vs shall be grace, mercy and peace from God the father & from the Lord Jesus Christ the sonne of the father, in trueth and loue. I reioyced greatly, that I found of thy children walkynge in trueth, as we haue receaued a commaundement of the father. And now beseech I thee Lady, not as though I wrote a newe commaundemente vnto thee, but that same which we haue had frō the beginninge, that we should + loue one another. And this is the loue that we should walke after his commaundemente. This commaundemente is, that as ye haue harde from the beginnynge) ye shoulde walke in it. For manye deceauers are entred into the world, which confesse not that Jesus Christe is come in the flesh. This is a deceauer and an Antichrist. Loke on your selues that we lose not that we haue wrought: but that we maye haue a full reward. Whosoeuer transgresseth and bideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that endureth in the doctrine of Christ, hath both the father and the sonne. If there come anye vnto you, and bringe not thys learnynge, hym receaue not to house: neither byd him god spede. For he that biddeth him god spede, is partaker of hys euyll dedes (Beholde, I haue tolde you before, that ye shoulde not be ashamed in the day of the lord.) I had manye thynges to wryte vnto you, neuertheless I wolde not wryte with paper and ynke: but I truste to come vnto you, and speake with you mouth to mouth, that oure ioye maye be full: the sonnes of the electe syster grete thee. ☞ The thirde Epistle of Sainte John.

THe elder vnto the beloued Gayus whom I loue in the trueth. Beloued I wyshe in all thinges that thou prospercdst, and faredest well, euē as thy soule prospereth. For I reioyced greatly, when the brethren came, and testified of the trueth that is in the, how thou walkest in ŷ trueth. I haue no greter ioy then for to heare how that my sonnes walke in verity. Beloued thou doest faithfully, whatsoeuer thou doest to the brethren, and to straungers, which beare witnes of thy loue before the congregation. Which brethrē if thou bring forwards of their iorney (after a godly sorte) thou shalt do well: because that for his names sake they went forth: and toke nothynge of the Gentils. We therfore ought to receaue such, that we myght be helpers to the trueth. I wrot vnto the congregation: but Diotrephes which loueth to haue the preheminēce among them, receaueth vs not. Wherfore yf I come, I will declare his dedes which he doth, iesting on vs with malicious wordes, nether is therwith content. Not onely he hym silf receaueth not the brethren: but also he forbiddeth them that wolde, & thrusteth them out of the congregation. Beloued, folowe not that which is euyll, but that which is good. He that doeth well well is of God: but he that doth euill, seeth not God. Demetrius hath good repoꝛte of all men, and of the trueth it selfe, yea, and we our selues beare re-

And I turned backe se the voyce to that spake to me. And when I was turned, I sawe seuen golden candelsticke, and in the myddes of the candelsticke, one like vnto the sonne of man, clothed with a lynen garment downe to the feete, and gyrde aboute the papes with a golden gyrdle. His head, and his heares were whyte, as whyte woll, and as snowe, and hys eyes were as a flame of fyre: & hys fete lyke vnto brasse, as though they brent in a fornace, and hys voyce as the sound of many waters. And he had in hys ryghte hande .vii. starres. And oute of hys mouth went a sharpe two edged swearde. * And hys face shone, euen as the sun in his strength. And when I sawe hym, I fell at hys fete, euen as deade. And he layde hys right hande vpon me, sayng vnto me: feare not. * I am the fyrst and the last, and am alyue, and was deade. ¶ The.iiii. Chapter.

A ✠ Fter this I loked, and be- A holde a dore was opē in heauen, and the first voyce which I hard, was as it wer of a tromped tal kyng with me which sayd: come vp hi ther, and I will shewe the things whi che must be fulfylled hereafter. And immediately I was in the spryt: and beholde, a seate was set in heauen, and one sat on the seat. And he that satte was to loke vpon, lyke vnto a Jasper stone, and a Sardyne stone. And ther was a rayne bowe aboute the seate, in B sight like to an Emeralde. And about B the seate were xxiiii. seates. And vpon the seates. xxiiii. elders, sitting, clothed in white rayment, and hadde on their heades, crownes of gold. And oute of the seate procedeth lyghtnynges, and thondrynges, and voyces, & there were seuen lampes of fire, burnynge before the seat, which are the seuen spryts of God. And before the seat there was a sea of glasse, like vnto Chrystall, and in the myddes of the seat, and rounde about the seat were foure beastes full of eyes before, and behynde. And the C fyrst beast was lyke a lyon, and the se- C cond beast lyke a calfe, and the thyrde beast had a face as a man, and the forth beast was lyke a flying Egle. And ỹ foure beast had eche one of them, syxe wynges, about him, and they were ful of eyes within. And they had no rest holy, Lord God almighty, which was and is, and is to come. And whē those beastes gaue glorye and honoure, and thankes to him that sat on the seate, (which lyueth for euer, and euer) the xxiiii. elders fell downe before hym, that sat on the trone, and worshipped him that lyueth for euer. ¶ And caste D their crownes before the trone saying thou art worthy O Lord (our God) to receaue glory, and honour, and pow er, for thou hast created all thynges, & for thy willes sake they are, and were created.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

AND I sawe in the right hand A of him that sat in the trone, a boke written within and on ỹ backeside, sealed with seuen seales.
And I saw a straunge Aungel, wythche preached with a lowde voice: Who is worthy to open the boke, & to louse the seales thereof. And no man in hea uen nor in earthe, neyther vnder the earth, was able to open the boke, neyther to loke thereon. And I wepte much because no man was found wor thy to open and to reade the boke, neither to loke theron. And one of the el- B ders sayd vnto me wepe not: Behold, a lyon of the tribe of Juda, the roote of Dauid, hath obtayned to open the boke, and to lose the seuen seales ther-of. And I behelde, and lo in the mid-des of the seate, and of the foure beastes, and in the myds of ỹ elders, stode a lambe as though he had bene kylled, hauyng seuen hornes, and seuen eyes, wyche are the seuen spryts of God, Esa. sente into all the world. And he came and toke the boke out of the right hād of hum that sat vppon the seate. And C when he had taken the boke, the foure beastes, and. xxiiii. elders fell downe before the lambe hauyng (euery one of them) harpes, and golden vials full of odours, wyche are the prayers of saynctes, and they songe a new songe, saying: thou arte worthye to take the boke, and to open the seales thereof: for thou wast killed, and hast redemed vs by thy blond out of all kynredes, and tounges, and people, and natyons and hast made vs vnto our God. kinges, and preistes, and we shall raygne on the earth. And I behelde, and I D harde the voyce of manye aungels about the trone, & about the beastes and

the elders, and I hard thousand thousandes, sayinge with a loude voyce: worthy is the lambe that was kylled to receaue power and riches, and wisdome, and strengthe and honoure, and glorie, and blessyng. And all the creatures whyche are in heauen, and on the earth, and vnder the earthe, and in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I sayinge: Blessyng, honour, glorye, and power bee vnto hym that sytteth vppon the seate, and vnto the Lambe for euermore. And the fower beastes sayde: Amen. And the .xxiiii. elders, fell vpon their faces, and worshipped him that liueth for euermore.

¶ The. vi. Chepter.

A AND I saw, when the lambe opened one of the seales, and I heard one of the foure beastes say, as it were the noise of thunder: Come and see: and I saw. And behold, ther was a whyte horse, and he that satte on hym, had a bowe, and a crowne geuen vnto hym, and he went forth conquerynge, and for to ouercome. And when he hadde opened the seconde seale, I hearde the seconde beast saye, Come and see. And there went oute an other horse, that was redde, and power was giuen to him that satte thereon, to take peace from the earthe, and that they shoulde Esa. 27 a kylle one an other. ✦ And there was B geuen vnto hym a great sweard. And when he had opened the thirde seale, I heard the thyrde beast saye: Come and see. And I beheelde, and lo, a black horse, and he that satte on hym, had a payre of balances in his hand. And I herde a voyce in the mids of the foure beastes, saye: a measure of wheate for a peny, and thre measures of barley for a peny, and oyle & wine se thou hurte not. And when he hadde opened the fourth seale, I herde the voyce of the fourth beast saye, come and see, and I loked. And beholde a pale horse: and his name that satte on him was death and hel folowed after hym, and power was geuen vnto theym ouer the fourth part of the earth, to kyll with sweorde, and with honger, and with death, that commeth of vermen of the earth. And when he hadde opened the fyfte seale. I sawe vnder the C aulter ✦ the soules of them that were Iob. 28b kylled for the worde of GOD, and for the testimony which they had, and they cryed with a loude voyce, saying: Howe longe tarryest thou Lord, holye and true, to iudge and to auenge oure blood on them that dwell on the erth? And longe whyte garmentes were geuen vnto euery one of them. And it was sayd vnto them, that they should reste yet for a lytle season vntyll the number of their felowes, and brethren and of them that shoulde be kylled as they were, were fulfilled. And I be- D held, whē he had opened the sixt seale: and lo, there was a greate earthquake and the sunne was as blacke as sacke clothe made of heare. And the moone wexed all, euen as blood, and the starres of heauen fell vnto the earth, euen as a fygge tree casteth from her vntymely fygges, when she is shaken of a mightye wynde. And heauen vanyshed away, as a scrol when it is rolled together. And all mountaynes and yles, were moued out of their places. And the kynges of the earthe, and the greate men, and the riche men, and the chefe captaynes, and the myghty men, and euerye bondman, and euerye free man, hydde them selues in dennes and in rockes of the hylles: ✦ and saye Oz. 10. b to the hylles and rockes: fall on vs, Luk. 23 b and hyde vs from the presence of hym that sytteth on the seate, and from the wrath of the lambe: for the greate day of hys wrathe is come, and who is able to endure?

AND after that I sawe foure. A Aungelles stande on the. iiii. corners of the earthe holdynge the foure wyndes of the earth that the wynde shoulde not blowe on the earthe, neyther on the sea, neyther on anye tree. ✦ And I sawe another Aungell ascende from the rysynge of the sunne, whiche hadde the seale of the lyuynge God,

and he cryed with a lowde voice to the foure Angels (to whom power was geuen to harte the earthe and the see) saying: hurt not ꝯ earth nether the see nether the trees, tyl we haue sealed ꝯ seruants of our god in their foreheads. And I harde the number of them which were sealed, & ther were sealed B an. C. and. xliiii. M. of al the tribes of the childzen of Israell. Of the tribe of Juda wer sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Ruben were sealed xii. M. Of the tribe of Gad were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Aser were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Nephtalin were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Manasses were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Simeon were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Leuy were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Isacar were sealed. xii. M Of the tribe of Zabulon were sealed xii. M. Of the tride of Joseph were sealed. xii. M. Of the tribe of Beniamin were sealed. xii. M. After this I beheldе, and lo, a greate multitude (which no man coulde number) of all C nations, and people, and tonges, stode before the seat, & before the lambe, clothed with long whyt garmentes, and palmes in their hands, and cried with a lowde voyce, sayinge: saluation be ascribed to him that sitteth vpon the seat of our God, and vnto the lambe. And al the aungels stode in the compasse of the seate, & of the elders, & of the foure beastes, & fell before the seate on their faces, and worshipped God, sayinge: Amen. Blessyng & glory & wisedome and thankes, & honoure, & power, and might, be vnto our god for euermore. Amen. ¶ And one of ꝯ elders answered, sayinge vnto me: What are these which are arayed in longe white garmentes: & whence came they? And I D sayd vnto him: Lord thou woteste. And he sayde to me: these are they, whiche came out of great tribulation, & made their garments large, and made them white by the bloud of the lambe: therfore are they in the presence of the seat of god and serue him day and night in hys temple, and he that sytteth in the seate will dwell amonge them. They shal honger no more, nether thirst, nether shall the Son light on them, nether any heate. For the lambe which is in the middes of the seate shall fede them, and shall leade them vnto fountaynes of liuing water, and God shall wype away al teares from their eyes.

AND when he had opened the seuenth seale, ther was silence A in heauen aboute the space of halfe an houre. And I saw (vii.) aungels standyng before God, and to thē were geuen. vii. trompets. And another aungell came and stode before the aulter, hauing a golden senser, & much of odoures was geuen vnto hym, that he shoulde offer of the prayers of all saintes vpon the golden aulter which was before the seat. And the smoke of the odoures which came of the praiers of all sayntes, ascended vp before God out of the aungels hand. And the aungell toke the senser, and filled it with fyre of ꝯ aulter, & cast it into the earth, B & voyces were made, & thondrynges, & lyghtnynges, & earthquakes. And the seuen aungels whiche had the seuen trompettes, prepared them selues to blowe. The fyrst aungell blewe, and ther was made hayle and fyre whiche were mingled with bloud, & they wer cast into the earth: & the third part (of the earth was set on fire, and the third part) of trees was burnt, and al grene grasse was brente. And the seconde aungell blewe: and as it were a greate mountayne burnynge with fyre was cast into the see, & the third part of the see turned to bloud, & the thirde parte of the creatures which had life, died, & the thyrde parte of shippes were destroyed. And the third aungell blewe C & there fell a great starre from heauen, burnynge as it were a lampe, & it fell into the third part of the riuers, & into fo*staines of waters, and the name of the starre is called wormewood. And the third parte was turned to wormwod. And many men dyed of the waters, because they were made bytter. And the fourth aungel blewe, and the thirde part of the sonne was smitten,

and the thyrde parte of the moone, and the thyrd part of starres: soo that the thyrd parte of them was darkened. And the daye was smytten, that the thyrde parte of it shoulde not shyne, & likewyse the night. And I beheld and hearde an aungell flyinge thorow the middes of heauen, saying with a loud voyce: Woo, woo, to the inhabiters of the earth, because of the voyces to com of the trompe of the three aungels, whiche were yet to blowe.

AND the fyft aungel blewe and I sawe a star fal from heauen vnto the erth. And to him was geuen the keye of the bottomelesse pit. And he opened the bottomelesse pit, and the smoke of the pyt arose, as the smoke of a great furnase. And the sunne, & the ayre were darkened, by the reason of the smoke of the pit. And there came oute of the smoke locustes vpon the erth, and vnto them was geuē power, as the scorpions of the earth haue power. And it was cōmaunded them, that they shoulde not hurte the grasse of the earth: nether anye grene thing, nether any tree: but onely those men whiche haue not the seale in their foreheades. And to them was commaunded, that they shuld not kill them, but that they should be vexed. v. monethes, and there payne was as the payn that commeth of a scorpion, when he hath stong a man. And in those dayes shall men seke death, and shall not fynde it, and shall desyre to dye, and death shall flee from them. And the similitude of ỹ locustes was lyke vnto horses prepared vnto battayle, and on their heades were as it were crownes, like vnto gold, & their faces were as it had bene the faces of men. And they had heare as the heare of women. And their teeth were as the teath of lyons. And they had habbergions, as it were habbergions of yron. And the sound of their wynges, was as the sounde of charettes, when many horses runne together to battail And they had tayles like vnto scorpions, and there were stynges in their tayles. And there power was to hurt men. v. moneths. And they had a king ouer thē whiche is the aungell of the bottomlesse pytte, whose name in the Hebrewe tounge, is Abadon, but in the Greke tonge, Apollion, that is to saye: a destroyer. One woo is past, and beholde, two woos come yet after this. And the sixte aungell blewe, and I hearde a voyce from the foure corners of the goldē aulter, whych is before God, sayinge: to the sixt aungell, whiche had the trōpet: Lose the foure aungels, which are bound in the great riuer Euphrates. And the foure aungels were losed: whiche were prepared for an houre, for a day, for a moneth and for a yeare for to slaye the. iii. part of men. And the numbre of horsemen of warre: were. xx. thousand tymes. x. thousand. And I hard the numbre of thē: and thus I sawe the horses in a vision, and them that satte on them hauyng firy habbergions of a Jacynte couloure, and brymstone, and the heades of the horses were as the heades of the lyons. And oute of their mouthes went forthe fyre and smoke, and brymestone. And of these three was the thyrde parte of men killed: that is to saye, of fyre, smoke, and brymstone: whyche proceded oute of the mouthes of thē. For their power was in their mouthes and in their tayles, for their tayles were lyke vnto serpentes, and had heades, and with them they dyd hurte: And the remnaunte of the men whiche were not killed by these plages, repented not of the dedes of their handes that they should not worshyp deuyls, and ymages of golde and syluer, and brasse, and stone, and of wood, whiche nether can se, nether heare, nether goo. Also they repented not of their murther, and of their sorcerye, neither of their fornication, neyther of their theste.

Chapt.

A And there apered a gret wõder in heauẽ: A woman clothed wt the Sun, and the mone, vnder her fete, & vpon her hed a crown of xii. starres. And she was with child, and cried, trauailing in birth, & pained redy to be deliuered. And ther appeared another wonder in heauẽ, for behold, a gret red dragõ hauing .vii. heads: and ten hornes, & seuen crownes vpon his heades: & his taile drue the third part of the starres (of heauẽ) & cast them to the earth. And the dragon stode before the woman whiche was readye to be deliuered: for to deuoure her childe, as sone as it was borne. And she broght forth a mã child, which should rule all nacions with a rod of yron. And her B son was taken vp vnto God, & to hys seate. And the womã fled into wildernes, wher she had a place, prepared of God, ỹ they shuld fede her there a M. ii. C. & lx. dayes. And ther was a gret battail in heauẽ. Michael & his aungels fought with the dragon, and the dragon fought & his angels, & prevailed not, nether was their place found any more in heauẽ. And the great dragon, that old serpẽt, called ỹ deuill and Sathanas, was cast oute. which deceaueth al the world And he was cast into ỹ earth, & his aungells were cast out also (with him.) And I harde a loud voyce, saying: in heauẽ is nowe made saluatiõ & strength, & the kyngdome of our God, & the power of hys Christe. For (the accuser of our bre- C thrẽ) is cast downe, which accused thẽ before (our) God, day and night. And they ouercame him by the blond of the Lambe, and by the word of their testimony, & they loued not their liues vnto ỹ death. Therefore reioyce heuens, & ye that dwel in thẽ. woo to the inhabiters of ỹ earth, & of the sea: for the deuil is come downe vnto you, whiche hath gret wrath, because he knoweth ỹ he hath but a short time. And when ỹ dragon sawe ỹ he was cast vnto the earth, he persecuted ỹ womã, whiche brought forth ỹ man child. And to the woman were geuẽ two winges of a gret Egle, ỹ she might fly into the wildernes into her place, wher she is norysshed for a time, times, & halfe a time, from ỹ presence of the serpẽt. And the dragon cast out of his mouth water after ỹ woman, as it had bene a riuer, because she shuld haue ben caught of the floud. And the erth holpe the woman, & the earth opened her mouth, & swalo- ed vp the riuer, which the dragon cast D out of his mouth. And ỹ dragon was wroth with ỹ womã, & went, & made warr with ỹ remnant of her sede, whiche kept the cõmaundemẽts of God, & haue the testimony of Jesus Christ. And he stode on the sea sande.

A And I saw a beast rise out of the sea, hauing seuẽ heades, & ten hornes, & vpõ his hornes ten crownes, & vpon his hed, ỹ name of blasphemie. And the beast which I saw, was like a cat of ỹ mountayne, & his fete were as ỹ fete of a bear, & his mouth as ỹ mouth of a liõ. And ỹ dragon gaue him his power, & his seate, & gret auctoritie: & I saw one of his heades as it were wouñded to deth, & hys deadly wound was healed. And all ỹ world wondred at ỹ beast, they worshipped ỹ dragon, which gaue power vnto ỹ best, saying: who is like vnto the beast: who is able to warr wt him: And ther was geuẽ vnto hi a mouth, B that spake great thinges and blasphemies, & power was geuẽ vnto him, to do. xlii. monethes. And the spirite caried me away into the wildernes. And I sawe a woman sitte vpon a rose coloured beaste, full of names of blasphemye, whyche hadde seuen heades and tenne hornes. And the woman was arayed in purple and rose colour, and decked wyth golde, precyous stone, and pearles, and hadde a cuppe of gold in her hande, ful of abhominacion and filthynesse of her fornicatyon. The xix. Chapter.

AND after that I hearde a great voyce of muche people in heauen, saying: Allelwya, Saluation, and glory and honoure and power bee ascryued to the Lord our God for true and righteous are his iudgementes, for he hath iudged the greate whore whyche did corrupte the earth with her fornication, and hath auenged the bloud of his seruauntes of her hand. And againe they sayde, Allelwya. And smoke rose vp for euermore. And the xxiiii. elders and the iiii. beastes fell downe, and worshipped God that sat on the seate, sayinge: Amen allelwia. And a voyce came out of the seat saying: praise our Lorde God al ye that are his seruauntes, and ye that feare him both smalle and greate. ¶The.xx.Chapter.

A AND I ſaw an Aungell come downe from heuen, hauynge the key of the bottomles pyt, and a great chayn in his hand. And he toke the Dragon that olde ſerpente, whiche is the deuyll and Sathanas, and he bound hym a thouſande yeares: and caſt him into the bottomleſſe pitte and he ſhut hym vp, and ſette a ſeale on hym, that he ſhuld deceaue the people no more, tyll the thouſande yeares were fulfilled. And after that he muſt be loſed for a litle ſeaſon. And I ſawe ſeates, and they ſatte vppon them, and iudgement was geuen vnto theym: and I ſawe the ſoules of theym that were beheaded for the wytnes of Ieſu, and for the word of God: and whiche had not worſhypped the beaſt, neither his ymage: neyther had taken his marke vppon theyr foreheades, or in their handes: and they liued, and reigned with Chriſt a thouſand yeare: but the other of the dead men liued not agayne, vntyll the thouſand yere were fynyſhed. This is the fyrſt reſurrection. Bleſſed and holy is he, that hath part in the fyrſte reſurrecion. For on ſuche ſhall the ſeconde death haue no power, but they ſhall bee the Prieſtes of God, and of Chriſt, and ſhal reigne with hym a thouſande yeare. ✣ And when the thouſand yeres are expired, Satan ſhall bee louſed out of his priſone, and ſhall goe oute to deceaue the people, whiche are in the foure quarters of the earthe, Gog and Magog, to gather theym together to battayle, whoſe numbre is as the ſande of the ſea: and they went vp in the playne of the earth, and compaſſed the tentes of the ſainctes about, and the beloued citie. And fyre came downe frome God out of heauen, and deuoured theym: and the deuyll that deceaued theym, was caſt into a lake of fyre and brimſtone: wher the beaſt and the falſe prophets ſhalbe tormented day and night for euermore. And I ſawe a greate white ſeate, and hym that ſatte on it, from whoſe face fled awaye both the earth and heauen, and their place was no more founde. And I ſaw the dead both great and ſmall ſtand before god. And the bookes were opened, and an other boke was opened, which is the boke of lyfe, and the dead were iudged of thoſe thynges which were written in the bookes accordyng to their dedes: and the ſea gaue vp her deade whiche were in her, and deathe and hell deliuered vp the dead which wer in them and they were iudged euery man accordyng to his dedes. And death and helle were caſte into the lake of fyre. This is the ſecond deathe. And who ſoeuer was not founde written in the booke of lyfe, was caſt into the lake of fyre.

Blessed ar they that do kepe his commaundementes, that they power may be in the tree of lyfe, and may enter in thorough the gates into the citie. * For without shall be dogges and inchanters, and whoremongers, and murtherers, and ydolaters: and whosoeuer loueth or maketh leasynges. I Jesus sent myne angell, to testifye vnto you these thynges in the congregations. I am the roote and the generation of Dauid, and the bryghte morynge starre. And the spirite and the bryde say, Come. And let hym that heareth, saye also: Come. And lett hym that is a thyrste, come. * And lette who so euer wyl take, of the water of lyfe, free. I testifye vnto euerye man that heareth the woordes of the Prophecy of this Booke: yf any man shall adde vnto these thynges, God shall adde vnto hym the plagues that are written in thys Booke. And yf any man shal minish of the wordes of ỹ boke of this prophecye. God shall take away his part out of the Booke of lyfe, and out of the holy citie, and from the thynges, whiche are written in this boke. He which testifieth these things saith: Be it. I com quickely. Amē. Euē so come lord Jesu.

The grace of our Lord Jesu Christe be with you all. Amen.
